Lt. Gov. Scranton Thinks Ag Represents Roots Of Society

BY EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

Note: To see what response Lt. Gov. William W. Scranton III gives to agriculture, this interview was conducted in Scranton's capitol office in Harrisburg, Wednesday afternoon.

In addition since the Lieutenant Governor now heads the republican ticket for Governor, the opinions expressed in answers to these questions can be expected to show up in the next administration should Scranton win the election in November. Scranton was chosen Pennsylvania's 26th Governor on November 7, 1978, in his first bid for elected office.

He was born on July 20, 1947, in Scranton. The Lieutenant Governor is the son of Pennsylvania's 103rd Governor William W. Scranton. He received a Bachelor's Degree from Yale University in 1969 and was a cumlaude grad of the Hotchkiss School, Lakedale, Connecticut, in 1965. He and the formal Coral Vange are the parents of three girls all under the age of seven. Here are the questions about agriculture and Scranton's response to them.

Q. Would you first of all introduce your family? I know you have a nice group of little children.

A. Oh, Absolutely. I have been blessed with three daughters, all of whom have been born since I've been elected Lieutenant Governor. The oldest is now seven. And the youngest is now three. And they are very special girls. At least in their father's eyes. I think one of the advantages I have about being a father in politics is that I was also a child of a politician (former Gov. William Scranton) So I fully understand the child's viewpoint of a father who is frequently away. But both Coral and I make a very determined effort to spend time

Garber Wins National Award

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Gerald Garber of Willow Street, Pennsylvania received one of four national production awards presented by the American Guernsey Cattle Club (AGCC) at its annual meeting on June 16 in Peoria, Illinois.

The Tarbell Trophy is given annually in memory of Gage E. Tarbell to the breed's highest 305-day, two-time, mature-equivalent butterfat producer. Grassland Nev Julia's 305-day, mature-equivalent record of 22,107 pounds of milk and 1,264 pounds of butterfat at five years of age qualified "Julia" for this award. Bred by Lea Mary Paine of Salisbury, Connecticut, she actually made 1,290 pounds of butterfat in 305 days, which placed her on the national class-leader list for butterfat.

This 90-point Gold Star Dam is among the top 300 cows in the nation for Cow Performance Index (CPI). Her January 1986 USDA cow indexes are +396 pounds of milk, +32 pounds of butterfat and +$76. Julia's Modified Contemporary Deviation (MCD) is +5,138 pounds of milk and +339 pounds of butterfat.

Ag Progress Preparation Under Way

UNIVERSITY PARK — "Water Quality and Your Life" is the theme of this year's Ag Progress Days at Penn State. The three-day event is scheduled for August 19, 20 and 21.

"From the problems of acid rain to the economics of water distribution, water quality issues are becoming increasingly complex," said Lamartine F. Hood, dean of Penn State's College of Agriculture, in announcing the theme.

"Penn State continues to be a leader both in water quality research and education. Ag Progress Days gives us a chance to share some of that information with the public," Hood said.

More than a dozen exhibits and demonstrations are being prepared by Penn State faculty and staff on water quality issues.

In addition to these exhibits, over 300 commercial exhibitors will feature more than $22 million worth of agricultural machinery, equipment and supplies, much of which will be used in live demonstrations.

Ag Progress Days 1986 will feature free bus tours of Penn State's agricultural research areas, where new crop varieties and cultural practices are tested. Natural resource conservation practices are shown on other tours during the event.

[illegible] the most popular features at [illegible] Progress Days — the "Ask the Expert" area — will return. Penn State research and extension specialists will be available to answer questions on everything from aphids to zucchini.

More than 75,000 visitors are expected at Penn State's 1,500 acre Rock Springs Research Center, the site of the event.

The Center is nine miles southwest of State College on Route 45. It is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. each of the three days.

Farm Family Aids Research With Split Embryo Calves

BY HELEN KELCHNER
Columbia Co. Correspondent

MILLVILLE — Dennis Wolff, Columbia County, donated genetically identical twin Holstein calves to the Children's Liver Transplant Program, a donation that amounts to about $30,000.

This is a story focused in two entirely different directions, but which bear significant importance in relating to each other.

The donation of these valuable calves by Wolff was to aid in transplant research and help defray costs of transplant operations for those families who have no insurance coverage. Children patients were designated.

First– why are these calves so unusual and valuable? Genetic engineering is the reason and they are not the ordinary run-of-the-mill twins which most farmers find undesirable.

Genetic engineering is foreign and perhaps, mindboggling to the average person, but Dennis Wolff explains now the program can produce more calves from superior cows by splitting the flushed embryos. For instance, eight embryos can result from four originals: each of the split eight can be transplanted. However, there is only a 60 percent to 70 percent pregnancy rate, but even this amounts to increased birth rate numbers.

Splitting an embryo can produce genetically identical twins (this includes sex). Embryo splitting is simply dividing an embryo into two halves and is achieved by microsurgical technique.

In a fertilized 6 to 8 day embryo, a qualified veterinarian splits the mass with a micro blade. Then approximately half of the cell mass is drawn out and inserted into a dead or unfertilized egg. (It should be understood that flushed embryos are examined microscopically to sort the fertilized from the unfertilized eggs.) It is one of these unfertilized flushed embryos that is used to receive the extracted half of the cell mass.

The donor embryo remains "as is" and, with success, the two manipulated embryos will produce identical twins. What is actually happening, all the characteristics of the superior donor embryo are shared to produce two. The splitting and implanting should take no longer than two hours. Each egg is transplanted into two separate cows, not necessarily premium.

Identical twins occur naturally when an egg (for some unex-

Philadelphia Eggs

Thursday, June 26, 1986
Report Supplied by USDA

Market Comment: Prices were again higher on the large sizes, unchanged on mediums. Trade sentiment was fully steady to firm although cautious in spots. Movement remains mostly fair and about average for the latter part of the month. Floor stocks were a bit irregular, ranging adequate at some points to well-cleared and short at others, particularly on jumbos and extra large. Nest runs were no more than adequate and in instances packers have been closing early due to lack of gradable receipts. Breaker interest is usually satisfied with medium and lighter weight supplies.

Prices to retailers: sales to volume buyers, consumer grades white eggs in cartons delivered store door:

A Extra Large 57-65; A Large 55-63; A Medium 43-49.

Delmarva Poultry

Thursday, June 26, 1986

Market Comment: Demand for ready to cook whole birds and parts was mixed but generally slower and often noted as typical of a lighter Wednesday buyer interest. Most sellers noted various part items as available, particularly the breast complex. However, all were viewing pre-committed product coupled with weekend needs as creating a general confidence in condition approaching the holiday. LTL asking prices were unchanged at 65-71 cents. Live supplies were adequate to barely adequate. Weights were mostly desirable to light. Slaughter schedules were moderately heavy. The undertone remained fully steady to firm.

Estimated slaughter of broiler fryers in Delmarva:

Estimated 6/25 1,980,000; Actual 6/18 1,991,000.

Actual 6/23 1,980,000.

Average Weights 6/23 4.30, 6/16 4.36.

Eastern PA and NJ Poultry

Wednesday, June 25, 1986
Report Supplied by USDA

Market Comment: Prices were mostly unchanged and trending relatively steady for next week's activity. Offerings were light overall but coupled with previous bookings were fully sufficient for processor schedules, which were being reduced over next few weeks for the holiday and vacation. Canner demand reflected only spot improvement and was only fair at best.

Prices Paid at Farm:

Light Type Hens: 4-6, mostly 5-6.
F.O.B. Plant: 7½-8½, mostly 8.

Attention TOBACCO FARMERS

Remember frequent deep cultivation of your tobacco will promote a better root system and therefore faster growth. This is actually more valuable to growth of your tobacco crop than a direct application of Nitrogen. If you did not treat your ground for aphids you should prepare to spray for them around the beginning of July. If you did treat your ground you should still prepare to spray around middle of July. If you wait until you have an aphid problem you are too late.

The two procedures above will promote good pest free growth and will help lead to good quality green-free tobacco. As there is a larger volume of 609 tobacco planted this year we expect QUALITY of your product to be very important!

OPINION

He Knows The Importance Of Agriculture

During the interview with the Lt. Gov. Wm. Scranton this week he mentioned that Pennsylvania agriculture was the number one industry in the state. Of course, we knew that. But we were glad to know that he knew, too. In addition, Scranton said he considered agriculture the great civilizing force in history. "If you neglect ag and its affect on culture, you are really neglecting the roots of society," he said.

He looks at ag land preservation not only as a necessity to maintain food production and to pass farming onto the next generation, he also thinks ag land is a natural resource that benefits all people in the state.

Of course the state leader claims to be only a mere politician and not a prophet because he doesn't know how long the farm economic crisis will last. He thinks maybe the overall economic climate has an affect on the farm situation, too. His humanity can be foregiven when predicting the future because no one else seems to agree on where biotechnology and the volatile economic forces will take us either.

When you get to the bottom line, Scranton's scholarly study of the needs of society in relation to agriculture constitutes far more than political expediency. He recognizes that a strong and growing agriculture is not only good business but also helps provide a social climate that enhances life for everyone in Pennsylvania.

For this man who aspires to be the next governor, we really must say Bill Scranton knows the importance of agriculture to Pennsylvania.

NOW IS THE TIME

To Combine At The Proper Speed

We are in the last stages of barley harvest, and in a few weeks, the winter wheat crop should be ripe. Both of these crops require mechanical harvesting equipment and good weather. From the amount of volunteer grain I've seen growing after barley and wheat harvests, it is evident that too much grain is being left in the field.

I am concerned that high combine speed might be part of the reason that grain is thrown out with the straw. The manufacturer recommendations should be followed in this respect. Also, there are times when the grain may be too tough to combine. This is often the case when the crop is quite weedy. The important thing is to have the combine adjusted to the best of your knowledge and then drive at recommended speed. You'll need every bushel of grain and every bale of straw from your crop.

To Plan For Summer Alfalfa Seeding

It may seem early to be thinking about the late summer seeding of alfalfa; however, in another month this practice will be at hand. One of the first steps in planning for this legume seeding is to have the soil tested. If it needs lime, then the application should be made as far as possible ahead of the seeding. Alfalfa requires a neutral soil (7.0 pH); too many farmers are still guessing at the amount of lime needed.

The investment in seed and labor is going up; therefore, good advance planning is most important. In this part of the state the summer seeding should be made in late July through the first part of August. That time will be here shortly.

To Prepare For Fire Protection

Our barns are fillingup with new crops of hay, straw and grain so we need to be concerned with fire protection. We urge farmers to give some thought to water supplies for fighting fires. Many farmers indicate that their fire company would be unable to supply adequate water; this increases the risk of serious fire losses. Farms with streams nearby should have plans developed to move the fire engine within 25 feet of the water. Owners of ponds should have all weather driveways to the pond. There have been cases where buildings burned while the fire truck was mired down in the mud trying to get to the pond. It's a good idea to inform your local fire company of the sources of water supplies for fighting fires. A good water supply for fighting fires is good insurance against severe losses.

To Consider Lightning Rods On Shade Trees

How many times have you driven past a pasture field or exercise lot and noticed dozens of cattle or other livestock grouped together under one or two large trees. During severe thunderstorms, livestock will gather under these trees. If lightning strikes the tree, many of the animals will be killed. A number of farmers in the county can attest to that. For the protection of valuable livestock, we suggest that some of these individual trees be fitted with a lightning rod system. If there is a woodlot or a number of trees in the pasture, it may not be practical.

Reg. Penna Ag Dept.

YORK — When traveling in another state, have you ever seen the notation "Reg. Penna. Dept. of Agri." on a package of cookies or maybe a snack item like potato chips or pretzels. If you have, you probably have wondered what it meant or why it was there.

It means the bakery that made the cookies or snack item is licensed or registered to sell its product in Pennsylvania says Joan Lamberson, Penn State Extension Home Economist.

That explanation usually prompts another question: "Why does the notation appear on packages sold in other states and even in other countries?"

Bakers find it doesn't cost much to have the notation printed on all packages. It's easier than having a special label for products shipped exclusively to Pennsylvania. It's even a sort of status symbol for some firms since there are customers who recognize its significance.

In the early 20th century, bakeries were usually neighborhood businesses. But as modern transportation and marketing broadened and the scope of the bakery business to a national and even international level, it became necessary to reassure consumers that they were getting wholesome bakery products. As a result, the Pennsylvania Bakery Law was enacted in 1933.

The law stipulates that bakeries must be licensed to sell their products in Pennsylvania, no matter where the bakery is located in Pennsylvania, another state, Canada or even a country overseas. It affects not only those baking bread and rolls but also cookies and crackers, spaghetti and macaroni, pretzels and potato and even snacks made from cornmeal.

The license required that the firm be regularly inspected and that the plant and employees meet specified standards for cleanliness.

It would be impossible for Pennsylvania food inspectors to travel to all the plants outside the state, so working agreements are made with other states and countries to do the inspecting.

Registration does not imply approval of the product itself, but the label can assure you that the product is made in a plant that meets specified standards of cleanliness.

DAVE CARPENTER

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

Background Scripture: Jeremiah 36.
Devotional Reading: Jeremiah 17: 5-10.

Our denomination has a very fine weekly newspaper. Nevertheless, I often feel discouraged when I read it. What bothers me is not that it is filled with differences of opinion among the members of my denomination, but that there is almost no dialogue between those who hold differing viewpoints. On every issue there appears to be but two camps, and all of us are expected to join one of the two and fight to prevail.

MAYBE TURN

In our meetings, we do not really listen to each other, except to meet our opponents' arguments with a better one of ours. We applaud when we want to hear and we find ourselves becoming indignant when we hear something contrary to our position.

The trouble with all this, I believe, is that I've never known a single faction, group or party that had all the truth in its corner. Nor have I ever known one that was totally in error. No group has ever had a corner on God's revelation. It may disturb us to realize this, but God speaks to all of us — even, maybe particularly, our opponents!

Therefore, when we have differences of conviction in the church — and we will always have these — instead of simply choosing up sides and fighting to defeat our opponents, it would be to our advantage to listen to each other, for God can speak to us even through someone who disturbs and upsets us.

This was the problem that Jeremiah the Prophet faced. Because King Jehoiakim did not like Jeremiah's prophecies, he forbade Jeremiah to speak to him. Jeremiah could have taken the attitude that he'd sit back and let the King find out in time that his message had really been from God.

THE PENKNIFE

But Jeremiah's purpose was not to prove that he was right, but to persuade Jehoiakim and his people to change their ruinous ways while there was still time. We win, not when we have "the last laugh," but when God is able to speak through us to another.

So Jeremiah, debarred from going to the temple, found another way to try and reach Jehoiakim with the message of God: Baruch, his disciple was not debarred, so he could take the message to the king. "It may be," said Jeremiah, "...that everyone will turn from his evil way" (36:7).

But Jehoiakim and his ministers did not want to hear the word of God, they wanted to hear the word of approval. So, they burned the scrolls. Only later, when it was too late, did they realize that, while you may burn the scrolls, you cannot destroy the truth.

"My Bravo sprays beat anthracnose."

Joe O'Neal • Seaford, Delaware

When you listen to Joe O'Neal tell it, he's got some pretty solid reasons for counting on Bravo® fungicide.

"I know one thing, it's a lot easier to prevent anthracnose than to try and cure it.

"We spray Bravo on a 7-day interval and stay with it. Been doing that for five years now. And I can say this, if you start your Bravo on time, you'll beat anthracnose regardless of the pressure.

"It's foolish to cut back and try to save a buck because if you lose the fruit, you don't harvest the fruit. As far as I'm concerned, Bravo is the cheapest of any trip across the field."

For tough tomato diseases like anthracnose and blight, there's no better fungicide than Bravo.

As Joe O'Neal puts it, "I look at Bravo as an asset."

Bravo. Because you give it all you've got.

Come in and check out this mechanical masterpiece. Ask to see the BCS in action. BCS

"THE LEAD ALTERNATIVE"
GASOLINE TREATMENT

This new additive has been developed for the protection of engines designed to operate on leaded gasoline

Without lead your engine loses power & compression caused by valve seat recession BVP acts as a protective lubricant to prevent direct metal to metal contact that would cause high wear

Use BVP for the protection of lead without the pollution

Available in 8 oz. bottles (24 per case), 5 gallon containers & 55 gallon drums

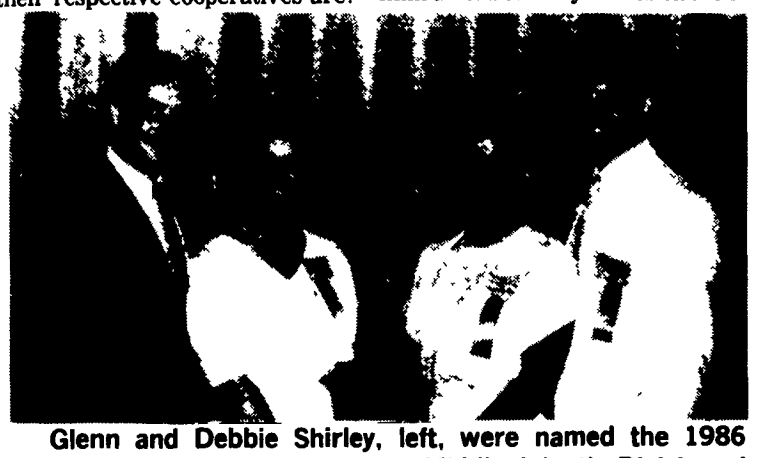
Named Young Cooperators for their respective cooperatives are: Desmond and Deborah Kayea, New Holland, for Inter-State Milk Producers' Cooperative; Tracy and Janet Stiles, Clearbrook, Virginia, for Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Association Inc.; Glenn and Deborah Shirley, Westminster, Maryland, for Middle Atlantic Division, Dairymen, Inc.; and Jeff and Judy England, Mt. Airy, Maryland, for Capitol Milk Producers Cooperative, Inc.



Glenn and Debbie Shirley, left, were named the 1986 Young Dairymen winner for the Middle Atlantic Division of Dairymen, Inc. Alternate winners are Alan and Kendra Meyers.

Desmond and Deborah Kayea milk a herd of 37 Ayrshires on their 65-acre farm near New Holland. The Double-D herd has a production average of 12,800 milk and 558 fat. Crops include corn, alfalfa and rye, primarily for feeding of the milking herd and about 30 head of replacement animals.

Runners-up in the Inter-State competition were William and Susan Schnebly, Clear Spring, Maryland. Their 125 Guernsey cattle and 250-acres at Crown Stone farm are operated in partnership with his brother. Production average on the 65 head of milking animals is at 14,087 milk and 667 fat. The cropping program includes corn, alfalfa, barley, wheat and mixed hay.

Other Inter-State finalists were Nevin and Audrey Mast, Oley, third place; Glen and Cathy Over, Williamsburg, fourth, and Carl Kreider, Quarryville, fifth.

Maryland and Virginia's winners, Tracy and Janet Stiles, own a quarter of the family's dairy and farming partnership. Their Clearbrook, Virginia, operation milks 210 head of purebred Jerseys, with a herd production average of 13,532, and crops 505 acres of ground. The Stiles have one son.

Interstate Milk Producers newest Young Cooperator couple is Desmond and Deborah Kaye, left, with William and Susan Schnebly named first runners-up.

First runner-up Steve and Barbara Wilson farm 160 acres near Port Royal. Their herd of 37 registered Holsteins has an average of 19,315 milk.

Named third and fourth place winners in the Maryland and Virginia contest were Mark and Gretchen Naugle, Carlisle, and Ralph, Jr., and Teresa Shank, Hagerstown, Maryland.

Young Dairymen winners Glenn and Debbie Shirley are part of their family farm operaton near Westminster, Maryland. Included in the Shirley farm are a herd of 63 milking Holsteins, replacement young stock, and 396 acres of cropground.

Runners-up for Dairymen's Middle Atlantic Division were Alan and Kendra Myers, of Greencastle. The couple farm with his parents, maintaining a 185-head registered Holstein and Brown Swiss herd, and 210 acres cropped. They have one daughter.

Capitol Milk Producers' winners, Jeff and Judy England, farm near Mt. Airy, Maryland. The couple farm with his uncle, maintaining a rolling herd average of 15,500 pounds of milk, with 3.6 percent test and 570 pounds of fat on 150 Holsteins. Englands' crop about 600 acres of corn, alfalfa, barley and soybeans.

Winners and alternates will represent their cooperatives through the next year at various local, state and national co-op and dairying events. The Young Cooperator program provides young members with continuing education about cooperatives and the dairy industry, and aids in surfacing and training cooperative leadership for the future.

Pennsylvania Swiss Assoc. Holds Picnic

BERNVILLE — The annual Pennsylvania Brown Swiss picnic was held recently at Victory Acres, home to Dean and Brenda Daubert, Bernville.

During the business meeting, breeders were urged to advertise on the Pennsylvania page of the Brown Swiss Bulletin. It was noted by secretary-treasurer, Audrey Queitzsch, that an unfilled page costs the Association money, while advertising could increase profits for the breeder, notifing perspective customers of the availability of breeding stock.

This year the Association will be sponsoring a Owner-Breeder trophy for the Junior Swiss exhibitor at the All-American Show.

The Youth Committee was delegated the duty of working out the details of a Swiss Ambassador Program to replace the Swiss Miss Program that was used in previous years. Target date for naming the first Swiss Ambassador is in September at the All-American Show.

To date, six consignments have been contracted for the Pennsylvania All-American Brown Swiss Sale in September. Anyone interested in making quality consignments should contact Dean Daubert, Bernville, 215-488-6508 or Gary Oakes, Mercer, 412-475-4799.

The National Brown Swiss Convention will be held this year in Buffalo, N.Y. on July 15 to 18.

National Director William "Ronnie" Daubert noted the recent change in classification rules allow a 2-year old to be classified excellent. Previously the highest attainable classification score was VG-89. To be scored excellent the cow was required to have had more than one calf.

Daubert exhibited a genuine Swiss bell and other Swiss items which he and his wife, Rhonda, picked up on their trip to Europe earlier this year. These items will be donated to the Fun Auction at the National Convention on behalf of the Pennsylvania Association.

A picnic for the western region of Pennsylvania will be held tomorrow, June 29, at the Kennedy farm in Butler.

Brown Swiss enthusiasts from across the state met at Victory Acres, home of Dean and Brenda Daubert, Bernville, to renew friendships and discuss the latest in the dairy and Swiss businesses.

Wilkinson Family Plans To Stay With Farming

BY MIRIAM GREENFIELD
Lebanon Co. Correspondent

LANDENBERG — "I'm the guy that wants to remind them about the farmer; I will be the farmer's advocate," were the only comments Leon Wilkinson had on his new role on the Milk Marketing Board. This Chester County farmer preferred instead to discuss his concern for family farms and factors influencing today's farmer.

"I'm looking out for the interests of young farmers," Wilkinson said, "to keep those 35-year-olds in business."

Wilkinson's father-in-law, Howard Wickersham, who is 86 years old, was a Guernsey breeder who started the Golden Guernsey market for milk back in 1946. Wickersham helped to set up regulations for milk marketing. Following in his father-in-law's milk marketing footsteps, Wilkinson says he is looking forward to the challenges offered by serving on the Milk Marketing Board.

Family Farms

Since his retirement, he serves as advisor for the next generation of family farmers.

"What's been so terrible in our lives that we don't want our children to follow voluntarily?" Wilkinson asks. His four sons are each involved in different aspects of farming. "It's tough now," says Wilkinson, "but those that were progressive are still in business."

Larry Wilkinson, the oldest son, moved to Gettysburg where he purchased a farm, Getty Acres. He is establishing a homestead like his father established in Chester County. He and his wife, Doris, have three sons and a daughter and they are expecting a fifth generation grandchild, which will make Leon and his wife great-grandparents.

Larry has 200 milk cows that are milked in a 17-cow turnstile parlor.

Wilkinson agrees with his son Larry's attitude when he says, "If every farmer goes out of business, we want to be the last ones to go."

Charles, the second oldest was handy with equipment and handled the farming operation. He now owns Wilkinson Farms. He planted over 1,600 acres of corn; 600 acres of soybeans; and harvested 400 acres of alfalfa.

Tom Wilkinson, the third son, is a dairy farmer in Harrisonburg, Va., and is milking 100 cows.

Lewis, the youngest son, has a custom farming operation. He provides no-till planting and does harvesting for farmers in a 15-mile radius. Lewis also leases ground from owners to work his own crops. He gives close attention to his machinery, the lifeblood of his operation, which is highly technical and costly to purchase and maintain.

Lewis keeps his farm machinery in top shape on his 24-acre farm that is used as a base for his operation and a home for his wife Mary and their young daughters, Pam and Julianne. Their farm is small, but it's neat and well-managed.

"A family farm all starts with the grass roots, husband and wife," says Leon Wilkinson. The parents instill a sense of identity and pride. He says that children's hard work has to be compensated some way. Maybe the child has to give up athletics because of the demands of farm work, but that child might get a tractor of his own. There are many forms of compensation, Wilkinson says.

Wilkinson advises parents to give their children "that opportunity to choose" their own specialty. He says, "If one of them likes mechanics, combines and tractors, then he can go into cropping and mechanization." His youngest son, Lewis, has done that.

Helping the next generation into farming continues with Wilkinson's grandchildren. His 11-year-old grandson Scott purchased a used tractor from a widow who was selling an estate. Scott's father, Charles, paid for the tractor and Scott paid his father out of earnings from working at the farm. Scott noted he got the tractor in good working order and will be fixing up two more tractors soon.

Scott's money for the tractor came from long hours of hard work. Some of the duties he performs on his father's farm are packing damp hay into trench silos and baling hay that is too dry for the trench silos.

When the decision to bale was made, Scott was right there, learning how to make decisions by using all the factors available.

Elisa, Scott's sister, also works on the farm. She is a senior at Kennett High School and was recently named Chester County's Alternate Dairy Princess. Her responsibilities on the farm include raking hay and feeding calves. Another sister, Crissy, is in high school and tends to the calves and young stock.

Diversity

"Diversity" is the key word for Wilkinson. He advises farmers to produce crops for different outlets. Farmers have to diversify to stay in business today, he explains.

Finding different outlets for crops is one way to diversify. The good quality hay can be sold to horse people or to feed the cattle while old hay goes to the mushroom farmers. That's one reason everybody has to be concerned about the mushroom farmers. They provide a good outlet for poorer quality hay and corn cobs.

"Diversified crops help you to plan and space out your planting and harvest schedule," says Wilkinson. Wilkinson Farms owns or leases about 5,000 acres. It takes about half of the production to feed the animals and the remainder is sold to the outside market.

Diversity in industry is important too, says Wilkinson. He has been a member of the Chester County Office of Economic Development for the past five years, chairman of the Board of Assessment Appeals, and adviser for the Pennsylvania and Delaware River Basin Commission — preserving water for agriculture. "It's all related," he says.

"You have to be able to pull things together to stay in operation," Wilkinson says. One of Wilkinson's enterprises, the Broad Run Valley, Inc. landholding corporation, houses bulls on a piece of ground that doesn't produce well to keep that land profitable. "The farmer has to learn to act, not react," he advises.

He says you have to be able to recognize that not everything works. They do a lot of experimenting with new methods.

Wilkinson points to a piece of machinery that was adapted to load and unload corncobs for the mushroom farms. It cost a lot of money to adapt it and it was a good idea, but then it turned out that the mushroom farmers stopped using corn cobs on the compost. So now he has an expensive machine sitting in a shed, but he says, "we'll make the needed changes," and it'll will be useful someplace else.

In addition to boarding bulls, Wilkinson farms is also boarding surrogate cows. The surrogate cows are part of a new operation where Wilkinsons lease an operating room to Genetics Unlimited. In the operating room, Dr. Jim Evans works with fertilized eggs of prize cows and bulls and transfers the embryos into the surrogate cows.

The mother cows then receive the best of feed and the best of conditions from the Wilkinsons for the remaining portion of her gestation period. They charge a set fee for the whole package, the transplanting and the boarding.

That's diversity — the key term.

Governmental Influences

"Now we have to make decisions that are heavily influenced by government decisions," Wilkinson says. He adds that the farmer has problems when the government changes its programs in the middle of a growing season, for example.

The government farm policy, says Wilkinson, is a "cheap food policy." He says government programs are there to guarantee consumers cheap food, but we have to show them that we have to stay in business for this program to continue.

The history of the land Wilkinson's family farms is a case in point. As social and economic conditions and government programs change, so does the farm operation change to adapt to new conditions, to new programs.

King Ranch, or Buck and Doe Farms, in Chester County was put together in the 1930's by one of the DuPonts. It was purchased in the 1950's by the Klieberg Family, one of the largest landholders in the U.S.

The Klieberg Family owned land in Kingsville, Texas, where they developed a breed of Santa Gertrudis herds, which were a cross between a shorthorn beef female and a Brahman bull. In the 1950's the Kliebergs sent steers up to the King Ranch where there was rich grassland to fatten them and then convenient accessibility to Philadelphis and New York markets.

When environmental regulations affected that operation, the slaughterhouses in New York and Philadelphia closed down. Beef is now slaughtered and then shipped in boxes in refrigerator trucks to the east coast markets.

Just as technological and political factors influenced government regulations and policies back in the 1930's, so are government regulations and policies being influenced by technological and political factors today.

The mushroom growers in Chester County are presently one of Wilkinson's primary concerns. Mushroom growers, threatened by price-lowering imported mushrooms from Red China and Taiwan, are having a hard struggle to stay in business. Abandoned mushroom farms dot the Avondale landscape.

A mushroom farmer still in business, but affected by the government is Bob Yeatman. He runs a family mushroom farm, C.P. Yeatman and Sons, Avondale, that hires 35 employees.

Yeatman has managed to stay in business by watching his production closely. He says he can't afford to have a bad crop. It costs 54 cents to produce a pound of mushrooms, so he can only make a small profit on the fresh market at 75 cents a pound. But the market price for canned mushrooms is lower than the cost of production. So mushroom growers are in a tight squeeze and many have already been squeezed out.

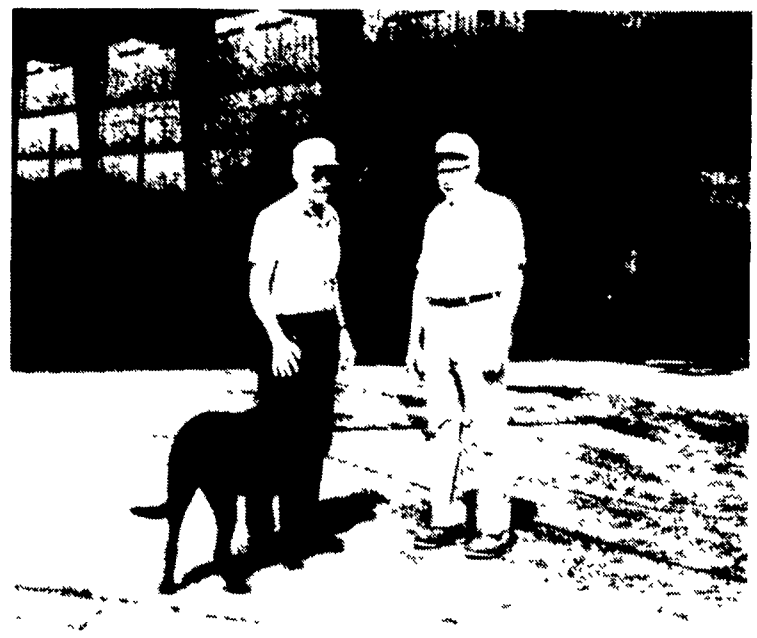
When the mushroom growers in Avondale go under, everybody else is affected too. Dealers can't sell cars and trucks. "Other merchants are also affected," Wilkinson says, "the hurt goes right down the line."

"So much of our lives are subsidized by the U.S. government — schools, aging, highways, airlines, railroads — and you don't hear that played up all the time," Wilkinson says. A farmer has to forward contract or hedge or store his corn in order to cover the price of production and make any profit.

Wilkinson has a strong sense of need for cooperative efforts, he uses the term "two-way street" to describe the farmer's relation with landowners, with homeowners in developments, and with employees.

He was concerned with traffic problems that might arise when farmers take their large machines on the road to do work among distant fields or to haul their large loads. He was concerned with employees, and said it was essential that they think in terms of "my truck," or "my machine." Wilkinson stressed how important it is for employees to take pride in their work if they are going to do a good job.

"If a farmer must leave the farm," said Wilkinson, "he will make it some way. I never heard of a farmer being a poor worker," he said. "Whether they are driving a truck or working in industry, farmers get the job done."



Leon Wilkinson (right) and Bob Yeatman discuss the plight of the mushroom farmer in Chester County at the family-run mushroom farm of C. P. Yeatman and Sons, in Avondale.

"I'm the guy that wants to remind them (the Milk Marketing Board) about the farmer; I will be the farmer's advocate," Wilkinson stated in describing his role on the Board.

Wilkinson Farms contracts to provide surrogate mothers with the best of care during the period of gestation. Here the surrogate cows are housed in loose housing with locking head gates.

N.J. FFA Dairy Judging Contest

Held in conjunction with the State 4-H judging contest, high school students will be testing their abilities of judging different breeds of animals. This contest is a true example of practical experience for FFA members, students of high school vocational agriculture. A main goal of the contest is practical training to encourage students to seek the latest advances in these industries.

Town People Come To The Farm At Bordens

BY SANDRA MOSER
Special Correspondent

CHALFONT — The first day of summer was a sunny 87 degrees in Bucks County, but Peter and Carolyn Borden didn't spend the perfect day in the fields. The Bordens celebrated Dairy month with "Dairy Days at the Farm," held at their dairy farm and store in Chalfont, Pa.

Having moved to Bucks County from New Jersey, the Bordens were disappointed with a lack of dairy month activities.

"In New Jersey," said Carolyn, "Dairy Day is a big event held on Father's Day every year. When we moved, we expected to see a similar activity and were surprised when we didn't. We had always enjoyed going ourselves so we thought there might be a need for a day-long activity here."

Carolyn's husband, Peter, agreed. "This farm is something of a community resource — we are the last farm in this town. We try to be good neighbors, but our first year was difficult. Our neighbors seemed to want plastic animals and green fields."

"It's easy for people to get the wrong ideas and impressions of a farm and the value of milk. We hope that this is a good public relations effort," added Carolyn.

The Bordens held their first open house in February, shortly after opening The Farm Dairy and Smoke House.

"Our first promotion was a lot of fun, and people seemed to enjoy it. Of course, we didn't have the beautiful weather in February, and we didn't use as much publicity, but we still had a good turn-out. So we decided to do things on a much larger scale during the summer months. We hope to make this a yearly promotion," said Carolyn.

Planning began soon after their first open house, and was almost completed as Dairy Month approached. Local newspapers did features on the Bordens, their upcoming open house, the ideas founding Dairy Month, in addition to pieces on the nutritive properties of milk.

Advertisements and fliers touting hay rides, farm tours, pony rides and a family style picnic were placed in local newspapers and the family store. "The entire day, with the exception of the pony rides and picnic, was free, and the advertisements offered a coupon for a free pony ride as an added incentive," explained Carolyn.

"We would have liked to have been able to give away milk and other freebies, but we couldn't find sponsors," said Carolyn. Glasses of milk, however, were only ten cents in the store, and half a pound of cheddar cheese was available to anyone buying a pound of lunch meat.

The open house opened with the store at 9 a.m., with customers visiting the petting zoo, located in a fenced lot in front of the store. One of the day's most popular attractions, the zoo is open to dairy store customers year-round.

"The animals used to be kept in a pen," explained Peter Borden, "but I built this lot and now the kids can walk right in with the animals. Everyone seems happy but the duck, who seems a bit homesick."

"I heard a little girl asking her father if the calves were baby horses," Peter continued. "A lot of these kinds really have no association with animals and I really think that's sad. Farming is becoming more urban, and it's the next generation that we have to start educating."

The education continued with self-guided tours of the farm. Visitors could meet Princess, an older cow tied at the side of the pasture, and indulgent to curious hands and would-be milkers. "She's a gentle cow," said Peggy Nean, the farm's p.m. milker, and one of four farm hired hands and ten store employees. "She lets the kids crawl all over her and the braver ones try to milk her. She loves the attention."

Two of Princess' herdmates, both ready to calf, occupied a small pasture in front of the house. "I just fenced that pasture off," explained Peter. "I thought we could have them calf where people could see them. Seeing a wobbly calf is easier than explaining it." A typed sheet is attached to the fencepost, explaining the dry period and freshening process.

Actual milking of the 145-head Holstein herd could be seen from an observation deck above the milking parlor. Typewritten notes, taped on the glass windows, explained milking, letdown, teat dipping, and sanitation.

A second set of notes explained the Holstein breed, the cows' diet, and some facts about milk jugging and storage.

Outside, next to the cow lots, samples of feed — corn silage, ground corn, 38 percent protein, brewer's grain — leaned against a corn crib and was explained on a sheet.

Samples of machinery, both antique and current, dotted the Bordens' lawn. "We wanted people to understand the machinery and their uses, not just to stare at the little fanny flag they're following on the highway," explained Carolyn.

The host family at the farm dairy open house are Peter, Josh and Carolyn Borden, from Bucks County.

Diane Moyer, Bucks County Dairy Princess, gives "Real Seal" stickers to the children at the Bordens Dairy Day celebration last Saturday.

The Bordens were not the only educators: an exhibit area was set up next to the milkhouse. Displays included the "Myths of Farming," presented by the Pennsylvania Farmers Association; Tricia McKenna represented Sire Power and explained artificial insemination and bull services; Chris Hess, area DHIA supervisor explained milk monitoring; while Bucks' County Ag Agent gave nutritional information on milk. Dairy princess Diane Moyer affixed real seals to curious youngsters.

A free movie, "The Day the Milk Stopped," sponsored by Longacre Electric and Surge milking equipment was shown. Representative Larry Eshleman explained milking systems and cow background.

"The last time I thought about milking," commented one visitor from Lansdale, "was when Aunt Jenny milked cows by hand. Every other squirt went to the cats! I can see that milking is much cleaner now."

Frank Hauns, Doylestown, said his 4-year-old daughter Amanda enjoyed the day. "We saw the advertisement and thought we'd come out. Amanda seemed really impressed by the milkers. She kept looking at it like . . . 'Is that really where it comes from?'"

"We wanted people to have fun, and I believe we accomplished that," summarized Carolyn. Her 17-year-old son, Josh, drove a hayride around the farm every half hour, explaining the fields and crop management.

"We couldn't have asked for a nicer day, or for nicer crowds," commented Carolyn. The Bordens estimate that 1,200 to 1,500 people enjoyed Dairy Day, and 100 people were served spit roast on a high pasture overlooking the farm.

In the hot sun cones of homemade ice cream were consumed, often immediately after watching an in-store demonstration of ice cream making; gallons of milk were purchased, and, hopefully, to the urban neighbors, farming and farmers became a little more understandable.

Eastern Milk Cooperative Hosts Ag Meeting

PAINTED POST, N.Y. — "Clearly, the long-run prospects for the dairy termination program are superior to either the milk diversion program or substantially lower price supports," Joseph Mathis, economics and government relations manager for Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative speculated.

Although he noted his forecasts are "tenuous at best" for 1987, Mathis reasoned that milk production next year can possibly fall "below 1986 levels as the DTP and lower price supports prices take effect. Nonetheless," he continued, "the response of farmers not in the program will be the key to the long run success of the Food Security Act of 1985.

Milk prices could rise greater than normal seasonal increases, if supplies are shorter than normal, Mathis said. "However, the trend in milk prices over the next two years clearly points downward. Nonetheless, expectations of higher prices in the short run certainly will do nothing to discourage milk production," he stated.

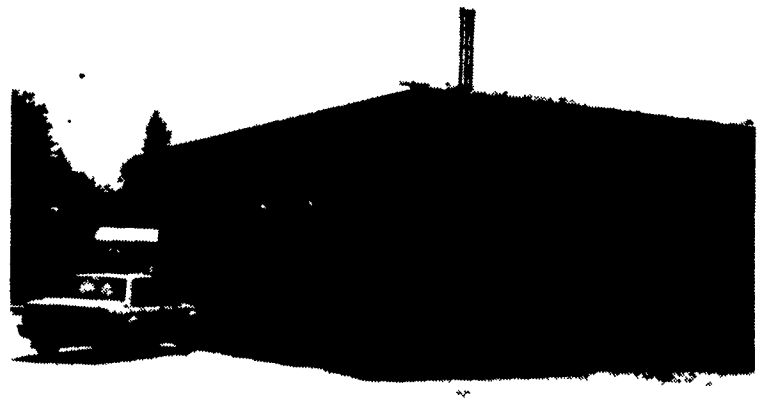
National supply and demand projections of Andy Novacovich, Cornell University, show "a slight increase in marketings this year, about 1 percent, from last year. Marketings in the second half likely will fall below year earlier levels.

"Considering the small participation in New York and Pennsylvania, we won't see much of a decrease in production. A forecast for slightly higher to stable milk production here during 1986 seems reasonable," Mathis reported.

Commercial sale of dairy products are expected to continue significant increases. Novacovich expects sales to exceed last year's level by another 3 percent, the Eastern economist explained.

Also expected to increase by 3 percent is the production of non-participants in the DTP, Mathis noted.

However, "Government purchases of surplus dairy products are expected to fall to about 10 billion pounds of milk equivalent, to three-fourths of the 13.2 billion pounds removed last year. Most of these removals already have taken place. Additional removals probably will be very low or non-existant as the year progresses," he added.



Eastern Milk Producer's four dairy stores have been operating with great success. Plans are currently being finalized to add more stores, such as this store in Wellsboro, Pa., where products using co-op members' milk are sold.

Mathis made these remarks at Eastern's annual agri-business dinner where the various department heads reported on their departments activities

One of the most encouraging reports was presented by Thad Woodward of the Products Division Manager. Sales in this division exceeded the $7 million level for 1986, rising from the $3 million level in 1982.

Route trucks in 11 states and four stores are responsible for the total sales. Eastern dairy stores, which sell products made with members' milk, have been so successful that plans for additional stores are being finalized.

One of the products sold in the Eastern stores is Leprino cheese, made in the Waverly, N.Y., cheese plant.

Larry Jensen, senior vice president of Leprino Foods commented on the Waverly facility, "It is a positive and beneficial venture for both Eastern and Leprino."

Leprino Foods is actually three business units, Jensen explained. One area is the cheese manufacturing operation which is the largest mozzarella manufacturer in the world.

A food service distribution center supplies "everything from ashtrays to anchovies" to food service operators.

In order to ensure prompt deliver to its customers of both cheese and food service items, Leprino created Leprino Transportation Company in 1973. By owning a fleet of trucks, controll over all factets of the distribution process is maintained.

Leprino has successfully worked with the town of Waverly to insure the proper disposal of the waste products of the cheese making process.

Leprino's joint venture in 1978 of the cheese manufacturing facility is partially responsible for the healthy report card in all areas of Eastern's operations. The remaining credit belongs to the management.

It was evident at evening's end of the appropriateness of Eastern and Leprino's slogan, "Partners in Progress."

Keister's Filled To Capacity For 5th Ag Days Celebration

BY CRAIG BINGMAN
Snyder County Correspondent

MIDDLEBURG — Close to 26,000 people attended the annual Ag Days at Keister's Auction here on June 17. Donald and Walter Keister, sponsors of the Ag Days, "beef up" their weekly auction once a year to promote Pennsylvania Agriculture. This year, their fifth promotion, proved to be their best.

The 1986 Ag Days celebration, located 3 miles east of Middleburg, Snyder County, treated visitors to a feast of farm delicacies. Beef and pork roasts, chicken barbeques, dairy products, and fresh fruits adorned the many stands set up for the event.

"We couldn't make the beef and pork fast enough this year," said Walt Keister, coordinator of the event. "We roasted six 230 pound hogs and went through 15 to 30 hams." Also, 1,700 halves of chicken were barbequed as well as the same number of beef sandwiches sold.

State Secretary of Agriculture Richard Grubb kicked off the steer sale where 500 were sold as compared to the usual 200 to 250. Also present were Luther Snyder, deputy secretary, and Gordon Hiller, the new regional director for the Department of Agriculture in Williamsport.

Visitors to the event had plenty of opportunity to sample Pennsylvania foods, browse through the large flea market, and admire the many displays from area farm organizations under the 240-foot tent.

As Secretary Grubb toured the Ag Days, he related to the media how impressed he was with the promotion of agriculture at this event. "A promotion like this tells consumers to buy local," he said. "Pennsylvania Agriculture is our number one industry and it has to do a better job at promoting itself."

Also present at the Ag Days were the many queens and princesses representing their areas of agriculture. Those royalty present were: Cattleman's Queen and Princesses, Red Cherry Queen, Lamb and Wool Queen and Princess, Grape Queen, Honey Queen, Draft Horse and Mule Association Queen, Strawberry Queen, and Dairy State and S.U.N. Area Princesses. The girls served VIP's, media, and other officials their respective dishes at a special brunch to represent their agricultural organization. They were also on hand during the day to offer to the public samples of their products.

Since 1982, the Ag Days celebration has grown remarkably well due to publicity, coordination, and the cooperation of the weather. So successful was this, the fifth year, that previously unused parking facilities were filled to capacity. "I think we're about as big as we want to get," said Keister.

Dairymen Find New Product Increases Production

KENNEDYVILLE — With the top-producing herd in Maryland's Kent County already to his credit, it didn't seem likely that Allan Wright would be able to squeeze three more pounds of milk from each of his cows in a matter of weeks.

But that's exactly what happened on Kalangail Farms near Kennedyville when Wright took the advice of a neighboring dairy manager and tried a new product called Bio-Boost.

"Within a couple of weeks my cows went from an average of 65 pounds of milk a day up to 68 pounds," he reported about his herd that is now boasting a rolling average of over 22,000 pounds. "I was pleasantly surprised at how well it worked."

Bio-Boost is a combination of volatile fatty acids, vitamins and other nutrients and enzymes. It is being used with similar results by a growing number of farmers from the hills of Kentucky, Virginia and Tennessee to Maryland's Eastern Shore and New York.

Produced by ROMAK Nutrition of Kennedyville, Md., Bio-Boost is coming available to dairymen through their feed suppliers in the Mid-Atlantic region and parts of the South.

The product's remarkable results are of no surprise to Dr. Marshall E. McCullough, a dairy nutrition specialist at the University of Georgia for 33 years, and a frequent writer for Hoard's Dairyman.

At the university's experiment station, Dr. McCullough fed volatile fatty acids to cows as far back as 1968, when he first recorded their ability to dramatically increase production.

The acids are found naturally in a cow's rumen, reported the recently retired expert, but a product such as Bio-Boost is able to stimulate their production and effectiveness in helping the cow make better use of her feed.

"A cow is a factory," McCullough said. "And like in any other manufacturing process, when there is an increase in the rate of production, there has to be an increase in the rate of inputs in the factory. That's what is being done with this product. The efficiency of the factory is being increased."

He emphasized, however, that feeding a product like Bio-Boost won't turn an inferior feeding program into a good one. "There's no free lunch in this business," he said. "Farmers have got to incorporate this product with a sound feeding program. That's when they'll see results."

In addition to higher milk production, farmers feeding Bio-Boost has noticed that their cow's manure is finer in texture with less grain, an indication that the digestive process is getting more out of the feed.

"The first thing I noticed was that the fiber in the manure was really fine," said Jonas Stoltzfus of Millington, who began using Bio-Boost in his herd of 55 cows about a year ago. "In less than one week, there was a lot less grain coming through in the manure."

Between January 1985 and April 1986, Stoltzfus' rolling herd average surged from 15,468 pounds of milk and 575 pounds of butterfat to 18,554 pounds of milk and 679 pounds of butterfat.

Because he also changed his ration during that time, Stoltzfus could not assess exactly how much of the 3,000 pound milk increase was attributable to Bio-Boost, but he did say, "I'm personally convinced it increased production.

"It's not magic. You have to have the rest of the ration balanced, too, but the number of times I did run out, I could always tell the difference immediately, in the texture of the manure, as well as in production. I'm confident that it has been cost-effective."

Wright, whose rolling herd average increased about 2,000 pounds to 22,002 in just one year, figured that at least 1,000 pounds of the improvement was due to feeding the new product.

"It's easy to get an increase like that when your cows are only milking 45 to 50 pounds a day, but when your production level is that high, that's an impressive increase. I recommend it."

Like Stoltzfus, he also noticed the difference in manure texture. "It looked creamier," he said. "That doesn't mean anything in the milk tank, but it does show that something is happening."

The most well-documented production increase was on Fair Hill Farms in Chestertown, owned by the Fry family. With 520 cows on test, milk production per cow soared five pounds a day in just three weeks.

When Edwin Fry began his test on December 27, the Fair Hill cows were producing just over 59 pounds of milk per day. By Jan. 16, the average was up to over 64 pounds.

At Rockingham Mill in Harrisonburg, Va., sales manager Steve Collins reported that 11 herds began feeding Bio-Boost about three months ago.

"The farmers have been seeing a three to four pound milk increase pretty much across the board," Collins said. "They saw the increases within three weeks. Some saw it in less than two weeks."

Alan Chiles, a dairyman in Auburn, Ky., who is being supplied with Bio-Boost by Music City Supplements in Nashville, said his 55 cows have upped their production between 2.5 and 3 pounds of milk each at a time when they would normally be slacking off.

"They usually drop off pretty fast at this time of year," he said, "so I'm probably seeing more increase than that."

Another benefit farmers feeding Bio-Boost have seen is greater forage bunk life.

"The forage doesn't seem to spoil as quickly, especially in the summer," reported Donald Burdette of Chestertown. "Plus, the cows seem to clean it up a little better."

Which brings up the point of palatability. Dairymen have reported that the cows like the product, and, if anything, eat more feed when it has been added to the ration.

Specific testing on a fistulated cow at Fair Hills in Maryland revealed increased salvia production in the rumen, another indication that digestion is being improved by Bio-Boost. Laboratory testing verified that the increased digestibility results in proper rumen pH, and the bottom line is more energy intake directed towards milk production.

Fair Hills Dairy Manager, Roger McKnight, began researching the role of volatile fatty acids in dairy cattle nutrition when he became aware of a product called IsoPlus, developed by Eastman Kodak Co.

"We developed Bio-Boost because the Kodak product was unobtainable." McKnight explained. "But I think I've come up with something even better."

The primary ingredients in Bio-Boost work differently than do those in IsoPlus, and at least one farmer who tried both was left with no doubt about which was more effective.

"I was on IsoPlus for six weeks and I didn't see any difference," reported dairyman Burdette. "But when I went on Bio-Boost, I saw a big increase and the butterfat percentage stayed the same. I was really surprised."

McKnight recommends feeding 2¼ ounces of Bio-Boost per cow per day by incorporating it with the total mixed ration or putting it directly onto the forage. If it's mixed with the grain, he recommends that the grain be top dressed on the forage.

To farmers starting with the product, for the first four days McKnight recommends using only half of the suggested rate to make the change more gradual for the cows.

His experience has shown that a response is evident within a maximum of three weeks.

From a cost standpoint, Bio-Boost is very economical, McKnight noted. Although prices for the product may vary from area to area, he estimates that the average cost is just under 20 cents per cow per day.

Farmers interested in trying Bio-Boost should contact their feed supplier for information on availability.

Hog Numbers Plunge

WASHINGTON D.C. — Hog numbers plunged to an 11-year low as of June 1, the USDA announced Monday.

Experts predicted a normal 2 percent decline from last year in the hog population instead of the 7 percent drop indicated by the USDA survey. The number of female hogs kept for breeding declined 9 percent from a year earlier.

As a result of the Monday report, livestock and meat futures soared the permissable limit this week in anticipation of shrinking red-meat supplies.

In the last few years there has been little profit in the hog business, therefore hog producers have severely limited expansion, according to H. Louis Moore, Penn State professor of agricultural economics.

He added that in recent months there has been no expansion due to decreasing prices. Moreover, publicity from the dairy herd buyout program produced a detrimental psycological effect, causing beed and hog prices to drop even further. With the government adding to the meat supply in this manner, many hog producers felt there was no future in the hog industry.

With the lastest USDA report and the futures market up, optimism has returned to the hog market.

Moore speculated that with a favorable corn crop and low prices on corn, producers will begin to think about holding back breeding stock. Offspring from these pigs will not hit the market for seven to ten months, creating a short supply of pork for this period.

Despite the lower pork supplies prices are expected to be held in check by an abundance of beef and poultry.

1986 Keystone Tour Held

The 1986 Keystone Tour visited the John Hess Farms on Wednesday. Test plots on the farm were used to show the effectiveness of herbicide applicaitons.

MAYTOWN – The John Hess Farms at Maytown, Lancaster County, was the site of the 1986 Keystone Tour sponsored by the ag division of Ciba-Geigy. These farms (86 acres in one and 103 acres in the other) produce livestock, corn, barley, wheat, tobacco and tomatoes, and were used as the location of test plots to show the effectiveness of herbicide applications.

In the opening session at the Rock Point Park, E.D. Kuhn told the farmers and field representatives gathered for the tour that he is testing over 100 herbicide treatments on triazine resistant, pigweed and lambsquarter. "We are committed to research and development that will find new, effective herbicides to control not only triazine resistant weeds, but also other problem weeds such as Shattercane," Kuhn said. Kuhn listed the following strategies for managing herbicide resistant weeds.

1. When using single site of action herbicides with a history of resistance, combine with other herbicide chemistry to improve or lengthen control.
2. Do not use higher than label rates of residual herbicides or more frequent applications of postemergence and short residual herbicides than needed.
3. Rotation of crops will tend to reduce the favorable conditions for problem weeds.

The participants of the tour were guests of the company at an ox roast back at the park.

USDA Buyout Report

WASHINGTON, D.C. – The sixth weekly report on the buyout was released by the USDA on Wednesday.

USDA figures show an estimated 24,200 head of cattle in the program were slaughtered during the week ending June 2. This figure includes all cows, heifers and calves in the DTP, according to the USDA spokesman.

An estimated cumulative total of 447,000 head have been slaughtered since the beginning of the DTP on April 1.

Meat purchases by the government reached 11.9 million pounds for the week ending June 21. This meat was purchased in the form of 3,529,764 pounds of canned beef, and 8,354,500 pounds of bulk-frozen ground beef.

The cumulative total meat purchases is 148,718,852 pounds.

Cumulative total of dairy cows that were reported for export since April 1 is 11,675 head. This total is expected to increase as foreign countries are preparing to take advantage of the Export Enhancement program.

West Virginia's Dairy Princess Promotes The Dairy Industry

BY DEBBIE STILES-RENZI
West Virginia Correspondent

SUMMIT POINT, W. Va. — Whether she's promoting dairy products in a shopping mall, being part of the national FFA dairy judging team or milking in the evening at her family's farm in Jefferson County, West Virginia's 1985-86 Dairy Princess Loretta Bane likes to be in the thick of things.

Since winning the title last August, 19-year-old Loretta has added public appearances to promote dairy products to her already busy schedule. Recently, she participated in a mall milk giveaway at Meadowbrook Mall near Bridgeport. While there, she talked about why she thinks it's important to promote the dairy industry.

That's (dairying) how I make my living, and how my dad makes his living," Loretta explains. Her father and his twin brother own and operate Ban-Harman Farm, a 750-acre dairy in Summit Point, near Charlestown. Loretta works on the farm along with her mother, brother and sister-in-law. A sister works on a nearby Ayrshire farm.

Loretta owns six cows and six heifers; Ban-Harman Farm, a Holstein operation, milks between 250 and 300 head, with 300 replacement heifers. They grow and mix all their own feed, with the exception of molasses used.

The Banes also farm 1,200 to 1,300 acres in addition to the land they own. They've been in business for over 40 years. "Since my dad was about 4 years old," Loretta explained.

Loretta has been assisting with the evening milking regularly since she was 15 years old. A member of the Junior Holstein Association, she has also been active in 4-H and FFA.

She and her brother John, and her sister Lori have each won Over-All FFA Grand Champion Showman at the West Virginia Black and White Show. Loretta has attended the 4-H Congress in Washington, D.C., for dairy and has competed as a member of the National FFA Dairy Judging Team. To qualify for nationals, Loretta placed first in state competition.

Loretta graduated from Jefferson High School June 12 and plans to attend Shepherd College in Shepherdstown to major in business.

Although the job of dairy princess involves a heavy load of travel, speech making and milk pouring, Loretta says she entered because. "I thought I could do a good job of letting people know dairy is important."

Mindful of the present buyout situation in the dairy industry, Loretta has these comments on the issue and how it has affected those in her area. "In a way it (the buyout program) is good, and in a way, it's not," she said. "Over half of the dairy farms in my county are going out. Of the 35 farms we have, I think we'll lose about 15 of them."

The situation worries Loretta a little. "The bigger farms are going to get bigger and the smaller farms aren't going to be missed," she said.

Farm Fair Measure

Senator Noah Wenger announced that the Senate has unanimously approved a measure he has sponsored which establishes a separate law for the operation and administration of Pennsylvania's agricultural fairs.

"Currently, county agricultural fairs and funding for these events are controlled under the Harness Racing Act," explained Wenger. "Because of this, modifying fair operations and making funding changes have been difficult. Amendments containing much-needed modifications for fairs are often bogged down with controversial horse racing reforms which hinder passage and delay changes."

Wenger's bill would provide Pennsylvania fairs with a more clearly defined funding procedure and eligibility requirements. Today, fairs are supported through the Fair Fund which reimburses local fair organizations for operating expenses. The fund is contained in the state's General Fund Budget. This year, more than $2.75 million will be granted to community agricultural fairs across the state.

Fair Fund monies are distributed through grants according to the size of the fair, the largest grant being $12,000. Under Wenger's bill, maximum grants will be increased to $14,000. Also, grants will be made available to statewide agricultural organizations which contribute to the development of agriculture or agribusiness.

The measure also establishes an advisory committee to periodically review fair operations and make recommendations on the disbursement of funds. The seven-member committee will consist of the Secretary of Agriculture, the Chairman of the Senate and House Agriculture and Rural Affairs committees, three representatives of agricultural fairs and a member of the public.

"Pennsylvania fairs provide a showcase for Pennsylvania's agricultural community while at the same time offering wholesome family entertainment," said Wenger. "The enactment of the Fair Bill will ensure that these events remain an important tradition."

For The Love of Ice Cream

Fran Palm, Perry County Dairy Princess; Jennifer Kay Weimer, Adams County Dairy Princess; and Patti Lytle, Dauphin County Dairy Princess manned the toppings table at Tuesday's event, helping the participants to create their own unique sundae.

HARRISBURG — Over 7,000 people consumed 600 gallons of ice cream in three hours at Ice Cream Sundae Tuesday held on the steps of the Capitol building.

Ice cream lovers stood in line, 25 deep at times, on either side of three dipping booths. Three dippers in each booth scooped a variety of tantalizing flavors while dairy princesses provided topping at two tables that held the tempting final ingredients for a make-your-own sundae.

"Pennsylvania ranks second among the states in ice cream manufacturing and we dairymen are proud of it," Don Duncan, chairman of the sponsoring Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program, stated in explaining the joint ice cream promotion with the Keystone Ice Cream Association. Members of the Ice Cream Association donated the ice cream and toppings for the festival.

Coral Scranton, wife of Lt. Gov. William Scranton, gave the ice cream promotion an official send off at noon by reading a proclamation designating July 13 as Ice Cream Day in Pennsylvania and July as Ice Cream Month.

On hand to celebrate Ice Cream Sundae Tuesday were Sam Shannon, president of the Keystone Ice Cream Association and co-sponsors with Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program; Richard Grubb, secretary of agriuclture; Jill Kutz, Pennsylvania Second Runner-up Dairy Princess; and Caitlin, Elizabeth, Julien and Carol Scranton.

Elsie and Beauregard Entertain in Wellsboro

WELLSBORO — Elsie, the best-loved Jersey cow in America came to Wellsboro, Tioga County, to celebrate her 50th birthday and the 45th annual Laurel Festival.

Joining Elsie, the Borden Cow, in her trip to Pennsylvania was her 3-week-old son, Beauregard, sired by that infamous bull "Elmer."

Making the trip possible was the Wellsboro Plant of Borden, Inc. who reportedly went "whole cow" and spent over $3,000 to bring Elsie and Beauregard to the Festival for four days.

Thursday, June 17, Elsie, Beauregard and two human attendants arrived at the Festival in Elsie's "Cowdillac" — a special white and yellow tractor trailer rig containing a fully equipped barn boudoir.

This 950-pounds, fawn-colored Jersey cow entertained visitors at her homey boudoir which featured two stalls, one for Elsie that looks like a canopied double bed, and the other an oversized crib for Beauregard.

Next to each sleeping accomdations was hoofware for the bovines. Beauregard had four sneakers attached to roller skates, while Elsie had just stepped out of four plush bedroom slippers.

The Elsie which visitors to the Laurel Festival were privileged to meet, alias KEK Guess Marie Lois, is the 23rd Jersey to represent the Borden Dairy Division and Eagle Brand sweetened condensed milk.

Originally conceived as a cartoon personality in the 1930's; Elsie appeared in medical journals and newspaper ads telling folks about the nutritional value of milk.

Unlike most cartoon characters, Elsie became a live personality during the 1939 World's Fair in New York City. When the fair opened, the focal point of the elaborate Borden exhibit was a modern automatic milking machine, the "Rotolactor," where 150 cows were milked each day.

But the question fair visitors asked most often was which of those 150 cows was Elsie. In order to avoid disappointing the crowds, a 7-year-old blueblooded Jersey cow named "You'll Do's Lobelia," was dressed in a lavishly embroidered green blanket and milked separately twice a day.

The live Elsie was such a hit at the 1939 World's Fair that Borden became convinced she could be the company's super sales lady and a star, of the milky way, was born.

In 1940, the live Elsie made a movie, "Little Men" with Jack Oakie and Kay Francis. She, ironically, played the part of a cow. During World War II, Elsie sold war bonds, $10 million worth.

An attempt in the sixties was made to retire Elsie and develop a new trademark, but a survey showed the friendly cow was the best known and loved trademark in the country.

In 1971, an animation film house began developing a new cartoon Elsie for television commercials. The live Elsie, Nor Lea Chiefs Golden Etta Kriket, was reactiviated for the official opening of the Borden Ice Cream Parlor at Walt Disney World in Florida in 1972, and to greet the governor of Ohio and mayor of Columbus when Borden transferred its corporate headquarters to Ohio's capital city.

Elsie's popularity with a new generation of customers has taken her to the Kentucky Derbyd, Indianapolis 500, Rose Bowl Parade and even to television for guest appearances.

Now, Elsie spends 11 months each year in her "Cowdillac" covering thousands of miles coast-to-coast across the continental United States as well as Hawaii, Puerto Rico and Canada. Not a bad schedule for a "50-year-old" cow!

Beauregard, a 3-week-old Jersey bull calf sired by "Elmer", peers at visitors to the 45th annual Laurel Festival in Wellsboro from his oversized crib.

Between naps in her canopied-double bed and keeping a watchful eye on her son, Beauregard, Elsie was the cordial hostess at her boudoir to visitors of the Laurel Festival.

The Dairy Business

Heifer Heat Detection

A significant study on the effects of feeding schedules on heat detection was published several years ago. The study was done at the Agricultural Research Institute of Northern Ireland in 1983. It is worthy of attention, not because of the awakening we have recently had by the Irish dairy in Georgia, but because it points out a very usable principle for us all.

When fed their grain in the morning, as many of us just naturally do, it was found that most of the heat activity occurred at night, between 8 p.m. and 6 a.m. We seldom are inclined to observe the heifers for heat at that time of day. The secret seems to lie in when the grain is fed.

Maybe one of the reasons we too often rely on a young bull to breed the heifers is because they are too hard to observe in heat. Heifers are somewhat quieter than older cows and therefore harder to see in heat. If it occurs at night, or when we are not inclined to look closely for it, heats are easily missed.

The study done by the Irish researchers found that simply by changing the time of day that grain or concentrates are fed to heifers, will affect the time of day that most heats are observed. When grain is fed in the evening, more than twice as many heats were easily detected. This increase in detected heats is because the heifers were more obviously active during the daylight hours, when someone was around to see it.

As reported in Hoards Dairyman, July 25, 1983, there were 106 heats observed when grain was fed in the evening, against only 32 heats observed when the grain was fed in the morning. These heats were observed between 6 a.m. and noon. Between noon and 6 p.m. there were 107 heats observed after evening feeding, compared to only 56 observed after morning feeding. The average is more than two-to-one in favor of evening feeding.

It doesn't necessarily mean that the heifers don't come in heat when fed in the morning. They are just more active at an inconvenient time of day for observation.

Who wants to spend the night in the heifer barn, looking for heats? Unless we install a TV monitor in the heifer barn, and watch for heats from the living room sofa few people are willing to spend their evenings in this practice.

It shouldn't be too hard to change the heifer feeding routine from morning to evening. If we can double the number of heats observed, and consequently get a few more heifers bred on time, the change will be worthwhile.

Since the study was done by unbiased research, using randomly selected heifers of mixed breeds, the effect of feeding time on estrus observation does not seem to be genetic or breed related. It might be worth a change in feeding time, if you are having trouble catching heifers in heat, just because of off-time activity.

30 YEARS AGO
THIS WEEK

—Although some scattered parts of Lancaster county are dry, hot weather has brought corn and tomatoes right along according to associate county agent Harry S. Sloat. Hay making is generally in full swing. Cherry picking is underway. And combining of barley started Tuesday.

—July 1 will be the official transfer date of the new Pennsylvania State Universtiy experimental farm north of Landisville. On Tuesday some 20 persons toured small grain plots and heard reports from exports in the field.

—Thirteen steers died early last week on the farm of Lester High, R1 Denver, on a pasture that had been sprayed earlier with a weed killer. Harry S. Sloat, Associate Lancaster County Agricultural Agent warns that sprays such as this can be dangerous up to two months and much care must be used to prevent livestock from coming in contact with the vegetation where chemical residue remains.

—An increase of 26 percent in the number of chicks turned out by commercial hatcheries in Pennsylvania during May compared with the same month last year was announced today by the State Department of Agriculture. About half of the May hatch of 10,057,000 chicks went to the increasing broiler-fryer trade according to federal and state surveys.

Investor Awards Presented by Jersey Club

COLUMBUS, Ohio — National All-Jersey Inc., the milk marketing arm of the American Jersey Cattle Club, recently announced winners in their Campaign Equity's Ten and Five Year Investor Awards.

The Ten Year Investor Award is given to those dairymen who have invested money in National All-Jerseys's Equity Program for 10 continuous years. The Equity Program was launched in June, 1976.

The awards are in recognition and appreciation of longtime support and promotion of equitable milk pricing. This large number (88 dairymen nationally) of ten-year investors shows the dedication Jersey dairymen have to Campaign Equity.

The Equity Program has been a pioneer in promoting and developing a more equitable milk pricing system. A pricing system that includes payment for protein, in addition to fat. Today, most major cooperatives and cheese plants price all or part of their milk using some form of "Equity Pricing."

In March of this year, the first Federal Order hearing was held to consider implementation of a component pricing system into the Great Basin Marketing area. As a result of Equity Pricing, Jersey dairymen received over an additional $20 million in 1985.

The Equity Program is also very involved in working towards the adoption of higher minimum standards for fluid milk. The Equity Program is playing an active role in lobbying for minimum standards legislation on both the state and national levels.

In addition to California, which has enjoyed higher standards for over 20 years, two of the nation's leading dairy states, Minnesota and Wisconsin, have passed bills increasing their state standards contingent upon surrounding states doing likewise.

Recieving the award from New Jersey is John Bishop VI, Columbus.

Split Embryo Calves

plained reason) is pinched into two parts as it enters the uterus. This happens rarely.

By genetic manipulation, the embryo splitting offers two main advantages. First, it increases the potential number of offspring per flush. Second, producing genetically identical twins could have a positive influence on the cost and time required to conduct progeny testing. Progeny testing amounts to a five year investment in which a breeder's money is tied up in valuable stock with AI producers.

Wolff presently has 300 bulls in programs found in more than a dozen foreign countries and many of the more notable studs in this country- ABS, Sire Power, Atlantic Breeder, L A B C, Worldwide, Golden Genes and many more. Through genetic engineering, time saved is money earned.

Embryo splitting, flushing, implanting and marketing of superior Holsteins is routine on the Wolff farm. However, the donation of the valuable twin calves to the transplant program was made for another even more important and unrelated reason.

This is the second part of the story.

The Wolffs, Dennis and Lois want to make the public aware of the critical and chronic shortage of organ donors. A donor organ holds the precious gift of life for critically ill patients with diseased organs.

Dennis and Lois are painfully aware of what a donor organ menas. Their 19-month-old baby. Nicholas, was diagnosed as having bilary atresia when he was six-weeks old. This mysterious liver disease strikes one out of every 15,000 babies and there is no successful treatment.

The Wolffs have traveled from one end of the country to the other hoping to find a hospital that could help before Nicholas became too ill for an operation. But, two factors blocked a quick solution; Nicholas was not yet critical and there is a lack of suitable donors of his age and size.

This age group is also the most safety monitored of our society and therefore are a rare donor source.

Only one hospital placed Nicholas at the top of their transplant list, Minnesota Hospital and Clinic of Minneapolis.

The family kept a constant telephone availability waiting for a call from this hospital or any of the others they had contacted. On May 27 at 4 p.m., their months of tension came to an end. A call from the Minnesota hospital stated that a donor liver was available.

Six hours later, Nicholas was in the Minneapolis hospital being prepared for surgery. After an eight hour operation, the little transplant patient emerged from the ordeal in good shape.

A week after the operation, Nicholas was perched in a little red wagon roaming the hospital halls with only the inconvenience of an intravenous tube. "He is active, walking around and seems very normal," a report his father was happy to call back to Pennsylvania.

Baby Wolff will be kept in the hospital for a couple of weeks to monitor rejection and infection, both routine ailments associated with the transplant. When medication is regulated to the surgeons satisfaction, Nicholas can return home.

The donor liver was from a 13-month-old infant who died in a Memorial Day car crash in Colorado. It was obtained through the St. Paul chapter of the American Red Cross.

Through the donor promotion effort being waged by the Wolffs, they have learned that professionals such as nurses and doctors are often reluctant or lack training in the method by which the family of a possible donor can be approached. For instance, if a young child has been declared brain dead because of an accident, the tremendous emotion at that time for both the family and hospital staff is overwhelming.

New York state has a law making it mandatory for hospitals to have trained people on their staff for just this situation.

Pennsylvania has introduced a similar bill which is presently in the Health and Welfare Committee of the Senate. The Wolffs urge people to write their state legislators to support House Bill 90.

Experience has shown that those families who agree to organ donation from a deceased loved one experience great comfort and consolation as time passes. It's a therapy that cannot be provided by any other means.

Helen Kelchner

Lancaster Farming's new Columbia County correspondent is Helen Kelchner of Berkwick.

Helen says her freelance writing and photography grew out of a need to keep busy at "something other than housekeeping." When her four children were through high school, she began to take her writing and photography seriously.

Helen was born and lived on a farm in Lewisburg for 16 years. In 1940 her family moved to Berwick, where she finished school, married and raised a family. "My husband's business did not lend itself to rural living, so my farming background lay dormant until several years ago," Helen said.

Although her first sales were nature photography and feature stories for the Harrisburg Patriot, Helen says she found her favorite subjects in a farm setting. "Having lived in what I call the 'dark ages' of farming, I had much to learn in the computer age where some dairy operations are automated from the silo to the emptying of the manure pit and all points in between," Helen notes.

Draft horses are one of Helen's pet subjects, especially the few owners and breeders who continue to use horses as cultivation power.

Helen is 60 years old and would like to remain active as long as she has a story to write. Her work has appeared in the Harrisburg Patriot, the Reading Eagle, Baltimore Sun, the Evener, Draft Horse Journal (Iowa), Small Farmers Journal (Eugene, Oregon), Horse Illustrated, and Dog Illustrated (California), various church publications and local papers in Berwick, Sunbury, Williamsport and Wilkes Barre.

Westmoreland Co. Tops State Envir-Olympics

BY CRAIG BINGMAN
Snyder Co. Correspondent

STATE COLLEGE — Westmoreland County captured the gold medal at the third annual Envir-Olympics competition held at Shaver's Creek Environmental Center on June 21. The Penn State facility hosted 28 teams from across the commonwealth, challenging their knowledge of outdoor skills.

The overall goal of the Envir-Olympics is to cultivate a desire to learn more about our natural environment through competitive events. The competition provides students with experience in environmentally oriented activities to enable them to become aware, action oriented adults.

The first place team, representing Derry Area High School in Westmoreland County, scored 392⅓ points out of a possible 500. Team members Virgil Wilford, Joe Prengaman, Paul Scansaroli, Chuck Rachocki, Joe Lipinski, and alternate, Chris Chang, each received a first place medallion for their winning efforts. Team advisor Fred Goodman accompanied the team.

Second place medallions were awarded to Shannock Valley High School representing Armstrong County under the advisorship of Albert Baranisk. Students on this team included: Mike Iaconis, Mike Bohan, Mechelle Petruzzi, Melissa Petruzzi, and Jim Basco. Greenwood High School in Perry County took third place honors. Under advisor Frank Corbin, the team members were Bob Taylor, Andy Kline, Brad Dreese, Roger McGowan, Matt Polski, and alternate Mark Beers.

The Envir-Olympics is a competition that stresses team effort in seeking solutions to environmental questions by confronting students with a variety of tests. Rotating through five testing stations, the students answer questions on soils, wildlife, forestry, aquatic life, and current issues. Agencies participating at this year's competition included the Soil Conservation Service, Pennsylvania Game Commission, Bureau of Forestry, Fish Commission, and Department of Environmental Resources, Solid Waste.

A team consists of five high school students. Teams range from vocational agriculture to environmental science to accelerated students. An alternate and an advisor may accompany the team, but cannot assist the team in any way. A prerequisite to the state competition is participation in a local or regional Envir-Olympics.

Originally the brainchild of Fulton and Schuylkill Conservation Districts at the local level, the state Envir-Olympics has multiplied five times since the first competition in 1984. Even individuals and organizations are becoming active in the planning and funding of local and state competitions. Sponsors of the state competition include the Izaak Walton League, Glatfelter Pulpwood, Pennsylvania Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs, Pennsylvania Wildlife Federation, wildlife artists Dick Losch and Ken Hunter, and the Pennsylvania Association of Conservation District Directors.

Warren Werntz, a field representative for the Bureau of Soil and Water Conservation and one of the founders of the state Envir-Olympics, has nothing but praise for the competition. "It does my heart good to see so many teams compete," he said. "I hope we take home one thing, and that is that we've learned something new today."

This year's test questions proved quite difficult for student as well as any adult taking the tests. The Game Commission test involved bird call, tree nut and animal identification. The Fish Commission quizzed the teams on aquatics and the identification of fish. A test in soil types as they relate to urban problems from the Soil Conservation Service had students checking soil profiles for clues. Tree identification as well as questions on gypsy moth, energy, and tree measurement came from the Bureau of Forestry. And the current issues station had the teams calculating the demise of a fictional Garbagetown, USA.

Every student that participated in the state competition received a certificate of participation and an Envir-Olympics hat. Westmoreland County will receive further honors in October at the Association of Conservation District Director's Annual Meeting in Cambria County.

The future of the competition looks promising. "I'd like to see the state Envir-Olympics progress to a regional or even national competition," says Carolyn Hollenshead, another founder of the state Envir-Olympics and district manager of the Fulton Conservation District.

The Westmoreland County team from Derry Area High School took first place in the state Envir-Olympics competition on June 21.

At this year's competition, Walter Rossman, president of the Pennsylvania Association of Conservation District Directors, praised the progress of the annual event. "I hope the Envir-Olympics will continue to expand," he said. "We have such a diversity of nature to learn here in Penns Woods." Rossman, along with Harry Bittle, Deputy Secretary of Environmental Protection, DER, and Dean Steinhart, Dean of Environmental Education at Penn State, presented the top three awards and distributed hats and certificates to each team.

There were no losers at this year's Envir-Olympics. The 28 teams went home with new experiences, increased knowledge, and a greater respect for their living environment.

Potato Growers Program

HARRISBURG — Pennsylvania potato growers, by a two-to-one vote margin, have approved creation of a self-financed potato research program, according to state Agriculture Secretary Richard E. Grubb.

Of the 74 growers who voted during balloting conducted June 2-13, a total of 54 approved development of the program and collection of two cents on each 100 pounds of potatoes marketed to finance the research.

Department officials estimate that the assessment will raise $45,000 annually. A ten-member advisory board of participating growers will administer the funds to designated research areas.

"Research into resilient strains, disease prevention and marketing, should prove beneficial to all potato producers in the state," Grubb noted. "It is one of the ways our growers can remain competitive and successful."

Approximately 180 growers were eligible to vote and are affected by the outcome. These growers have at least 25 acres or more devoted to potato production.

Those who voted for creation of the program produce 67 percent of the potatoes grown by 74 growers who participated in the balloting.

A DAIRY FARMER SALUTE

For 50 years, we have set aside June as a time to salute dairy farmers.

But for more than 50 years, cooperatives have saluted dairy farmers 365 days of the year. Farmer-owned and controlled, cooperatives have assisted in improved breeding, innovative feeds, unique fertilizers and to-the-consumer marketing. Cooperatives have provided needed financing and ready electricity. They even provide your children's grape juice and potato chips!

Cooperatives are your businesses, owned and controlled by you and other farmers just like yourselves — not by investors on Wall Street. We salute you during your special month, for you are our reason for being.

New Billboard on Pa. Highways

WILLIAMSPORT — Pennsylvania highway motorists will be encouraged to make milk a part of their day through a new milk billboard campaign being carried out by the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council (ADADC). Installation of the billboards began the end of May.

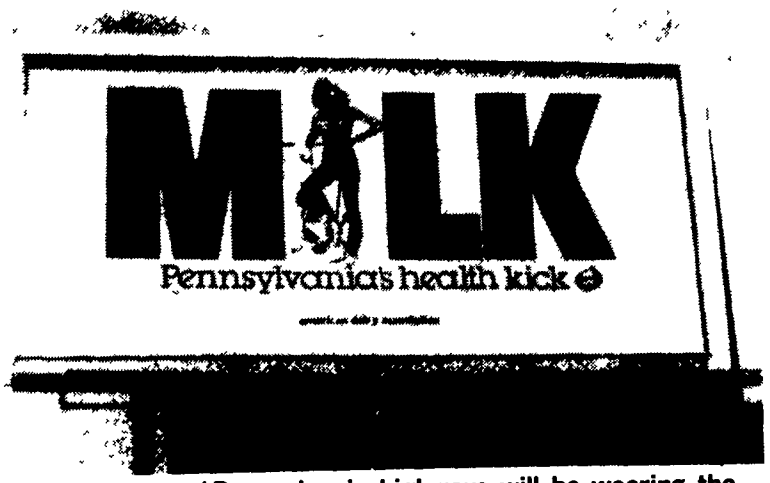
The billboards will be placed on roadways throughout the state of Pennsylvania and will display the theme "Milk, Pennsylvania's Health Kick." A total of 600 billboards will be bought averaging over 200 per month for a three month time period.

The billboard program is an extension of the broadcast advertising campaign which ADADC places throughout Pennsylvania promoting milk and dairy products.

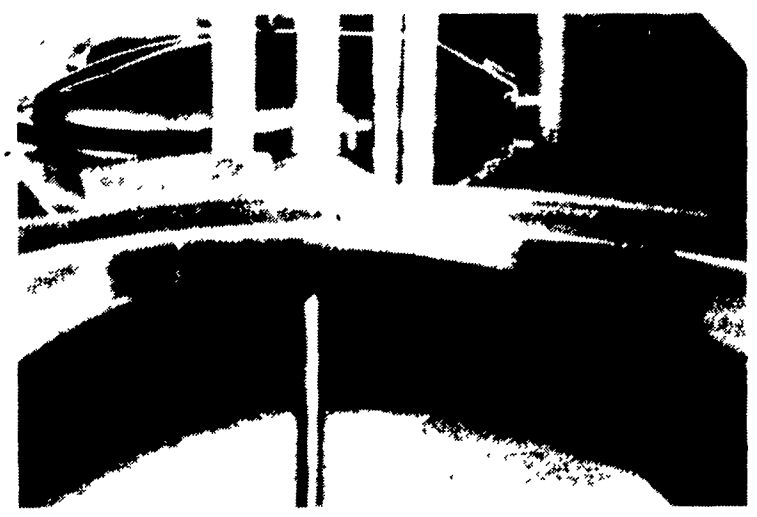
ADADC will spend $500,000 on milk television advertising in the Scranton-Wilkes Barre area during 1986. In addition, they have cooperated with milk promotion groups throughout the country in buying a national pool of media ads. This pool will result in millions of dollars worth of dairy product advertising appearing throughout Pennsylvania.

According to ADADC Executive Vice President Brian Ward, National Dairy Board uses the same ads as those used by the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council and other milk promotion groups nationwide. He stated, "By using the same ads, we create a synergistic effect, increasing our advertising's impact on consumers."

Current ad campaigns promote milk, cheese, butter and the "REAL" Seal.



This summer Pennsylvania highways will be wearing the latest in milk billboard. ADADC will be promoting "Pennsylvania's Health Kick" through billboards such as this which made their appearance on the thoroughfares at the end of May.



July 1 is 1 Million Day For the SCC Count

It's here Tuesday, July 1, is the day that Pennsylvania officially adopts the one million SCC level for saleable milk. Any herds above that limit should contact the local extension office or veterinarian for help in reducing the count.

with the kids. Of course, we do not campaign on Sundays. That is a family day. And although that rule may get broken a time or two between now and November elections, Sundays have been very sternly kept private through my political career. I read to the kids, at night and we have a wonderful family life. I don't think could maintain the demands of public life without the support of my family.

Q. Let's go a little further into our introduction in your relationship to agriculture. I know you have been chairman of the Governor's energy council and that has given you some contact with agriculture. Would you relate some of your experiences with agriculture?

A. Actually my contact with agriculture comes from a lot of different areas. One is the government's energy council where we have worked with a lot of farmers to develop interesting new techniques to generate energy from methane gas and manure. I also work with farmers on the Chesapeake Bay program, which is very important both from the farmer's standpoint and from the environment standpoint. As you likely know, I have been one of the lead people in this administration in regard to that effort. Beyond that I am vice-chairman of the economic devlopment committee of the cabinet. And since agriculture is the number one industry in this state, I have had a real interest in ag issues. Some of these issues include preservation of farm land. The real opportunity I see of increasing markets not only within the state but also regionally and abroad. Everything from direct marketing to international marketing has been important to me.

Q. Much has been reported about the national farm cirses. How do we deal with the economic crises in our own state? And how important do you really think agriculture is to the welfare of Pennsylvania?

A. Well we are luckier than many states in that we have a small farm system and diversified ag base. But still we are being hit hard. But I guess really the point I want to make is that as someone who is interested in government and society, agriculture is the great civilizing force in history. Agriculture makes our society what it is. And if you neglect agriculture and its affect on culture, you really are neglecting the roots of society. It's not only a business, but it's the roots of our culture.

Q. Let's expand a bit on the ag preservation issue. The farmers now really have a conflict within themselves. Deep inside they want to keep the land in agriculture. But economically they feel the need to keep their option open to sell their land to a developer if that opportunity arises. What can we do about this?

A. That's right. I think the whole issue of ag preservation is very complex. There is not one solution. It comes from a variety of angles. It comes from the sensitivity of the state as well as the counties as far as what is prime agricultural land. We need to look at agricultural land as a natural resource if nothing else. Lancaster county is the most productive non-irrigated farm land in the world. To lose that wholesale to development would be a real tragedy. Secondly, we need to consider the ability of a farm child to inherit a farm without the burdensome tax implications. This is very critical. To discourage farming from being passed on to the next generation or to make it so expensive so that it is not possible to do so is not only an economic tragedy but also a social tragedy as well. There clearly must be an economic substance for the preservation of farm land. That's why marketing in my view must be a very important effort undertaken by the state. I think also the state has a role to play in making agriculture as cost-efficient as possible. We need to reduce the cost to the farmer for imputs. Whether fertilizer or gas or any other cost he has there is a lot we can do. When you talk about preserving ag opportunities, you are talking about preserving markets, protecting fertile land and reducing the cost of imputs. All these things must be attacked at once. And state government without interferring and without dictating clearly has a supportive role to play in all of these.

Q. Along those lines it seems like marketing and biotechnology that we are hearing about often are counter-balancing each other or even working against each other. Do you have any proposals on how we handle the marketing on one hand and the production on the other?

Lt. Gov. Scranton

A. That's really the catch 22 of agriculture. It's something that no one has been able to firmly come to grips with in a satisfactory way. The pressures are always there to produce more. And the more you produce, the more farmers go out of business. Some of the ways we might attack that problem is to increase the diversity of our farm products. Not every farmer in Pennsylvania is going to survive producing milk or meat. But, for example, there may be many farmers who survive growing fresh vegetables in Pennsylvania because there is a market here. And there must be many other ways to diversify. The state has a clear obligation to investigate these opportunities. And where they are feasible, we should help farmers make the transition. Diversity has always been Pennsylvania's strong suite. And if we neglect diversity in our ag economy it will be to are peril.

We are seeing a parallel thing happening in the steel industry. Because of technology, you are seeing the basic steel-making industry layoff a lot of people. But at the same time, more specialized, more diversified kinds of steel production are doing very well. It seems to me that this model can also work in agriculture.

Q. Another problem that faces farmers is urban sprawl that causes problems for the farmer with his neighbors. For example, the litter that gets thrown into meadows and onto fields injures livestock, fowls up machinery and cuts tractor tires. Can you give us some indications of what your administration would be prepared to do in relation to anti-litter legislation?

A. I think we need in this state a comprehensive anti-litter legislation, not just bottles and cans. One of the major issues that is currently underway has to do with waste of all kinds. Not only the waste that farmers face, but also with the landfill crisis. Pennsylvania must become clearly a state that does more recycling. Legislation is now being worked through by my running mate Mike Fisher over in the senate who chairs that committee. This legislation calls for 25 percent of the waste in Pennsylvania to be handled by recycling. I think that's a positive step forward. Recycling is not all we should be doing. But clearly the days when we can litter the way sides must come an end.

Q. Of course everyone wants to talk about taxes. It seems that land owners and especially farmers in our case seem to pay a lot of real estate taxes. Is there tax structural reforms that you would propose?

A. I am very much in favor or reforming the local tax system. I think the way we depend on property tax and the extent to which we depend on property tax is unfair to at least two classes of people. One, it's unfair to those with fixed incomes, partically our elderly. And also it's unfair to those who have property intensive assets, which is the farmers. Clearly we must move away from that to a more diversified tax instructure. I would support almost any approach as long as it gets away from over dependence on property taxes. As long as it gets rid of a lot of the nuisance taxes on the local level. And as long as it modernizes our assessment system. And gives local government a greater diversity in the instruments of taxation.

Q. The present administration has provided a sizable fund for ag loan guarantys. And do you support that program? How long is that kind of support going to be necessary? In other words, how long is the farmer going to be in the straits he is in?

A. I don't know. I'm not a prophet. I'm a mere politician. And we sometimes live from day-to-day just like the farmer. Nobody can adequately predict the future. But there enough scenarios out there about what may happen to the economy that prudence says we must clearly maintain that kind of program. I think it's a legitimate kind of program. But obviously as a republican I feel strongly about self-sufficiency and private enterprize. And our goal must be to achieve a state where the ag economy and farmers in particular are doing well enough that the loan guaranty program is not necessary. But I dont's see that in the foreseeable future. We are going through a general overall economic restructuring in the state. That's not only affecting basic industry, but also agriculture as well. This restructuring may last another decade or so. Whether the pressures on farming will last that long, I don't know. One of the great advantages agriculture has had is that it really went through a major restructuring a hundred years ago when people left the farms and went to the city. Agriculture not only survived but remained our number one industry. So there is a certain experience over some of the other industries. They know they can survive.

Q. The avian flu outbreak and hog diseases have forced an indemnity program. And we likely need to tie in research as well. Will you comment on your position on the whole area of animal health?

A. Clearly avian influenza and the other animal disease episodes have sent a signal to Pennsylvania that there is an area that we must do more. We have some very fine research institutions in the state. They can clearly do the job. So I would be very much in favor of a commitment to a program of that kind. As farming techniques change and progress occurs we must remain current. If we don't remain current, we will be susceptible to the kinds of things that have happened to us in the past.

Q. While agriculture is number one in Pennsylvania yet the funding for the work of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture is limited, what do you propose for additional funding for PDA?

A. My feeling on that is that really I'm proud in the last eight years that we have taken a state that was so excessive in its taxation and spending that it had gotten a terrible black eye and was not doing well by its people. We cut dramatically the state work force.

Right now on a per capita basis Pennsylvania has the lowest number of state employees for any state in the nation. We are proud of that. But there are areas that I think we need incremental increases. My goal as Governor would be not to throw money at any department but to take specific objectives and promote the economy and social health of this state and adequately fund specific projects. And while I will be very tight with the buck as Governor I don't want to be dollar wise and pound foolish.

Q. As the last question, could you summarize your feeling toward agriculture in Pennsylvania?

A. I think the most important thing I would like to say to farmers is that I and we in government share a deep optimism that there really are opportunities out there for growth in agriculture. This optism comes because of the nature of the farm community. Because of our experience and because of our diversity, the people of Pennsylvania agriculture are optimistic people. And whatever we are going through right now, we believe will be temporary. And we believe we can come out of this crisis better prepared and stronger to face the future. If we work together we can and will be successful. I am an optimist. I don't think my optimism for agriculture is unrealistic. I know in farmers there is a resilience that we can draw from. And this resilience will serve them and us very well.

Holstein Cows Are Basis For Eva Martin's Country Craft Designs

BY SHARON SCHUSTER
Md. Correspondent

SMITHSBURG, Md. — Marlin and Eva Martin's Jawood Farm is much like other dairies in Smithsburg, Md. Holsteins and a few Jerseys loaf in the barn lot and cool their heels in the pond. And, hogs groan about the heat of the noonday sun.

What sets Jawood apart from other Washington County dairies is evident inside the Martin home. Cows are on the sofa, draped over chairs, and hanging from the ceiling. The inside menagerie is all part of Eva Martin's Country Craft Designs.

"There just isn't a whole lot of farm oriented stuff," said Martin. Looking for items to place in her own home, Martin said she became frustrated and disappointed with the misproportioned cartoon-like designs that seemed to prevail in the market. "I had in my mind what I wanted," said Martin. "I put it on paper and tried to get it proportioned properly."

What she came up with was a realistic likeness of a Holstein cow and calf which now adorns pillows, tissue boxes, note pads, T-shirts, and more. Since February, what was once a hobby has developed into a successful and growing business. Her designs were displayed at the Maryland State Holstein Convention, hosted by Washington County. "That day, I sold completely out of the notes," said Martin. "I was amazed."

The farm wife also drives a school bus every day. "I really don't have time to do crafts when I'm here on the farm," she explained. "I take something with me wherever I go. You'd be surprised how much you can get accomplished in 15 to 20 minutes."

At present, Martin is trying to build a mail order business for her stenciled designs. The cow and calf design appears in several kits that she has assembled for others to purchase and complete. The popular slogan, "We Love Holsteins," depicted with a heart and a cow, is another design found on kit items.

A kit for a ruffled pillow sells for $5.95. Available in blue or green, the kit also includes a matching print for the reverse side of the pillow. For $6.95, a decorative hoop with stenciled fabric also includes thread. The hoop kit comes in blue and white or green and white.

The small tissue box kit is available in blue or apple green, for $4.95. It also bears the Holstein slogan. The cow and calf emblem decorates the pack of 10 notecards with envelopes. These bestsellers are only $2.

Martin also offers quilt kits which contain squares with stenciled designs. The friendship quilt bears a different design on each of 24 squares with room in the center for friends to embroider their names.

The Quilt of Praise has a different stencil on the 12 squares that the kit contains. For those who prefer to applique', the Flower Blossom quilt contains the pieces necessary to create the flower designs. Quilt kits do not contain thread or extra materials for sash work. Martin explained that this allows for home crafters to use the colors they prefer. The kits cost $15.

Martin also offers a kitchen hand towel, anniversary plaque, and counted cross stitch picture in a frame. Soon to be available for purchase in kits are a key holder, bookends, and pencil holder. "I've even got a clock in mind," said Martin.

In describing the process of creating an item, Martin said she first thinks of a design. "Sometimes I see a picture of a cow I like," explained Martin. "I'm not a real artist," she added.

After she has a design "in her head," she said she sits down with pencil in hand and tries to put it on paper. When she is satisfied with the proportions and overall look, Martin said, "I put it onto material to see if I'm satisfied with it."

Fancy enough to dress up any clothesline, the heirloom quilt Eva created is displayed in the yard of her Smithsburg, Md. home. Her son, Kevin, bought the quilt with money that he earned from the sale of his 4-H hogs.

The next step is to have the prototype made into a form for duplication. "I send them away to get them made into hot iron transfers and then iron them onto material." When the pieces are assembled into a kit, they are then ready for sale.

As an example of time involved from conception of a design to preparation of a kit, Martin referred to the cow in a frame counted cross stitch project. "It took about 5 hours until the design worked out and I got it onto the material," she explained. "All that takes time," she said.

Martin explained that many people have asked her to do special projects that include hogs or different designs. "At this time, I'm just establishing kits. Eventually I will get into custom orders," she said. "It takes a lot of time to work out a pattern. I'll be expanding into crocheting and all types of needlework," she said. The biggest obstacle to deal with in her new business "is not having enough time to get all those ideas out of my brain," she explained.

Eva Martin, seated in the shade of a tree at her farm, displays some of the items that are offered for sale through her new business.

Homestead Notes

Eva Martin is surrounded by examples of her Country Craft Design kits.

Martin said she is trying to meet the needs of those who are looking for a way to advertise their farms at upcoming shows. She designed an applique to be sewn onto the back of a shirt which depicts a Holstein cow and the farm name.

Probably her most cherished work is a quilt that Martin designed and completed for an auction to benefit a 4-H memorial fund. It depicts a serene pastoral scene on a green and white background. A picturesque farm complete with flowers in the window boxes was assembled from many scraps of material. Cows graze in the pasture, and a silo is found next to the red barn. It is a real work of art. The quilt was auctioned and sold for enough money to benefit two 4-H'ers that "we thought exemplified 4-H character," Martin said.

But, what makes the quilt particularly special to the whole family is that the memorial fund was in memory of the Martins' son, Craig, who was killed in an automobile accident two years ago. "Craig excelled in public speaking and dairy judging," said Martin. They chose to donate the money from the sale of the quilt to the two deserving 4-H'ers in his memory.

And, perhaps the most heartwarming part of the story, is that Martin's son, Kevin, bought the quilt. "It is special because my mother and my grandmother made it," explained 16-year-old Kevin. "He used his 4-H money to buy it," said his mother. She added that he is saving the heirloom for a special day, perhaps his wedding.

It is evident that the Martins are close to their children, and encourage them to be very active in 4-H. Daughter, Kaylena, was recently crowned as the Washington County Dairy Princess, and she was also Farm Queen three years ago. Their oldest son, Kenlin, 21, just got married. Sad to see him leave home, Martin said the one consolation she has is that she will have "a room of my own to work in."

Martin keeps a file of customers and makes a practice of keeping in touch with them. She said she plans to develop a mailing list to send a brochure showing which kits are available twice a year.

Interested persons may contact Eva Martin at the following address: Martin's Country Craft Designs, Rt. 2, Box 414, Smithsburg, Maryland 21783 Telephone 301-824-2106.

"It's really just a hobby," said Martin of her new business. "Maybe someday I'll quit driving the bus and do this instead."

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Not too long ago I bought a gift for myself. It was a soft, cuddley teddy bear. I made two trips to the gift shop before I purchased it since the first time my husband was along and he felt it was a foolish whim.

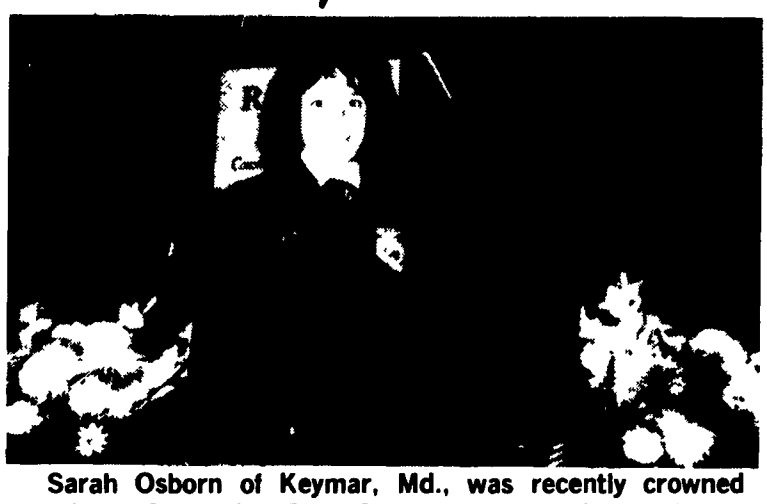
It is said that everyone needs at least half a dozen hugs a day to be a well-adjusted person. I'm sure that a lot of people do not get their allotted share. So, in some ways a teddy bear can be a substitute.

My experience with toys and dolls was not necessarily a pleasant one. My aunt gave me a doll for Christmas, when I was a small child, and I was never allowed to play with it. One of my earliest memories is of it sitting on top of our piano and of me crying and pleading to be allowed to touch it. But, my mother stood firm and I must say that today that kid leather bodied doll with real hair is worth a lot of money.

And then there was the doll that I begged my mother to get for me with some stamps that she had saved. This time I got my doll and I loved "Betty." However, one day I allowed my younger sister to play with it and she dropped it and it's head broke into pieces. My mother never let me forget that she had given up her choice for my broken doll.

One other toy that stands out in my mind is a homemade Peter Rabbit. My great aunts gave me this big-eared brown bunny. His ears just fitted under my chin and up to my ears. He is still hiding somewhere in a box with his embroidered eyes almost worn off. I should hunt him and give him a big hug.

Frederick Co. Dairy Princess Sarah Osborn



Sarah Osborn of Keymar, Md., was recently crowned Frederick County Md. Dairy Princess. The daughter of James and Sharon Osborn, she served as state secretary for the Maryland FFA during the 1985-86 school year. Here, she is pictured at the 58th annual Maryland FFA Convention in Hagerstown.

Greenery. Thick. Tangled. Here and there, patches of feathery fern bask in dappled sunlight. At other spots, briars cluster in nearly impenetrable, fortressed thickets, ringed by moats of poison ivy and guarded by fierce front lines of jagged thorns.

Vines weave unseen traps, camouflaging logs fallen at random across the heavily-shaded woodland floor. Crackling sounds echo in the distance. Squinting to see through the gnats and tangled undergrowth, we check one another's locations. A navy tee shirt moves slightly, way off to my left, but to the right the obscure patch of white has vanished.

A guerilla jungle army of sorts, we are. Fifteen or so of us, stalking this hundred-acre battleground of blackberry brambles and land mines of matted grape vines.

Hasitly assembled, our neighborhood brigade mustered this first afternoon of summer to meet a common enemy in alien territory; 27 Charolais feeder steers barely off the rolling beef-country of Virginia. Semi-wild, skittish as deer, they flattened the owner's gate to roam at large over a wide expanse of hay and corn fields, and the undergrown woodlands of June.

After escaping the evening before, they have hours of freedom ahead of us. A couple tame heifers have been tied in their home barn as "bait," and the blue-jean-clad batallion, wooded-branch weapons in hand, are on the move.

Flanking the outer edge is our eldest on horseback. We remainding foot soldiers are hoofing it across the wooded rural ridge.

The spirit of country neighborliness invades these proceedings. Most sweaty faces are familiar ones.

I remember how the owners of the escapees were fast on the scene last fall, after a truckload of our corn overturned on a rural road. Their front end loaders scooped up the golden mess, and dumped in onto the waiting replacement truck. That truck, too, belonged to another face in our woodland army. Our neighbors are one of the nicest benefits of our rural area.

An hour of steady searching the heavy woods finally brings shouts of a find: four steers. (Good grief, where are the rest??) About eight of us jog uphill through a kneehigh cornfield, hoping to turn the four in their escape path from brushy undergrowth, out through a just-harvested hayfield, and toward home.

Scared, confused, and headed back for woodland cover, these fleet-footed-fellows make fools of us pursuers. They easily outdistance us, fly directly past the startled horseperson, green vines dangling from their shaggy heads, and disappear into the woods from which we have just emerged.

"Geez, they weren't even in second gear," wryly observes one panting posse member.

We have succeeded only in further splitting one more steer away from the pack of four.

Their owner calls of the chase, and we all scatter for home in frustration, having been precious little help — save maybe for moral support.

Twenty-four hours later, eleven of the escapees have been corralled. Ten cozied up to a beef herd a whole valley and ridge away. One straggler (our split-off?) jumped a fence to take refuge with a herd close to the wooded ridge we'd searched.

And 48 hours later, we were astonished when six trotted up to the barn during milking with our heifer herd. A quick check of the far meadow turned up five more, which were baited back to the barn again with heifers.

As I write this, five of these sturdy fellows remain at large. We can only hope that, within one more day, our neighborhood adventure will have ended.

But the farmer figures it marks a new trend for this farmstead.

Indeed, the concept of animals breaking INTO our pastures is almost more than the mind can handle.

Creamy Custards Are A Popular Summer Dessert

Creamy custards and puddings are the answer to a cool, light dessert for a summer evening. These luscious concoctions come in a host of flavors, often combining fresh fruit or gelatin with dairy ingredients like milk and cream.

Obviously they are a popular item with Lancaster Farming readers who shared recipes for many, many varieties of custards and puddings this week. We would like to thank everyone who shared dairy recipes with us during this 50th anniversary celebration of June Dairy Month.

And, because we received more recipes than we could possibly publish this month, the dairy recipe selections will continue next week, when we will publish as many more dairy recipes as possible. If your special dairy recipe isn't published, it will become a part of Lancaster Farming's extensive recipe files and will most likely appear in a future edition Lancaster Farming.

The Recipe Topics listed in previous issues for July will be pushed forward a week. Don't stop sending recipes just because Dairy Month is over. We want your recipes all year long.

Featured Recipe

This week's featured recipe was the winning entry at the New York Beef Recipe Contest sponsored by the New York Cattlewomen. The Meat Bread recipe from Louise Pillietieri of Jamestown features frozen bread dough and ground chuck beef.

As first place winner, Mrs. Pillietieri will receive a silver tray and $200 to help with her expenses to the National Beef Cook-Off Sept. 14 to 15 in Dearborn, Mich.

The winning recipe has long been a family favorite. "We called it Aunt Josie's Meat Bread and it was served at Christmas time, for football parties or whenever we wanted a dish that was special but easy to prepare," she said.

Meat Bread

1 pound loaf frozen bread dough
1 large Spanish cooking onion
1 can pitted black olives or Greek olives
1 pound ground chuck beef
Salt, pepper, and/or seasoning to taste

Thaw the frozen bread dough and let rise. Saute the onion in cooking oil until tender. Brown the ground beef and drain the liquid. Cut up olives. Roll out the bread dough until flat like a pie crust. Spread the onions and cooking oil on the dough. Spread the browned ground beef. Spread the cut up olives. Roll like a jelly roll and place ends together. Place in ungreased pie tin and slit the top in three places. Bake at 350°F. for 45 minutes or until golden brown. Rub with butter or margarine and slice and serve.

Hot Dog Trivia

July is National Hot Dog Month according to the National Hog Dog and Sausage Council.

To help you in celebrating with this all-American favorite, here is a bit of hot dog trivia to add to your dinnertime conversation.

What is the single all-time favorite hot dog topping? Why, mustard, of course.

Ketchup is not as popular as you might think – people save that for French Fries. In a recent survey ketchup ranked behind sauerkraut, relish and onions as a hot dog's most compatible garnish.

The "perfect hot dog size" is 6 to 7 inches long, while so-called "foot-longs" are often misleading because most are not 12 inches in length.

What would you say is the most popular way to prepare hot dogs? Yes, grilled. Boiling a hot dog releases all the foods nutrients, so it is recommended that the boiling pot be removed from the heat source so the hot dogs can just steam.

Do you know by what name hot dogs were often called before 1901? Vendors at the ball parks called them "dachshund sausages." As the story goes, one day, sport-swriter Tad Drogan dashed off a cartoon depicting a talking sausage. Hurrying to meet his newspaper deadline, Drogan realized he could not spell "dashshund" so he called his creation "hot dogs." The new name stuck.

Do you have any idea how many hot dogs are eaten every day in the United States? 20 million? 35 or 50 million? Fifty million is the correct answer, and in a year's time, that enough hot dogs to reach to the moon and back again three times.

What other crazy condiments do people like to eat on hot dogs? Peanut butter and maple syrup are two unusual items. Gourmet garnishes are now in vogue. Shredded lettuce, sweet and sour sauces, and spicy barbecue and chill mixtures are growing favorites. The Chicago style hot dog sports sliced tomatoes and cucumbers, dark green relish and a dash of celery salt while the New York Dog is covered with steamed onions.

A hot dog in a bun still ranks number one at the ballpark, but Americans do not always eat them on a bun at home any more. Bagels, muffins and pita bread now are popular alternate choices for a tasty foundation.

Oily Stains: A Laundering Problem

Oily greasy stains on clothes are a common laundering problem. They can be caused by a number of factors including the use of an insufficient amount of detergent to hold the soil in solution until the end of the wash cycle. To resolve the problem, treat the stains with a prewash stain remover or liquid laundry detergent. Then, launder with an increased amount of detergent.

A wash water temperature that is too low is another cause. The problem can be remedied by increasing the temperature and can be prevented by using the hottest water safe for the fabric being laundered.

Another major cause of oily stains is the incorrect use of a fabric softener. When undiluted fabric softener is poured directly on fabrics, stain can occur. Remove the stains by rubbing with bar soap before laundering. To prevent the problem, dilute a liquid fabric softener before adding to the washer.

Problems arising with the use of a dryer-added fabric softener can be caused by drying too small a load, selecting an improper dryer cycle or using too high a drying temperature. In each instance, remove the stains by rubbing the fabric softener stains with bar soap and launder. Prevent a reoccurrence caused by too small a load by adding a few clean bath towels to the dryer load for proper tumbling. Select the appropriate dryer cycle to avoid staining caused by an improper cycle selection. If a dryer is too hot, reduce the dryer temperature.

Lydia Reed to Promote Dairy Industry as Jefferson County Dairy Princess

BY BETH NESBIT
Special to Lancaster Farming

BROOKVILLE — Lydia Reed was crowned 1986 Jefferson County Dairy Princess at Edgewood dairy during the Strawberry Festival on June 15. 1984 Dairy Princess Carol Pifer presented Lydia with her crown and a bouquet of red roses.

The alternate dairy princess title went to Jennifer Shields. Jennifer is the daughter of James and Cathy Shields, R.D. 1 Summerville. Jennifer received a banner and flowers along with a cash award.

Lydia, a 1986 graduate of the Punxsutawney Area High School, is the daughter of Richard and Judy Reed, Punxsutawney. Lydia enjoys helping on her family's Holstein dairy farm. She is actively involved in the county's 4-H program, dairy ambassadors and her church choir. In the fall Lydia plans to attend Indiana University of Pennsylvania to major in elementary education.

Jennifer will be a senior at the Brookville Area High School in September, where she will resume a busy schedule. Jennifer is active in her high school band, show choir, German club, and national honor society. Jennifer is also a member of the Pennsylvania Youth Education Association as well as on the school's newspaper staff. Jennifer's family milks a combination of 25 Jersey and Holstein cows.

Jefferson County agriculture agent Susan McCaslin was the coordinator for the event. Judges were Elaine Chamberlain, Eloise Pifer and Bill Screckengost.

Both Lydia and Jennifer believe that being a member of the newly-established Jefferson County dairy ambassadors program has helped prepare them for their upcoming year. The dairy ambassadors are a select group of volunteer high school boys and girls from each of the school districts in Jefferson County. Under the direction of the Jefferson County Penn State Cooperative Extension Staff, the ambassadors carry the dairy message to schools and other community organizations in Jefferson County. The dairy ambassadors work with the reigning dairy princess. Both help advertise the benefits of milk and milk by-products.

During her reign Lydia will travel throughout the county promoting milk and dairy products.

In September she will travel to Harrisburg to compete for the Pennsylvania Dairy Princess crown.

Stallman Wins Extension Paraprofessional Award

UNIVERSITY PARK — Brenda Stallman of Lancaster County is the state winner of the 1986 Paraprofessional Award, sponsored by the Pennsylvania Association of Extension Home Economists. Stallman is an extension nutrition aide supervisor from Hopeland.

In Stallman's award-winning program, which is part of Penn State's Expanded Food and Nutrition Education Program, she worked with juvenile probation officers to present good nutrition habits to teenagers on probation.

"I teamed up with Ed Hafner, family counselor for Lancaster County Juvenile Probation and Parole," she says. "He expressed concern about the diet of many of the teenagers he saw on probation, and how their diets affected their behavior. He understood the importance of a balanced diet and encouraged good eating habits with those he counseled. He wanted to get nutrition information to all the offenders, especially those with a drug or alcohol problem."

Stallman started by presenting a nutrition lesson to all juvenile probation officers, emphasizing the four basic food groups. She asked the officers to complete a 24-hour food recall — writing down everything they ate within a 24-hour period — and to get recalls from some of the youth.

"The kids' diets were very poor," she says. "We realized the kids made a lot of their food choices themselves, but some were locked into bad habits started by their parents." Food recalls on the youth revealed diets high in sugar and large quantities of protein and bread with no milk or vegetables.

The youth came from different backgrounds and economic groups throughout Lancaster County, ranged in age from 13 to 18 and had a variety of social problems. Many were on probation for the first time, some were repeat offenders, some were alcoholics and some had been using drugs.

Since many of the young people were responsible for their own meals, Hafner and Stallman wanted to teach them about nutritious, low-cost snacks they could make for themselves. Meeting with a new group every six weeks, Stallman, Hafner and nutrition aide Eleanor Derry worked with youth and parents. They discussed food groups and meal planning, watched film strips on nutrition, solved nutrition puzzles, and made snack pizzas, omelets and orange shakes.

Probation officers are now requiring that each new group of offenders attend the nutrition workshops, and Stallman has been asked to keep the officers up to date on their own nutrition knowledge. One probation officer wrote Stallman a letter saying that the workshop was "one of the most productive and action-oriented sessions we held. At least three group members said they had used your omelet recipe after the visit, and they planned to continue using it as a menu choice."

Says Stallman, "We wanted to challenge the kids with new, persuasive nutrition information. I feel good about what EFNEP and the Pennsylvania Extension Service have offered these kids."

THE MICRO WAY

LANI BLOOMER

BASIC MICROWAVE TECHNIQUES

When you learn to cook in a microwave, you don't have to learn to cook all over again! But microwave cooking is different. Understanding these few basic microwave techniques will give you good, tender food instead of unevenly cooked, dried or burned food.

Let's start at the beginning. When microwaves enter food, they cause the food molecules (tiny particles) to vibrate. As the molecules vibrate millions of times each second, friction causes heat to build up quickly. This heat from the friction cooks the food. Rub your hands together and you can feel the heat friction produces. In an oversimplified sense, your food rubs itself cooked in a microwave oven!

Since microwaves heat food from the outside in to the center, a "problem" in microwave cooking is this: How to get the middle of food cooked without burning the edges. The microwave cooking techniques that differ from range cooking are based on solving this problem..

These basic microwave cooking techniques are discussed in greater detail in microwave cookbooks if you need more information.

1. To get even cooking in your oven stir your food during the cooking time. This distributes the heat from the edges in to the center of the food. Stirring once or twice during the cooking or reheating time is usually all that's needed. Don't stir too much!

2. When you are cooking food on high power that you can't stir, arrange it in a doughnut shape whenever possible. If there's no food in the middle, it can't be cold when the edges are cooked! For example, put a meatloaf in a ring mold instead of a loaf pan. If you don't have a ring mold, use a casserole dish with a custard cup or glass in the middle.

When freezing ground meat like hamburger, make a doughnut shaped patty with a hole in the middle so it defrosts evenly. (How many times have you defrosted hamburger and ended up with a lump of frozen meat in the middle surrounded by patches of cooked brown meat? A doughnut shape stops this!) Arrange separate foods like potatoes or cookies in a ring for even baking.

3. Larger food pieces like chicken parts can't be stirred, so these are rearranged during the cooking time. Rearranging means taking the pieces from the corners or edges and putting them in the center; then moving the center or least done pieces to the corners and the edges. If you have unevenly shaped food pieces, put the biggest ones around the edges of a container, so you won't have to arrange them.

There are two techniques to prevent drying out the edges of food like cakes or lasagna, where you can't stir, rearrange or use a doughnut shape.

4. The first (and best) is use a lower power. Instead of cooking these foods on high, turn your oven down to medium (50 percent power, which is listed as 50 or 5 on most oven brands). Turning the power down slows the rate at which the microwaves heat the edges of your food. This gives heat time to be conducted into the center evenly, but it takes longer to cook the food.

5. If you can't turn the power down, shield the edges of food with foil to keep them from burning on high power. Put small strips of aluminum foil on the edges of roasts, over turkey drumsticks, and on the corners of a cake or lasagna pan. This keeps some of the microwave energy from penetrating in these small areas. Foil, even though it is metal, can be used in most ovens if you follow these rules:

– Keep foil one inch or more away from the walls and oven door.

– Don't let metal touch other metal, such as foil on an oven rack or a TV dinner tray.

– When using foil for shielding, check the oven for arching (sparks) when you turn the power on. If you see any arching, stop the oven and remove the source so the oven is not damaged.

6. Thick foods like roasts and turkeys should be turned over during the cooking time. Turning them over ensures even cooking of both the top and the bottom.

7. One last technique that is different from range cooking is allowing standing time for the foods to finish cooking. All foods, especially those cooked on high power, will cook a little more after they are removed from the microwave.

Standing time is time you let the food stand somewhere to allow for this extra cooking. (Cover your food and just let it sit somewhere – you don't have to "stand" the bacon on edge!) It is the biggest difference between microwave and range cooking. Not allowing for this extra cooking causes many beginners to overcook their food.

The amount of standing time microwaved food needs isn't magic. The time is determined by the size and density of the food. Clip this for easy reference!

– Small, less dense food (eggs, breads, hot dogs, fish fillets) need only 2 to 3 minutes of standing time.

– Medium density or size food (vegetables, baked potatoes, chicken pieces, bar cookies, etc.) need 5 minutes standing time to get fully tender.

– Larger or denser food (casseroles, small roasts, whole poultry, cakes, pies, etc.) need about 10 minutes to stand.

– Very large meats (turkeys, big roasts, etc.) need about 15 minutes standing time.

Remember, hard or dry food has been overcooked. Food that is properly cooked in a microwave is juicy, moist and tender. Enjoy the cool microwave way of cooking on the hot days to come!

Lynn Hembury Is Sullivan County Dairy Princess

BY BARBARA MILLER
Lycoming Co. Correspondent

DUSHORE – Lynn Hembury, Dushore, is the 1986 Sullivan County Dairy Princess. Looking like a southern belle in an off-the-shoulder lavender gown with heart shaped neckline and a sweeping skirt with ruffles and lace, she was crowned Saturday night, June 21, at the conclusion of the June Dairy Month Parade. Approximately 500 to 800 people attended the event.

The 5-feet-4-inch hazle-eyed blonde is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Hembury of Dushore. Lynn, 16, will be a senior next year at Sullivan County High School. This past year she was vice-president of her class and is a member of the band and a cheerleader. She belongs to a 4-H club and plans to attend Penn State after high school graduation for a course in business administration.

The Hemburys have a registered Holstein herd of 120 cows on test and farm about 450 acres.

When asked during her onstage interview what she does around the farm, the princess said she has three older brothers and noted that she gets the "leftover" chores. She said she does whatever needs doing at the time. To promote dairy products she said one of the best approaches would be to talk to children in the schools.

Alternate dairy princess for 1986 is CherieLynn Brown, 16, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerrod Brown of Shunk.

In a short farewell speech Lynette Higley, 1985 Sullivan County Dairy Princess said she visited several arts and crafts shows, schools, and dairy shows on behalf of the dairy industry.

The pageant was judged by Tom Mahoney, Bradford County agent; Alice Sherwood, Tunkahannock; and George Mueller, Dushore.

Special guests for the festivities were Yonna Taylor, 1986 Bradford County Dairy Princess; Christina Adams, Wyoming-Lackawanna Dairy Princess; and Stephanie Whitehead, Maple Queen.

Lynn Hembury, right, is the new Sullivan County Dairy Princess. Cherie Lynn Brown, left, will serve as her alternate.

The dairy parade climaxed a month of dairy-related activities which included a theme contest by a local newspaper, a dinner by the local chamber of commerce, and the annual Twilight Meeting sponsored by June Dairy Committee and Sire Power which gave the public a chance to visit a working dairy farm. A block party followed the parade sponsored by the local fire company.

The parade and other activities were arranged by the June Dairy Month Committee comprised of representatives from the Sullivan County Cooperative Extension Service, The Sullivan Review, Dushore Fire Company, Dushore Lions Club, the Sullivan County Chamber of Commerce, local businessmen, dairy farmers, and past dairy princesses.

Emcee for the event was Fred Fiester of Claverack Rural Electric, Towanda. Francis Moll donated five tractors and five wagons for the parade.

Community Works Together For Annual Dairy Parade

BY BARBARA MILLER
Lycoming County Correspondent

DUSHORE – For 23 years Sullivan County, one of the smallest, most sparsely-populated counties in the state, has been holding its annual dairy pageant in combination with a parade through Dushore.

According to Mary Lambert, parade organizer for 20 years, as many as 2,000 to 3,000 people have lined the streets of this small town to view the parade. Many are "cabin people," Mary says, who come to spend their summers in the Endless Mountains, while a substantial number are local residents.

The parade is successful, Mary believes, because the community organizations all work together to celebrate June as Dairy Month.

The dairy parade was started in 1963 when chamber of commerce president William H. Gregory, who also happened to be the county agent, told the chamber that with 165 dairymen in the county generating about a million and a half dollars a year, June Dairy Month should be observed.

Since that time the parade has become a tradition in which all the local organizations such as the fire company, Lions Club, chamber of commerce and businessmen and dairy farmers, participate.

Community organizations working together in harmony is a major reward of the parade for Mary. "We can all work together," she says. "It's a joint venture."

Mary also notes that the people "just like to do floats." The library and historical association are two organizations that have made floats for the parade from the beginning.

A unique feature of the parade is that everyone gets to see it twice. "Dushore isn't that big, so we go around twice," Mary explains. "People spend hours on the floats and to just zoom by? . . . So we go around twice."

The distance of the entire parade route is about 8 city blocks.

According to Mary, attendance at the parade fluctuates, with some diminishing attributed to the decrease in the number of farmers. This year she estimated the attendance at between 500 and 800 people, noting that it was wonderful hay making weather on Saturday and she saw few farmers in the crowd.

Mary, and husband, George, in partnership with their two sons, operate Lambert Farms, Dushore. They milk 125 registered Holsteins and farm 500 acres.

Mary Lambert, parade organizer, relaxes in a chair at the library following the parade. "I'm not going to do it next year," she says. And then laughing, she admits that she says that every year.

Good Nutrition Can Help Older Adults Maintain Their Health

NEWARK, Del. – If health is wealth, it pays to maintain good eating habits – especially for older adults. "While food alone can't make you healthy, eating right can help maintain and improve your health," according to Dr. Sue Snider, University of Delaware extension food and nutrition specialist.

"The average American consumes too many calories from fats and simple sugars," Snider says, and she recommends that around 30 percent of daily calories come from fats, more than 50 percent from carbohydrates, and the remainder from proteins. Complex carbohydrates, such as those found in beans, peas, nuts, seeds and whole grain products, provide essential nutrients in contrast to simple carbohydrates, such as sugar, which provide little more than calories.

What nutritional areas should older people pay special attention to? One important nutrient is calcium, which is most commonly found in milk and milk products.

Calcium helps keep bones and teeth strong, but many older adults neglect this mineral. "Most adults think that only children need milk to make their bones strong," Snider says. "But if you don't consume enough calcium, your body will take it from your bones, which will then become thin and break more easily."

Eventually this bone-thinning may lead to osteoporosis – or "porous bones" – a major health problem for older adults that can result in serious fractures and tooth decay.

It's never too late to retard bone loss, the nutrition specialist says. At any age, increasing calcium intake helps prevent further thinning. Also, moderate weight-bearing exercise, such as walking, helps keep bones strong.

Adults should consume 800 mg of calcium a day – about the equivalent of two glasses of milk. But milk isn't the only source. The following items each contain the approximate calcium content of one 8-ounce glass of milk:

- 1 ounce Swiss cheese,
- 1½ ounces Cheddar cheese,
- 1½ cups cooked spinach,
- 1 cup collard greens,
- 3 ounces sardines with bones.

While inexpensive calcium supplements containing dolomite or bone meal are available, Snider doesn't recommend these because they may also contain dangerous levels of lead or mercury. The preferred source of calcium is from food, which also provides other essential nutrients.

Consumption of fluids and fiber is another important dietary consideration for older adults. "Many people are unaware that water is an essential nutrient," Snider says. "It helps carry waste from the body in the form of urine and helps keep stools soft. The body requires more water than thirst suggests. A good guide is to drink six to eight glasses a day; coffee and tea don't count."

Most people, including older adults, should also increase their fiber intake, the specialist says. Eating more fiber in addition to drinking more liquid helps reduce constipation and the need for laxatives – a common problem among older adults. Fruits, vegetables and whole grain breads and cereals are good sources of fiber.

Vitamins and minerals are a frequent concern for older people as well. But people who eat a wide variety of foods in adequate amounts rarely need supplements. If supplements are required, be wary of claims which suggest that certain vitamins delay aging or have other magical powers. Snider also advises, "Don't be fooled into thinking that so-called organic or natural vitamins are superior to synthetic ones. The least expensive generic brands provide the same benefits as higher-priced natural ones."

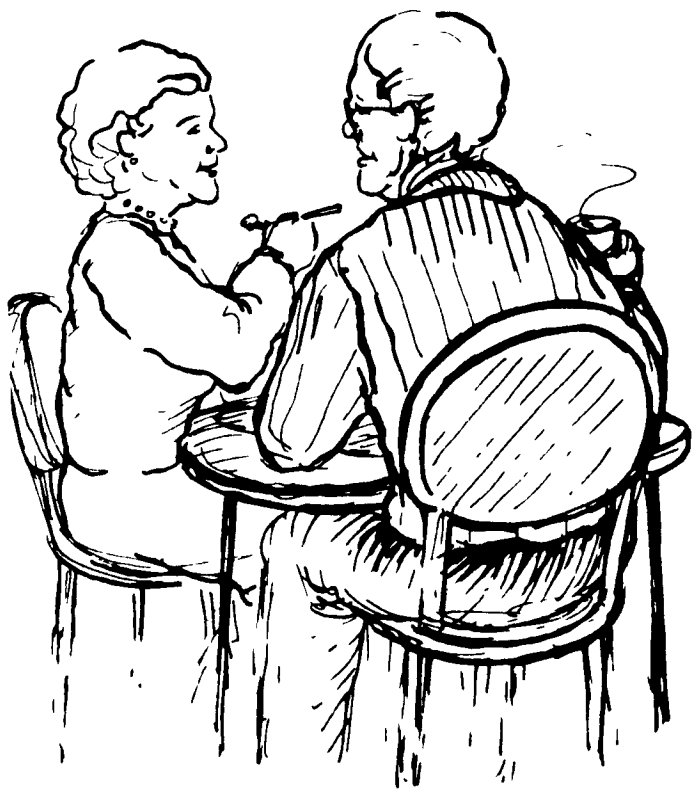
Megadoses of vitamins – up to ten times the Recommended Daily Allowance – are also potentially hazardous. Loss of appetite, bone tenderness, liver enlargement or other dangerous side effects can result, especially with fat soluble vitamins A, D, E, and K.

A critical concern for older adults is the interaction between drugs and nutrients, Snider says. Sometimes medications affect the nutritional status of an individual, or the diet may affect the function of a drug. Vitamins and minerals are most likely to be affected by medications. Mineral oil, for example, often used as a laxative, impairs absorption of vitamins A, D, E, and K, while insufficient vitamin D can impair calcium and phosphorus absorption. Alleviating one problem can cause another!

The best advice is to ask a pharmacist or doctor for information about the possible nutritional effects of any medication. Be sure to tell the doctor or pharmacist about all medications being taken, both prescribed and over-the-counter. Ask about how the drug works, possible side effects, foods or drinks which may adversely affect the medication, and precautions which should be taken while on the medication. And always follow instructions on medication labels.

Some general food eating guidelines can help maintain a healthy body:

- Cut calories. Older people need the same nutrients they did when they were younger. But since they're probably less active, they need fewer calories. Low-nutrient, high-calorie foods such as fats, oils and sugars should be avoided. Extra weight can be shed by reducing calories and increasing activity.
- Consume less fat and cholesterol. Choose lean cuts of meat, trim excess fat from meats, and use eggs and organ meats moderately.
- Some older people have trouble chewing, but they can still eat well by choosing softer foods such as peanut butter, fish or cottage cheese. Stews, soups or cooked foods are both nutritious and easy to chew. Or use a blender or food processor to make foods more manageable.



Taste and Smell Sensations Diminish With Age

NEWARK, Del. – You've prepared Grandpa's favorite meal. But when you sit down to eat, he takes a bite and says, "It just doesn't taste like it should." After working so hard to please him, his comment may seem like a slap in the face. But before you react in anger, consider that Grandpa may have a reduced ability to taste because of his age.

Debbie Amsden, University of Delaware extension home economist, says an elderly person's declining ability to taste may lead to conflict in family relationships if it is misunderstood. Because his taste buds have changed, Grandpa is unable to detect the flavors that he used to.

Dr. Patricia Tanner Nelson, extension family specialist, says, "After the age of 50, the ability to perceive the four taste sensations — sweet, sour, salty and bitter — declines. Most people over 65 have lost half of this ability. By the late 70's, the average person has one-sixth the taste sensitivity of a 20-year-old. Studies indicate that people lose the ability to taste sweet and salty flavors first. They can taste bitter and sour flavors well into old age."

Along with causing conflict in the family, this loss can lead to malnourishment, says Amsden. Many people stop eating because nothing tastes good to them. Others eat too much while trying to achieve a taste sensation. These people may put excessive amounts of sugar, salt or seasonings on their food and ruin the flavor for a younger person.

Bland or low-salt diets can make food less appealing, as can poor health, ill-fitting dentures, lack of energy, and reluctance to prepare meals for just one person.

To encourage eating, Amsden says food should be prepared and served attractively. Distinctive and varied textures, colors and temperatures add to the enjoyment. Portions for the elderly can be more highly spiced. People who chew thoroughly, and take alternate bites of different foods, derive more enjoyment from their meals.

"If a person needs help to eat, don't mix different foods together," says the home economist. "Mixing makes it impossible to distinguish separate flavors. Also, be sure meals are served at a moderate temperature. Dishes that are too cold or too hot limit the taste. People notice temperature first; if it is extreme, that may be all they notice."

In addition to loss of taste, Nelson notes that older people have difficulty identifying common smells. Studies indicate that the sense of smell is often the first sensory system to decline with age, beginning as early as the late 30s or early 40s.

Because two-thirds of the ability to taste depends on the ability to smell, this loss may also depress appetities in the elderly. In addition, a person may no longer be able to smell body or household odors that are offensive to others. Odors warning of smoke, gas or spoiled foods may be undetected. Smoke alarms and pilot lights can decrease the potential hazard that loss of smell creates, especially for persons living alone.

Families should understand that it is normal for people to lose some of the ability to taste and smell as they grow older. So if Grandpa says his food doesn't taste right, chances are it's because of his age, not your cooking.

Homesickness Isn't Terminal!

Band camp, soccer camp, church camp, 4-H camp, and scout camp. Every family I come in contact with seems to be getting ready for camp. Even I'm gearing up for our annual youth group camping event. Some parents rejoice when the kids finally get packed and leave for a week or so. Other parents are more anxious and upset about the separation than the kids are!

Regardless of what kind or where the camp, homesickness is common to every camp. The symptoms are similar in each case. This epidemic strikes every year, most often at bedtime and can last from a few minutes to all week. It doesn't even seem to be limited to a certain age group... it is just expressed differently depending on age.

Probably 95 percent of us have experienced homesickness at one time or another. I remember counting down days when I went to church camp. I was really glad to be there, but still there was a nagging tug to go home and Mom's letters were always welcomed at the mid-week point. I remember, too, a recent three-week study tour in Israel. I described my feelings that first week as "cultural shock". In reality, it was probably a mature sounding way of saying, "I'm homesick!"

If someone in your family is leaving for camp or just a few days away at grandma's, read on for some measures you can take to prevent it.

In general, the parents who take an active interest in camp and prepare their kids for a fun, full week of activities are least likely to get desperate letters or phone calls from "this prison called camp."

Discovering on the first day that you don't like the food, activities, or your roommate is enough to make anyone depressed. Perhaps talking with the camp director or a former camper about these points will help to reassure your child.

One 4-H family has a tradition that helps to combat homesickness with laughter. Every traveling member of that family can expect to find something silly tucked in his or her suitcase after arriving at the destination. Usually it has some sort of significant meaning to the traveler, but not too sentimental. A stuffed animal, one spare sock, a can of baked beans, or a plastic spoon are possible silly tradition starters. Pictures of family and pets often succeed only in making the traveler think about home, so avoid these types of things.

Talk about camp in positive ways. It is best to expect the camper to have a terrific time while reassuring your child that life will go on as usual at home. Parents sometimes try to ease the pressure by saying, "If you get homesick, just call... We'll come and get you." This effectively tells the child that he won't be able to get over the homesickness by himself, and doesn't have to try. That's too easy! Phone calls and mushy letters from home have the same effect - a reminder of what he's missing.

Dealing with homesickness when it happens is miserable for the affected person and frustrating for those who try to soothe him. My parents always vowed that the only way to ever get over homesickness was to stick it out to the end — never, never give in and go home. Although I hate to say "never," maybe they were right after all.

I do agree that honesty is the best policy when dealing with homesick kids. Telling them exactly when they will be going home, sticking to it, and then filling the hours with lots of activities will help to make the gnawing thoughts of home fade away comfortably and provide a week of fun memories.

And on that reassuring note — I'll pack my own bags for our camping event. I doubt I'll have much of a chance to get homesick when surrounded by 30 teens!

Bedford County Dairy Princess Crown Goes to Heidi O'Neal

BY BETSY STITT
Blair County Correspondent

LOYSBURG — Heidi O'Neal of Saxton was crowned Bedford County Dairy Princess June 20 during the annual pageant at Northern Bedford High School.

Heidi, the daughter of David and Donna O'Neal, received her crown from last year's princess Shawnee Yothers. She is a 1986 graduate of Tussey Mt. High School, where she is a member of the Prom Committee, Varsity Club, Student Council, yearbook staff and Drama Club.

She is also class vice-president, a football cheerleader, homecoming queen, a Red Cross volunteer, and a member of the 4-H. In addition, Heidi plays softball, won the DAR Award, and was 1985 Saxton Volunteer Fire Queen and 1985 Huntingdon Fire Queen. She is a member of St. Paul's United Church of Christ.

Heidi plans to attend Lock Haven University to study physical education and health.

During the pageant, contestants were asked questions to test their knowledge of the dairy industry. Heidi was asked: "What is osteoporosis and how can it be prevented?" Heidi explained that osteoporosis is the brittle bone disease. To prevent the disease, Heidi said dairy products should be included in the diet.

Contestants were also required to present a skit. Heidi portrayed a physical education teacher who explained the importance of milk in a balanced diet.

Tammy Seese of New Paris and Janele Crawford of Everett will assist Heidi as alternate princesses.

Tammy is the daughter of Richard and Joanne Seese.

She is a 1986 graduate of Chestnut Ridge High School, a member of the National Honor Society, Jr. Executive Committee, yearbook staff, Who's Who in American High School Seniors, and a Special Olympics helper.

In addition, Tammy has helped with Christmas meals for the needy and was a representative to the Pennsylvania Association of Farmers Co-op Leadership Conference. She participated in the 1985 REA Youth Tour to Washington, D.C., and is a member of the 4-H dairy club. Tammy plans to become a nurse.

Janele is the daughter of John and Nancy Crawford. She attends Bedford High School, where she is active in band, SAAD, Prom Committee and cheerleading. She is also a member of the Pennwood Bible Church, youth group and church choir. She plans to attend college after high school. Janele was named Miss Congeniality.

The annual pageant included a "Parade of Future Dairy Princesses" of 14 little princesses.

Judges for the event were Mrs. Nan Hunt, Valley Rural Electric; Mrs. Dotty Myers Bromley; and Roy Rumbaugh of McLanahan Corporation.

Pa. FFA Members Compete in State Contests During Activities Week

BY MARY MAXWELL
Centre County Correspondent

UNIVERSITY PARK — More than 1,500 FFA members from throughout Pennsylvania attended their annual FFA Activities Week held recently on the Penn State campus.

During the 3-day convention FFA members toured the Penn State campus and participated in a wide variety of educational and recreational activities. Some members combined their musical talents to participate in the FFA band and chorus. Other high school students participated in 27 competitive events ranging from public speaking and livestock judging to mechanical contests.

"FFA Activities Week is an important part of vocational agricultre programs," said Michale Rush, chairman of the conference. "It gives the best students a chance to test what they've learned and to receive recognition for their accomplishments."

The highest-ranked gold winners in most contests will compete in November at the National FFA Convention in Kansas City. Other winners may go on to compete in the Eastern States Exposition, Atlantic Rural Exposition or the Pennsylvania Livestock Exposition.

The following are students who won gold recognition and the high schools they represented.

Maryland State FFA Convention Filled With Enthusiasm, Motivation

BY SHARON SCHUSTER
Maryland Correspondent

HAGERSTOWN — Over 340 FFA members and guests attended the 58th annual Maryland State FFA Convention June 18 and 19 at the Ramada Inn in Hagerstown, Md.

During the course of the two-day event, FFA members representing 52 chapters competed on an individual basis and for team recognition. State officer candidates were selected, and outgoing officers gave their retiring remarks as the sessions progressed.

Brian Glass, 1985-86 state president, promised that "this convention is going to be filled with enthusiasm, motivation, inspiration and young people from across the state." And, true to his promise, the center came alive with exhuberant youth, all actively participating in meetings on the grandest scale.

Orderly, efficient and involved, the large group carried on official business with more spit and polish than a national political convention. And, as one observer put it, "There is never an adult on stage, unless he is invited." Advisors were present, but it was clearly evident that, although respected members of each chapter, their place was in the audience.

It was a magical day for those attending the final sessions. John Carrington, manager of Maryland's famed Lexington Market, delivered the keynote address in a non-traditional way. While performing magic tricks, "The Wizard" gave a pep rally kind of message to his very attentive and involved audience.

"This room is filled with bright, energetic, hard working young people who tomorrow will feed the world," he announced.

Using magical rings, Carrington outlined the "keys to believing in yourself: responsibility, earning, learning, skills, and spirit." With the help of the whimsical character, Oscar the Rabbit, Carrington summarized his message; "Latch on to that FFA spirit and let your talents grow and then let them work for you."

Each session was filled with inspirational messages for the FFA'ers. The retiring remarks of Irene "Reenie" Bonner brought the audience to their feet for a standing ovation. "Everyone must believe in something," began Bonner. "Everyone must have dreams. As young people we must believe in tomorrow. Set no limitations on yourself." Moving many to tears she said, "FFA members, I'd like to challenge you to believe in your country, your home, agriculture, but most of all believe in yourself."

Vice president of the National FFA Association Robert Weaver delivered the keynote address of the final session. An Agricultural Engineering major at Auburn University, the 21-year-old Weaver echoed the sentiments of his state counterparts.

"If there is something you want, don't let anything stop you," advised Weaver. Recounting the story of his first attempt to become a national officer, he said: "It takes character and maturity to be a person who can fail and come back." Defeated on his first try, Weaver said he returned to vie for a national position a second time. "There are so many opportunities I would have missed," he explained.

Demonstrating wisdom beyond their years, the theme FFA youth presented "believe in yourself" throughout the event.

"The highest award that the FFA can bestow" is how the State Star awards were described. Recipients of the degrees were Dean Poffenberger of Boonsboro, for Agribusiness, and Eric Fleming of Chopticon, for Production Agriculture. The new state of Maryland officers for 1986-87 is as follows:

President, Mark Hooper, Frederick; Secretary, Buck Cessna, Flintstone; Region 1, Chuck Fitzwater, Oakland; Region 2, Raymond Stagner, Smithsburg; Region 3, Mike Marchesani, Walkersville; Region 7, Eric Fleming, Chopticon; Region 9, Henry Niehaus, Queen Anne's.

Lancaster Dairy Princess Pamela Kindig Receives A Hearty Welcome

BY SUZANNE KEENE

LANCASTER — Many of Lancaster County's former dairy princesses were on hand to congratulate the newly-crowned 1986-87 county dairy princess Pamela Kindig last Saturday evening. Pamela, the 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Robert Kindig, Conestoga, received her crown during the annual pageant at the Farm and Home Center.

In honor of the 50th anniversary celebration of June Dairy Month, 17 of the county's past princesses were welcomed to the stage, where each lighted a candle on a giant birthday cake. At the conclusion of the ceremony, the new princess ignited the remaining candle on the top layer of the cake.

"This is such an honor for me," Pamela said soon after receiving her crown. "Ever since I was a child, I wanted to be in this position."

In the coming year, Pamela will represent the county's dairymen at promotional events, in classrooms and shopping malls. She will also compete for the State Dairy Princess title this fall.

"I want to do the best I personally can do," Pamela said of her goals for the coming year.

A junior at Penn Manor High School, Pamela plans to enroll in college and study the physical sciences. She is secretary of the junior class, a member of the National Honor Society and is on the student council.

Pamela also plays field hockey, basketball and is on the swim team. She is an assistant leader in the 4-H photography project and enjoys playing the piano and photography. Her family has 55 milking Holsteins.

Pamela will be assisted in her promotional activities by alternate princesses Lorri Rutt and Mary Witmer.

First alternate Lorri is the 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Rutt of Quarryville. Lorri also received an award for giving the outstanding presentation.

For her presentation, Lorri appeared on stage as the Statue of Liberty, who explained that her body was deteriorated and took much effort to repair. However, she told the audience, humans can more easily maintain their healthy bodies by eating right and including dairy products in their diets.

Mary Witmer, the second alternate, is the 20-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Witmer, Willow Street.

Other contestants competing for the crown were Jodi Bixler, the 18-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jay Bixler, Marietta; and Jeannie Ginder, the 18-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ginder, Elizabethtown. Jeannie was selected Miss Congeniality by the other contestants.

Judges for the event were Phoebe Bitler, a home economist from Lebanon County and a former Berks County Dairy Princess; Robert Eckstine, a Mercersburg farmer; and Betty Rode, a retired Pennsylvania Department of Ag employee. Grover Gouker served as emcee.

1986-87 Lancaster County Dairy Princess Pamela Kindig, center, will be assisted by alternate princesses Lorri Rutt, left, and Mary Witmer, right.

Virginia FFA Names Star Farmer, Agribusinessman at Annual Convention

BY JULIE GOCHENOUR
Virginia Correspondent

BLACKSBURG, Va. — The Virginia Association of Future Farmers of America honored 256 members with the State Farmer Degree last week during its annual convention at Virginia Polytechnic Institute. State president Lee Arrington of Gretna, presided over activities during the four-day event.

The first Virginia FFA convention or State Rally, held in April 1927, was among the first held in the United States and may predate all other FFA state conventions. That first convention organized the Future Farmers of Virginia, or FFV, and the Future Farmers of America used the constitution, by-laws, official ceremonies, portions of the emblem, and the structure of the FFV when the national organization was founded in 1928 in Kansas City, Mo. Virginia was also the first chartered state association of the national organization.

This year's recipients of the State Farmer Degree include 17-year-old Tina Marie Stiles who was named Virginia's FFA State Star Farmer for 1986. She is the first woman to receive this award in Virginia. Tina, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Stiles of Toms Brook, is a member of the Strasburg FFA Chapter in northern Shenandoah County.

J. C. Banks, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Banks of Hillsville, and a member of the Carroll County Chapter of the FFA, was named the State Star Agribusinessman for 1986.

Miss Stiles qualified for the award through her outstanding accomplishments in FFA activities and a well-rounded Supervised Occupational Experience Program. Her major farm duties on her parents' dairy operation include caring for calves from calving to weaning, working with the crops, milking and halter training show animals. She also works part-time in a local veterinary clinic and has been an active member of the Strasburg FFA chapter.

J. C. Banks' qualifications include work on his parents' dairy farm, production of beef steers and veal calves, and numerous FFA activities.

Other Virginia FFA members also received statewide recognition of their accomplishments during the annual convention. These include the recipients of the following awards:

Craig J. Bailey, Broadway, Va., FFA Diversified Livestock Production; J. C. Banks, Hillsville, Va., FFA Soil and Water Management; Andrew Barr, Damascus, Va., FFA Fruit and/or Vegetable Production; Raymond Brown, Elkwood, Va., FFA State Agriculture Mechanics; Bryan Cauthorne, Ashland, Va., FFA Poultry Production; Mack Clark, South Hill, Va., FFA Home and/or Farmstead Improvement; Kevin K. Are You Letting Stray Voltage Milk Your Profits?

You could be and you might not even know it. University studies show it may make your herd difficult to handle, increase mastitis, and ultimately lead to an overall decrease in your production and profits.

Using computer technology, our survey documents the level of stray voltage and shows you when and where it occurs on your farm.

From the survey report you can determine if stray voltage is milking your profits. If it is, Blackburn has the only guaranteed method of reducing it from both on and off-farm sources.

When we make it so easy to detect and reduce stray voltage it makes sense to find out if your milk output and herd health is less than it could be.

To learn more about stray voltage and its effects call for our free brochure or arrange for a detection survey. We'll put your farm to the test. And put your mind at ease.

Becky Hipple Tops Competitors to Become Lycoming County Dairy Princess

BY BARBARA MILLER
Lycoming Co. Correspondent

MUNCY — Becky Hipple, the 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hipple, Trout Run, is the 1986 Lycoming County Dairy Princess. Becky was chosen from a field of five at the county pageant, held Friday night, June 20, at the Lycoming Mall, Muncy. More than 300 people attended.

The princess completed her junior year at Montoursville High School. She is a member of the Language Club, Language Honor Society, Future Business Leaders of America and concert and church choirs, and participates in FFA activities. She plans to enter business school after high school.

For her creative presentation, Becky appeared on stage as Martha Washington dressed in a white cap and long dress. She gave a history of milk starting with 8,000 BC drawings depicting a scene with cows right up until the present day. She noted if her husband, George, had drunk more milk, he probably wouldn't have had to wear dental plates with wooden teeth.

The Hipples milk 30 cows and farm 200 acres. According to Becky, her chores on the farm include feeding cows and helping with the hay.

In addition to cooking and reading Becky likes to sew. She made her full-length sundress-styled gown of an "all-over print" on a cream background and highlighted it with a seven-inch white eyelet lace ruffle at the hem of the skirt. A jacket of white embroidered eyelet batiste completed the outfit.

Alternate dairy princess is Marilyn J. Kiess, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Kiess, Jersey Shore. Her puppet presentation featured a dairy farmer who was thinking about quitting farming until the "dairy angel" reminded him of the many uses of milk in our everyday lives. This included the use of milk in paints, plastics, cement, and medicines.

Other contestants were LuAnn Marshall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Marshall, Jersey Shore; Shelley Lynn Sechrist, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Sechrist, Cogan Station; and Lynette M. Ulmer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Ulmer, Linden.

Linda Heck, 1985 Lycoming County Dairy Princess, thanked everyone for supporting her during the year, especially her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Heck, Jersey Shore. She said she reached about 11,000 people of all ages the past year in her dairy promotion efforts and gave six ice cream parties to school children who collected Real Seals.

Honored guests at the pageant were the nine former Lycoming County dairy princesses. They were Linda Jarrett, 1976; Suzette Drick Ulrich, 1977; Becky Paulhamus Shutts, 1978; Jennie Fuoss Finn, 1979; Sherri Lovell Hoffman, 1980; Darlene Hensler McCoy, 1981; Laurie Bauder, 1982; Linda Berger Savoye, 1983; and Lori Rupert Stamen, 1984. Each took the stage for a moment and updated the crowd on their present day activities.

Mr. and Mrs. Dave Jarrett were recognized for 10 years of service on the Lycoming County Dairy Princess Committee.

Judges for the 1986 Lycoming County Dairy Pageant were Lowell Brubaker, Manheim, dairy farmer; Gordon Hiller, Department of Agriculture; and Mrs. Charlene Ranck, Gap, a 1981 Pennsylvania Dairy Princess.

Master of ceremonies was Dave Moon, a dairy farmer from New Albany. Peggy Morehart was the director of the pageant and provided entertainment by playing the flute. Sue Ulmer accompanied her on the piano.

The pageant was sponsored by the Lycoming County Dairy Princess Committee, Mr. and Mrs. David Jarrett and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Barto, Co-chairmen, and the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program.

Becky Hipple, left, was recently crowned 1986 Lycoming County Dairy Princess. Marilyn Kiess, right, was selected alternate princess.

Huntingdon County Dairy Princess Is Shanna Jo Cunningham

BY BETSY STITT
Blair County Correspondent

HUNTINGDON — Shanna Jo Cunningham of Huntingdon was crowned Huntingdon County Dairy Princess June 21 during the annual pageant held in conjunction with the county's Holstein Club picnic.

Shanna received her crown from last year's alternates Wanda Love and Lisa McMahon.

Shanna, the daughter of Glen and Jean Cunningham, attends Huntingdon Area High School, where she is co-valedictorian of the Class of 1987. Her activities include secretary of National Honor Society, Prom Committee, church youth group and a Science Olympiad competitor. She plans to attend college after graduation.

During the pageant contestants were asked questions testing their knowledge of the dairy industry. One of Shanna's questions was: Do you think farming is a good career choice and would you encourage young people to become involved?"

She answered that although farming requires long hours and much hard work, it is a good career choice. Shanna said she would encourage young people to enter farming if they were up to that challenge.

Shanna was also asked which age group she would most like to promote milk to. She responded that she would prefer to work with children because they are fun and are interested in the importance of milk.

Pamela Ann Gilliland was named alternate princess. She is the daughter of John and Karen Gilliland of Warrior's Mark.

Pam attends Tyrone Area High School, where her activities include National Honor Society, cheerleading, Key Club, Vistos, Ski Club, Varsity Club, and girl's social chairman. She is a graduate of Barbizon Modeling School and plans to attend college after high school.

Alternates Wanda Love and Lisa McMahon reviewed the year's activities. They also presented the skit that 1985 Dairy Princess Tina Shultz used during her reign.

Albert Masood served as master of ceremonies. Judges were Debbie Metzker, a member of the Blair County Dairy Promotion Committee; Donna Martin, country life editor for the Altoona Mirror; and F. Mark Weber, 1985 American Farmer degree recipient and a dairy farmer from Berks County.

Erie County Dairy Princess Darla Bisbee is Active, Innovative

BY NANCY KUNICK
Crawford County Correspondent

WATTSBURG — Active and innovative describes the new Erie County Dairy Princess, Darla Bisbee, and the dairy princess committee behind her.

For the first time Erie County held its annual Farm City Day on a farm and it was a huge success according to hosts Henry and Cyndy Cass of Cass Farms in Wattsburg. They estimate 2,500 people visited their dairy operation on June 14.

Approximately 200 attended the highlight of the event, the dairy princess pageant that evening. This was the largest attendance and the best contestant participation in several years. Four competed for the title — Darla Bisbee, Louise Murkens, Michele Huegel (Miss Congeniality) and Theresa Titus.

Another first this year was the introduction of a Dairy Maid contest for girls too young to compete for dairy princess. The contest was initiated to create more interest and give girls speaking experience prior to princess contests.

This too was successful as six girls tried for the title. The 1986 Dairy Maid is Julie Williams of Edinboro. She is a student at General McClane High School. Julie lives on a Holstein farm and is involved in 4-H, church and school activities. The Dairy Maid contestants each wrote an essay and had a private interview with the judges.

The dairy princess contestants had a "real" challenge. They each prepared a spoken response to the question, "How would your past farm related experience be utilized to promote the dairy industry as dairy princess?"

Darla must have convinced the judges that life on a 550-acre farm milking 70 Holsteins was invaluable experience. She is the 1986 Dairy Princess and daughter of Lyle and Ilene Bisbee of Union City. Darla, 16, will be a senior at Seneca High School, where she is in band, student council, cheerleading, and vice president of the Wilderness Club. She plans to attend business school. Her interests are 4-H, swimming, music and farming.

Darla sparkles with enthusiasm and said she tried out because she was interested and one of the committee members personally asked her if she would like to —

Regional 4-H Conference set in Delaware

NEWARK, Del. – The Northeast Regional 4-H Volunteer Leader Forum will be held in Wilmington, Del., this year. The event will be held at the Sheraton-Brandywine Inn, Oct. 16 through 19.

Leaders attending the conference will participate in workshops and seminars which will teach them to "Lead the Way" in meeting today's challenges in 4-H. The event, coordinated by 4-H agent Joy Sparks, is being planned and implemented by a group of 4-H leaders.

A main objective of this year's forum is to help leaders develop skills in management and communications. Seminar topics include leadership and directional skills, community and family relations, and ways to make 4-H more visible.

Speakers include Dr. Hope Daugherty and Dr. Thomas Zurcher.

Daugherty is a retired U.S. Department of Agriculture worker and an enthusiastic 4-H volunteer. She has worked with child and family development programs and is interested in keeping 4-H organizations vital and active.

Zurcher, who is from Minnesota, will use stuffed animals to present a fun and unique way of bringing animal science to all 4-H'ers.

The convention will also provide a place for 4-H leaders to meet each other. "This is a great opportunity to make new friends, interact and develop plans for future 4-H programming," says Sparks.

The registration deadline is Sept. 10. Sparks encourages participants to register early as a large turnout is expected and hotel space may be limited.

For more information or registration contact a county 4-H office in Wilmington (571-2498), Newark (451-8965), Dover (736-1448) or Georgetown (856-7303).

Erie County Dairy Princess

and now she's glad she did. She's looking forward to her busy reign.

Helping her will be Alternate Dairy Princess Louise Murkens. The 17-year-old daughter of Harry and Yvonne Murkens of Albion is a student at Northwestern High School where she is in Ski Club and marching band. She lives on a 190-acre farm and has Holsteins and Jerseys.

Judges for the pageant were Joan Murray of Channel 35 Newswatch in Erie; Carol Powell, Crawford County Dairy Princess committee; and Rick Neely of Meadville Production Credit.

1985 Dairy Princess Delina Kibbe made her farewell speech and Rodney Carlson entertained as master of ceremonies. A square dance concluded the festivities.

The hard-working committee is already talking about the dairy princess contest for next year and are proud of this one. They are Jay and Jeana Proctor; Henry and Cyndy Cass; Ron and Sharon Chapman; Dale and Mary Sue Meabon; Ralph and Michele Gilkinson; and Bill and Bonnie Loper, parents of 1984 Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Lynette Loper. Bonnie is the committee chairperson and can be contacted at R.D. #4 Waterford.

Upper Shore Dairy Princess Fran Talley

Fran Talley, center, is the 1986 Upper Shore Dairy Princess. The 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Talley of Rising Sun, Md., she plans to attend Cecil Community College this fall. The alternate dairy princess, Lisa Davis, right, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Davis of Earleville. She is also the 1986 Cecil County Farm Queen.

Kathy Myers of Centerville, also pictured, was the 1985 Upper Shore Dairy Princess.

FAIR Days

All across the Keystone State young exhibitors are grooming, training and finishing their livestock for fair season that's upon us once again. For Pennsylvania's farm community fair season is synonymous with fun season, as farmers renew acquaintances and catch up on what's been going on in the next township, county or state.

To keep you from missing out on any of the action, here's a chronological listing of fairs beginning with the Lamb and Wool festival next month and culminating, of course, with the Farm Show in January. If you'd like more information, the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's Fair Directory is now available. In addition to the dates and locations of 126 fairs, the directory includes names and phone numbers of fair coordinators. To obtain your free copy, send a postcard to the Pennsylvania Fair Fund, Pa. Dept. of Agriculture, 2301 N. Cameron St., Harrisburg, PA 17110-9408.

NEW from ROHRER'S

ALFALFA TOPDRESS 5-10-41

An ideal fertilizer for top dressing alfalfa.

You can get the advantage of Ortho Unipel fertilizer plus additional high quality Potash.

Alfalfa demands a lot of potash from soil and fertilizer. In fact, alfalfa removes four times more potash than phosphate from the soil. And that's what Rohrer's Alfalfa Topdress 5-10-41 provides, the proper 4:1 ratio of potash to phosphate that alfalfa needs along with quickly available nitrate nitrogen that can help stimulate regrowth after cutting. In addition to supplying the right nutrient package, Rohrer's Alfalfa Topdress 5-10-41 applies easily, quickly, and economically. Call us today at 299-2571 for a program recommendation.

Augusta Wool Pool Averages $68

BY JULIE GOCHENOUR
Virginia Correspondent

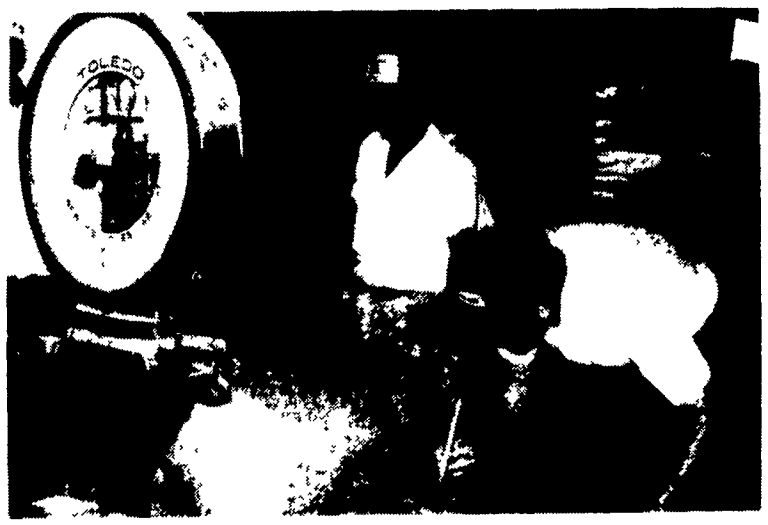
STAUNTON, Va. – Members of the Augusta Wool Pool took their fall and spring clips to town last week and went home with $68 for each hundredweight they delivered. Business was brisk at the Staunton pick-up point as Augusta and Rockbridge producers brought in more than 135,000 pounds of wool during the three day period – making it the largest wool pool in the state.

Augusta is a member of the Virginia Wool Pool which was established in 1962 to help Virginia producers get a better price for their wool. There are 10 local pools, including North Carolina, in the state organization, and these hold a joint sale in May. The sale is conducted with sealed bids and each pool is bid on individually and in a pre-arranged order.

This year six competing buyers took the average price for 633,000 pounds of consigned wool to $69.42 per cwt. Augusta followed the Washington-Smyth and Russell-Tazewell pools with a high bid of $68.62 from Helmig & Company. The local wool pool commitee, made up of producers, makes the decisions to accept or reject the bid. Once a bid is accepted, they then qan make arrangements with the buyer as to when the wool will be delivered to the take-up point.

Prices are F.O.B. but the wool pool committee make the arrangements for transportation according to the buyer's specifications. Then producers bring their wool to the take-up points where it is weighed, inspected, and loaded on trucks or train cars to be shipped. Charges for these services are simply deducted from the lump payment the company made before the producers are paid.

In Augusta and elsewhere throughout Virginia, fleeces are sold on an ungraded basis and classified as a low grade medium wool. Yet historically they near and sometimes even top the national average, according to Dr. Steve Umberger, VPI Extension Sheep Specialist who works closely with the Virginia Wool Pool.



More than 135,000 pounds of wool crossed the scales at Staunton, Virginia last week during the Augusta Wool Pool pickup.

USDA Science Agency To Fill 100 Positions

WASHINGTON – Veteran scientists with the U.S. Department of Agriculture are looking for 100 new scientists to join them for up to two years in special high-technology research projects.

Terry B. Kinney, Jr., administrator of USDA's Agricultural Research Service, said the new scientists must have completed graduate school within the last several years.

The 100 positions and $4 million to fund the research are double the totals for last year, Kinney said. All the new scientists will be recruited through the agency's research associate program that has been expanded each year since it was introduced in 1981.

"We want to continue to attract talented scientists to careers in agricultural research," Kinney said. "Our 1986 program increases the opportunities."

Kinney said many of the projects "could lead to important new knowledge in molecular biology and genetic engineering and could have a significant effect on crop and livestock production in U.S. agriculture."

Research associates will be hired at the GS-11 or GS-12 levels with salaries ranging from $26,381 to $31,619.

Persons interested in applying for a position should contact the Agricultural Research Service, Personnel Division, c/o N.L. Bakes, Building 003, Room 333, Beltsville, Md. 20705. Only U.S. citizens may apply.

Tree Planting Reaches All-Time High

WASHINGTON – For the fourth consecutive year, the nation has broken all previous records for planting forest trees, Secretary of Agriculture Richard E. Lyng said today.

Trees were planted on 2.7 million acres in 1985, Lyng said, up from the previous high of 2.5 million in 1984. About 1.9 billion tree seedlings were produced for the plantings. Lyng said USDA's Forest Service predicts tree seedling production for 1986 may go over the two billion mark for the first time in history.

Eighty-six percent of the tree plantings in 1985 were on private lands, primarily in the South, 11 percent on federal lands, and the remaining three percent on non-federal public lands. Georgia led in tree planting with 457,000 acres, followed by Florida, 235,000 acres, Alabama, 224,000 acres and Mississippi, 212,000 acres.

Lyng said the Conservation Reserve Program, established as part of the Food Security Act of 1985, is expected to increase forest tree planting efforts even more.

The CRP is designed to remove from cultivation as many as 40-45 million acres of highly erodible cropland and plant it to grass, trees and other vegetative cover. At least one-eighth of the total land enrolled, about 5 million acres, is expected to be planted to trees under this five-year program.

"The trend in tree planting on private lands and the influence of the CRP augers a new era for forestry, particularly in the South. The bids accepted in the CRP for 1985 in the South provide for planting an additional 327,000 acres to pine trees next year. They are needed to sustain long-term timber supplies and employment in the South," Lyng said.

Lyng also said USDA's Forest Service plans to help mark the 200th birthday of the signing of the U.S. Constitution Sept. 17, 1987, by launching a national tree planting effort that will emphasize the roles of trees in American history. Details of the project, which will emphasize the ceremonial planting of "Constitution trees" all over America, will be announced shortly, Lyng said.

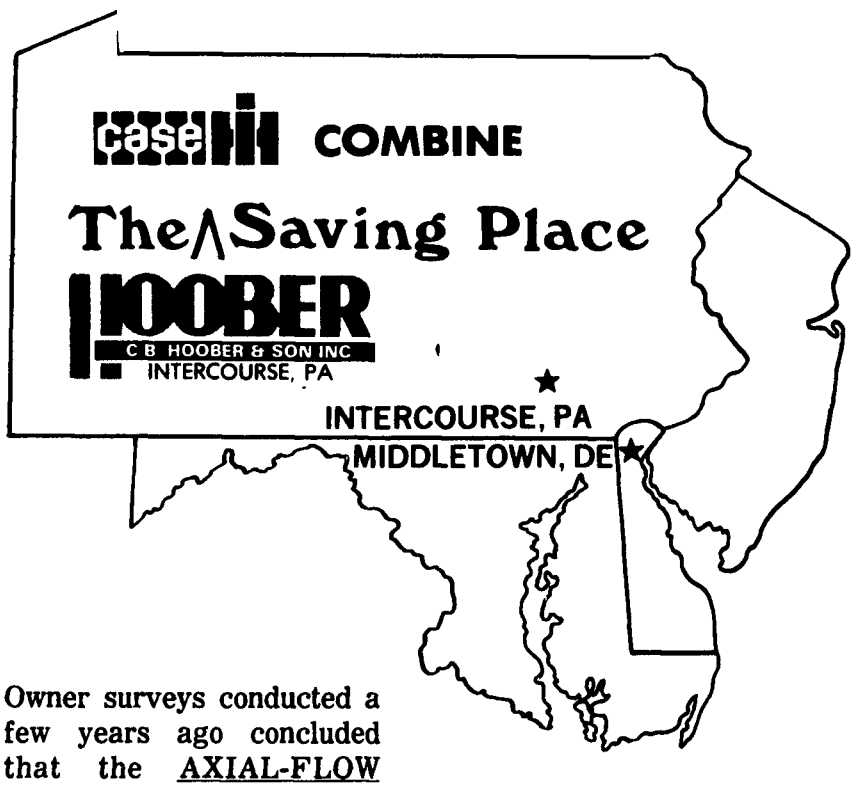
BUY YOUR NEXT COMBINE FROM HOOBER



Believe It!

The 1600 Series Axial-Flow Combine Is MORE PRODUCTIVE...

WOW!

Owner surveys conducted a few years ago concluded that the AXIAL-FLOW combine harvested more grain per hour, more grain per day, and more grain per acre than previously-owned conventional combines. Now Case-IH has introduced the 1600 series. These new models have larger threshing and separation areas to make them even more productive than the 1400 Series models they replace. So the new models are even MORE PRODUCTIVE. You shouldn't take our word for it - you should try one in your crops. You, too, will say, "WOW."

FOUR MODELS TO CHOOSE FROM

	1620	1640	1660	1680
CASE-IH ENGINE HORSEPOWER	124 HP	150 HP	180 HP	225 HP
GRAIN TANK CAPACITY	125 BUSHELS	145 BUSHELS	180 BUSHELS	210 BUSHELS
- Maximum	6 ROW NARROW	6 ROW WIDE	8 ROW NARROW	8 ROW WIDE
FLEX-HEAD GRAIN PLATFORMS	15' to 20'	15' to 22.5'	15' to 25'	15' to 30'

The Reason Axial-Flow Combines Are More Productive - THE ROTOR!

The Single Rotor design is SIMPLE!

Only a single rotor to thresh and separate. Eliminates the straw-walker assemblies common to conventional combines. Less moving parts means less maintenance, less downtime.

The Single Rotor Design is HIGHER QUALITY GRAIN

Multiple threshing action of axial-flow reduces kernal damage and holds elevator dockage to a minimum.

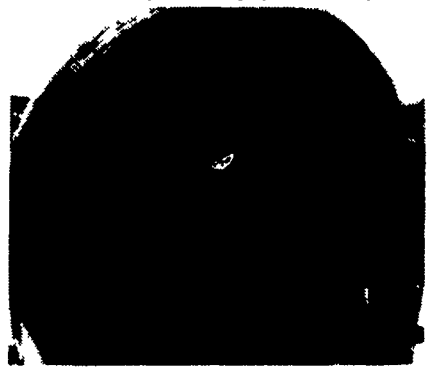
The Single Rotor Design is MORE PRODUCTIVITY!

When your crops are ripe and ready to harvest, Axial-Flow allows you to move faster than with a conventional combine. The rotor's large throat means no bottle-necks up front. You'll be able to harvest at top speed for maximum productivity, even on side-hills.



AN AXIAL-FLOW COMBINE FROM HOOBER'S IS A SAVINGS TO YOU!

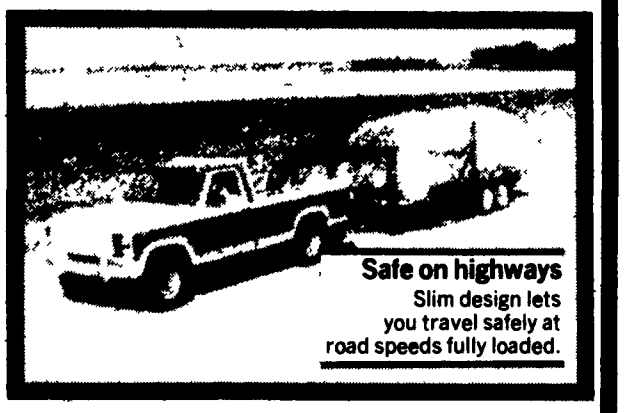
Why vertical stacking?

Ground moisture can deteriorate bales quickly with as much as 30% of a bale lost. Tote.n.Stak's 3 bale vertical stack puts only one bale in three on the ground. When the stack is covered with loose straw or a tarp, there's virtually no moisture build-up, so there's less moisture damage. Less string rot and breakage too.

The Tote.n.Stak will operate inside hay sheds with 20 feet or more of clearance.

Retrieving bales is easy too. Move 'em three at a time with Tote.n.Stak, or one at a time with a front end loader



Safe on highways
Slim design lets you travel safely at road speeds fully loaded.

LOOK AT THESE FEATURES:

- one person from-the-truck total hydraulic operation
- pick up, haul, stack and retrieve bales
- optional tractor-mount hitch available
- field tested on thousands of big round bales under all conditions

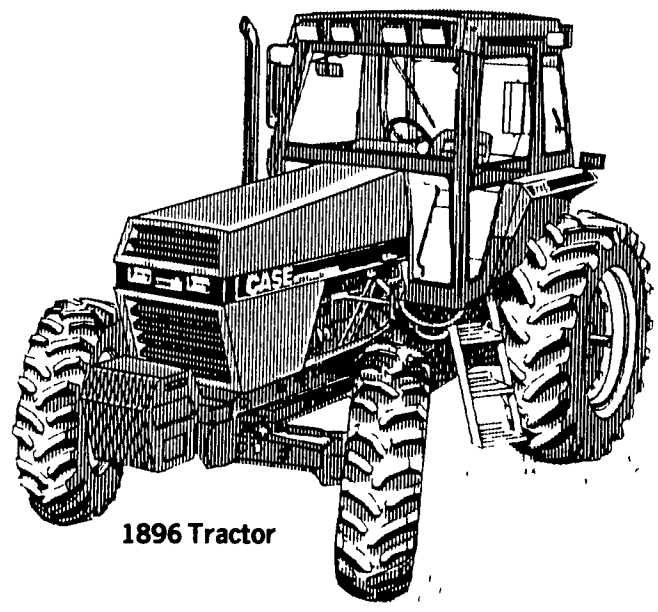
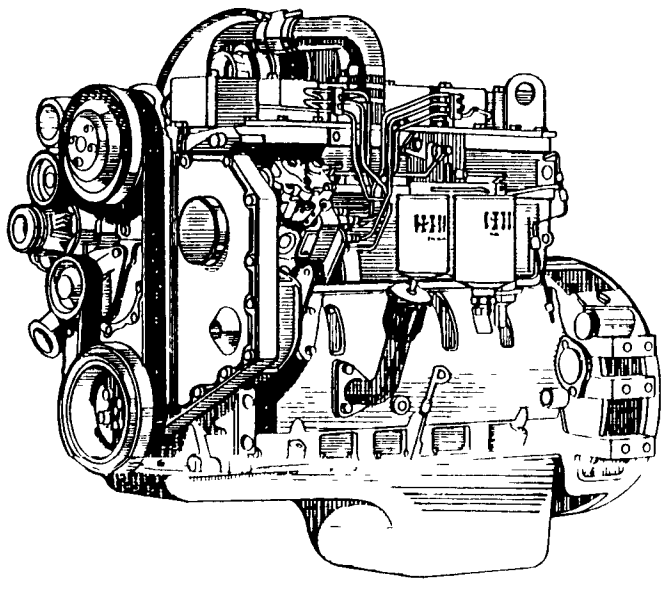
Investing in Design....

To Save Farmers Money



1896 Tractor



Performance is written all over our new 95 hp and 115 hp engines that power the 1896 and 2096 Case IH tractors. Recent fuel economy tests of our new engine at Nebraska far exceed previous Case or International Harvester engine designs by saving farmers nearly one gallon of fuel per hour. With nearly one-third of the cost of ownership of a tractor directly related to fuel cost THAT'S INVESTING IN DESIGN TO SAVE FARMERS MONEY.

Calfcheck will help you get a bigger calf crop, make better decisions on culling, make more efficient use of bulls or artificial insemination and improve your herd calving interval. The overall result will be more milk and bigger profits.

So don't let your cows keep their secrets a day longer.

Find out about the Calfcheck REPROSTRIP now. Available in kits of 24 or 64 tests.

Chianina-Crosses Popular In Virginia Jr. Beef Roundup

BY JULIE GOCHENOUR
Virginia Correspondent

HARRISONBURG, Va. — Nearly 100 Virginia youth from across the state participated in the 1986 Virginia Junior Beef Roundup at the Rockingham County Fairgrounds on June 13 and 14. Five breed shows, an open heifer show and an all-breed steer show were highlights of the annual two-day event.

Two Chianina-cross heifers took top honors in the open heifer show, with Mary Harris of Roanoke exhibiting the champion and Austinville's Jane Ogle taking the reserve.

With the exception of Susan Belford from White Post catching the top spot in the first steer class with her 890 pound shorthorn, Chianinas also dominated the all-breed steer show judged by VPI's Extension Beef Specialist Ike Eller.

Mary Harris, Kelli Thompson of Hamilton, Doug Smith from Singers Glen and Robert Harris took the next four classes with their crossbred steers. Clay Kyger of Port Republic had the grand champion steer, an 1195-pound Angus X Chianina, and Bryson Michael took the reserve championship with the same cross.

Simmental Show

The Virginia Junior Simmental Show was the largest of the five breed shows with 52 heifers and 11 cow/calf pairs. Amy Rosenoff of Boones Mill exhibited the reserved champion calf, FHF Syncopation, for Fox Hollow Farm, while Reid Lews of Yanceyville, NC, had the champion calf, Pineview Lassie 604T. Both the intermediate and reserve intermediate champions were Virginia heifers, with Miss MHF 135T, belonging to Ruth McCall of Waterford, taking the highest honor and Round Hill's Joyce Sleeter getting the reserve with WBF Lady 01T.

Competition was strong among the yearlings with Teresa Eastep of Woodstock capturing the junior championship with her KWF Miss Supercharger and Tracy Braxton of Graham, NC, showing Princess Florence, the reserve champion junior female. Teresa Eastep also had the champion senior female, FS With A Tall, shown by Mike Gochenour of Woodstock, while North Carolina's Dan Burns took the reserve spot with A&B Miss Buckeye.

North Carolina edged Virginia out of the grand champion female honors, however, with Reid Lewis' Pineview Lassie 604T sired by Signal on a Canadian Salvator dam. Teresa Eastep's KWF Miss Supercharger, a Supercharger daughter and Signal granddaughter. Miss Supercharger was also the grand champion individual exhibitor owned heifer with Vernon Wright II of Winchester taking the reserve with his Hill High Top Pockets. Scott McIntire of White Post was the show's judge.

Angus Show

Competition was also keen in the Angus show. Jane Ogle had the champion heifer calf with Eve's Cowgirl out of Wrangler, and Susan Belford took the reserve with Waltz Black Birdie. A New Yorker daughter, Cypress Creek Mayflower T37, shown by Heather Lamond, was the champion intermediate heifer while another New Yorker daughter, Crow Harris Dynamo Cypress, shown by Anne Jones of Forest, was the reserve intermediate champion for the Angus show.

Heather Lamond of Bluemont also showed the champion junior

Farrowing and Nursery Flooring

What's the ideal flooring for the farrowing house and nursery? Five years from now we'll still be asking that question and we probably still won't have the answer. Why? Because when you buy a piece of flooring for a farrowing crate or nursery deck, you want it to be low in cost, durable, non-abrasive, non-slippery and warm. No one yet has put all those qualities into one piece of material.

So the floor – like every other part of a hog building – is an investment in trade-offs. You trade durability for comfort. You get rid of the abrasiveness and put up with slipperiness. Or you might give up a little of everything to make it affordable.

Research on the more recent flooring materials is limited and adds to the confusion since studies show no difference in number born live, number weaned or litter weight at 21 days among various flooring types.

So if there is no such thing as ideal, what's the best investment? Let's look at what's available. Price listings and popularity ratings are taken from recent conversations with several Pennsylvania equipment dealers. (Special sales will be cheaper.)

Woven Wire - After several years on the market, this stuff is still selling well. The big advantage – lot's of open area between the wires. That keeps it clean when the pigs are there, and makes washing easier when the pigs are gone. The disadvantages – it's cold, it doesn't last forever and it causes some pretty nasty shoulder lesions on thin sows. Average cost: $2.60/sq. ft. for the 5-gauge wire, $2.60/sq. ft. for 3-gauge wire. In addition, structural support (usually treated 2 x 6's on 1-foot centers, will cost about $.50/sq. ft. Sales seem to be evenly split between the two gauges.

Plastic Coated Woven Wire - In terms of baby pig comfort, this material is far and away superior to woven wire. It's popularity surged for a few years, but sales now are pretty slow. Why? The plastic coating just doesn't stand much abuse – especially from a nervous sow in labor. And because of the plastic coating, manure doesn't slip through as easily as with the woven wire. Average cost: $4.55/sq. ft. plus the cost of support (roughly $.50/sq. ft.).

Plastic Coated Expanded Metal - Everything we said about plastic coated wire can be said for this stuff. It gets a high rating for pig comfort, but it's not as durable as we'd like. Average cost: $4/sq. ft.

Plastic Slats - Lots of companies offer plastic slats, but most of the plastic slats sold in Pennsylvania seem to be Vigortone's Filter-Eeze product. Like many plastic slats, Vigortone's are durable and they're warm. Many producers, however, complain that plastic slats are too slippery. Some sows have no problems on plastic. For others it's a struggle to get up and down without spraddling their hind legs. Average cost for Vigortone's product: $4/sq. ft. for the slats, $3/sq. ft. for the support. (Costs based on 5x7 farrowing crate flooring.)

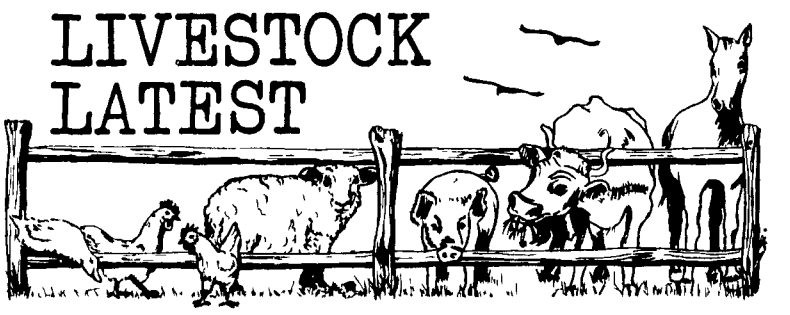
Tri-Bar - This is an imported galvanized steel product that's fairly new on the market. Each of the slats or "bars" is shaped like a triangle. Both the width and spacing between each bar is about 3/8 inch. That makes for easy cleaning. Reinforcement rods welded under the bars add strength and eliminate the need for support. It carries a 10-year warranty, so durability isn't a question. The disadvantage, as with any metal slat – is the chilling effect it has on baby pigs. So it comes with an optional heat unit for the baby pigs. What sort of rating can we give this stuff? Producers seem to be satisfied with the material so far, but it hasn't been out there long enough to give it an honest evaluation. Average cost (without the heat unit): $5.50/sq. ft.

Aluminum, Fiberglass, Stainless Steel Slats: Ten years ago you didn't have to look very hard to find these materials in farrowing houses and nurseries. Now they have all but disappeared in new facilities, because they're too cold, too slippery, too flimsy or all of the above.

Combination Slats - In my book, this concept is a good one, especially for the farrowing crate. Since the needs of the sow and baby pigs are different, why not use a combination of materials to get the best of several worlds? I'm sure there are several "combination" slats on the market, but the only one I've seen is offered by Hog Slat, Inc. Hog Slat makes a product for the farrowing house that features conventional concrete slats along the front of the farrowing crate and under the sow. That provides a surface that's smooth and indestructable. Behind the sow, they insert either woven wire or Tri-Bar. So there's enough open area to reduce sow manure build-up, yet enough footing for new-born pigs. Along the sides, plastic coated expanded metal is inserted. That provides a warm, non-abrasive surface for pigs while they nurse. The whole works costs about $205 which comes to about $5.85/sq. ft. for the 5x7 area. But like some other materials it'll have to be on the market for a while to give it a true test.

Before making a final decision on flooring, look at your situation. Some of the better materials cost more, but you may not be able to afford them. For example, if you're remodeling and you expect to farrow sows for only another five years, woven wire would probably be your best bet because of it's low cost. Or if the sows are a small part of your total income, there's no sense in adding a lot to your overhead with expensive flooring. But if you're committed to hogs and they're all you've got, you ought to go after the best flooring you can find.

One final comment regarding flooring and feed waste. When we farrowed sows on solid floors, feed waste wasn't a problem. Now that we've graduated to raised crates with open flooring, feed waste is a big item. So you have to prevent it by placing a solid material under the feeder, or recover it before it's flushed into the lagoon. I know one producer that uses a wet-dry vac to recover feed that's fallen through the cracks. A simple solution for an expensive problem.



Pork Producers Urged to Vote in Elections

UNIVERSITY PARK — Pennsylvania pork producers have the opportunity to vote in a USDA sponsored statewide election, July 7-11. By voting, producers will help select individuals for appointment to an industry-wide body that will administer promotion, research and consumer information for what is commonly known as the "Pork Act." The Pork Act was passed by Congress in the recent Farm Bill and will make check-off mandatory at the rate of one-fourth of one percent of the value of pigs, hogs and seedstock.

Dr. Kenneth Kephart, extension swine specialist at Penn State, encourages all producers to vote in the elections. Nominees on the ballot include David Reinecker from Adams County and Philip Frieling from Schuylkill County. Both of these men are currently serving on the delegate body to the National Pork Producers Council.

Kephart says that voting will take place at county extension offices July 7-11 during normal business hours. Voters must register at the time of voting to certify that they are pork producers of Pennsylvania.

For individuals unable to vote in person, absentee voting packets may be obtained from Jim Epstein, National Pork Producers Election, P.O. Box 23762, Washington D.C. 20026-3762; telephone (202) 475-5407. Absentee ballots must be postmarked by July 11, and received at the above address no later than July 18.

The Lifetime Roofing

NO RIP OFF!

Reroof directly over existing roof. For installation instructions

ASK THE EXPERTS!

THERE'S NO OTHER ROOFING MATERIAL LIKE IT.

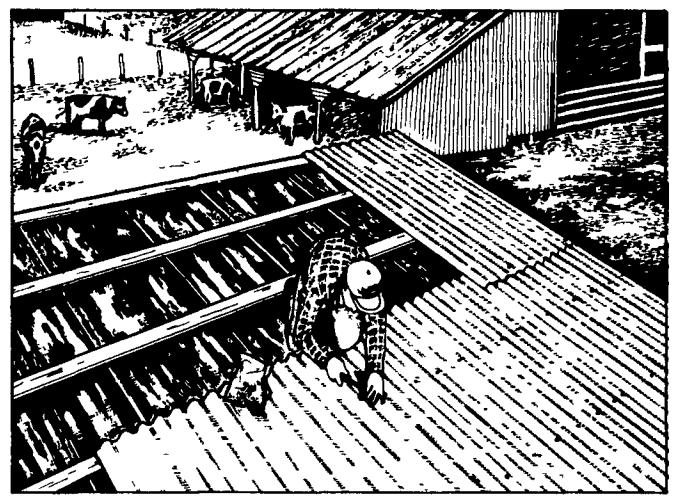
Onduline's very construction makes it different. And makes it a superior roofing and siding material at the same time.

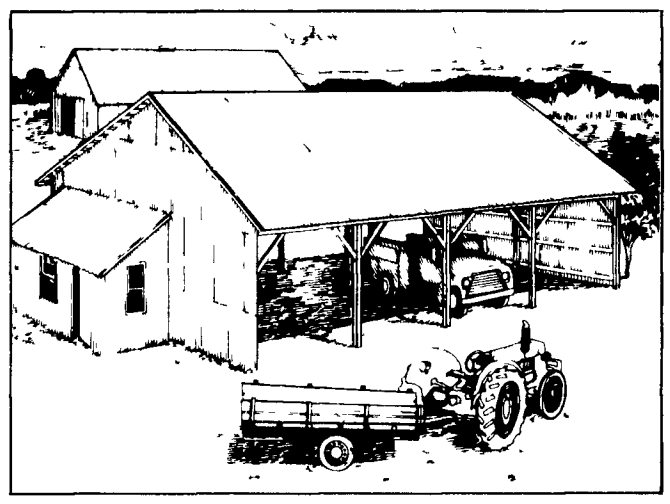
Its corrugated design enables it to be both lightweight and strong.

While its total asphalt impregnation means it outlasts most other roofing. Including metal.

But you don't have to take our word that Onduline is tough. It's met rigid building codes throughout the country.

And it's been in successful use on roofs all over the world for nearly 40 years.





EASY INSTALLATION ISN'T THE ONLY REASON TO USE ONDULINE.

The roof renewed with Onduline will have something it didn't have before.

Dead air space.

This means significantly better insulation because dead air space acts as a barrier to heat and cold transfer.

So in the winter, an Onduline-covered building is likely to be warmer. And in summer, cooler.

Of course, what makes Onduline such a good reroofing material is how long it lasts.

And that's the real reason why, above all, Onduline is a better roofing.

Chesapeake Bay Program In Action

Virginia Farm Tour Highlights Manure Storage Systems

BY JULIE GOCHENOUR
Virginia Correspondent

HARRISONBURG, Va. – Farmers in Rockingham County, Virginia are benefitting from a program to clean up the waters of the Chesapeake Bay. High nitrogen levels in surface water that reaches the Bay are seriously affecting marine life there. In response to the problem, Virginia's Division of Soil and Water Conservation has set up a program that works with farmers to reduce the nitrogen from agricultural sources.

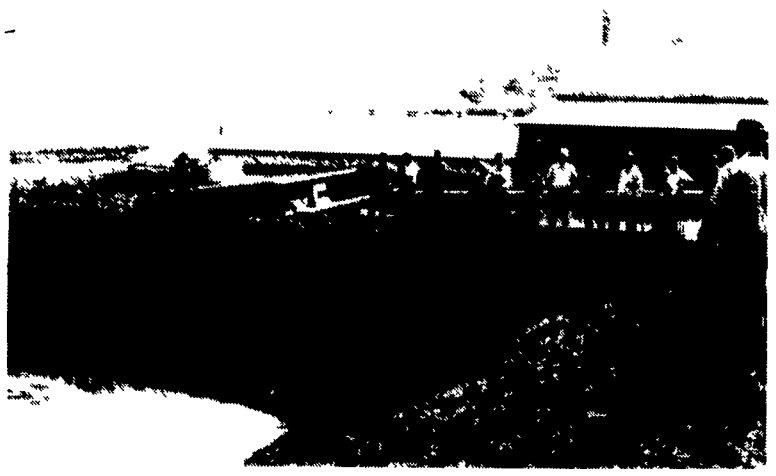
The heart of the effort is the Chesapeake Bay Agricultural Best Management Practice Cost Share Program and has been very well received by county producers. Rockingham is Virginia's leading agricultural county with about 300 dairies, and has been pin-pointed as a major source of nitrogen pollution. The Chesapeake Bay Program is set up to limit this by providing financial incentives that encourage farmers to invest in waste management systems which control nitrogen-rich run-off from animal manures.

Nearly 50 farmers toured the county recently to get a firsthand look at some of these systems. Much of the money from the program has gone into concrete or earthen storage facilities for animal wastes and these were the emphasis of the tour. Producers also had the opportunity to quiz owner/operators on their management of the systems and how they fit into the total farming operation.

Heatwole Dairy Farm

The first stop on the tour was Dewitt Heatwole's dairy west of Harrisonburg. In addition to an older 70-by-70-by-5-foot concrete storage facility next to the barn, Heatwole recently installed a 39-by-39-by-10-foot earthen pond with the help of cost sharing funds from the Bay Program and A.C.P. program of the ASCS. These two facilities allow the dairyman to store more than 61,800 cubic feet of combined manure, washwater and precipitation—or 280 days of waste from his 80-animal dairy herd when kept in total confinement.

Roscoe Wine's gravity flow manure system includes the circular concrete pit pictured that feeds truck located downhill.



Manure from Dewitt Heatwole's earthen storage pond combines with a second concrete unit to provide the farmer with up to 40 weeks of storage for 80-cow dairy herd.

The two facilities form a complementary system that gives Heatwole additional flexibility. Manure and washwater from the barn are deposited into the concrete structure and pumped up to the primary earthen pond as it becomes necessary. When the liquid manure is to be used, it's pumped out of the concrete facility and the upper holding area is allowed to drain back into the older structure. From there it is loaded and applied to cropland at the appropriate times for fertilization.

Horst Dairy Farm

Mennonite dairyman Daniel Horst also lets fertilization needs rather than limited capacity determine when he empties his storage facility. The brand new 50-head operation has a 365-day total confinement waste storage capacity of 84,318 cubic feet and was the second stop on the waste management tour.

Producers were particularly interested in the mechanics of the set-up on Horst's farm. The earthen storage pond accepts manure and waste water from the operation through a two-foot pipe under the barn and lot. Manure is pushed to a drop structure in the floor of the freestall barn, and waste water carries it, by gravity flow, to the pond. There is also a push-off ramp at the edge of the paved and grooved lot.

Although no funding was used to construct Horst's facility, Bill Patterson, district conservationist and tour guide for the day, pointed out that the dairyman still had to follow the same procedures as farmers who participate in the program. "You can't just start digging a hole," Patterson explained, noting that ground and surface water, as well as soil composition, plays an important part in site location and facility design.

Animal waste easily seeps through the porous limestone soils of Rockingham County and adds to the nitrogen in ground and surface water. This means that the majority of producers have had to pass up the less expensive earthen facilities, which Patterson calls "just a regular old farm pond," and erect concrete structures instead. These prevent any seepage from the storage facility, even when surface water is located nearby.

Fifer Dairy Farm

The tour visited just such a facility during their third stop at Carl Fifer's dairy farm. The circular 64-by-12-foot concrete structure was constructed above ground and can hold 32,672 cubic

Keep Treated Seed Out of Animal Feed

NEWARK, Del. — The recent heptachlor contamination in Arkansas and surrounding states points up the need for livestock producers to take care to avoid using treated seed — or its by-products — as animal feed. In this incident, farmers used feed made from treated seed. This led to contamination of milk and meat, and to serious financial losses for many farms.

Treated seed — usually pink in color — is intended for planting purposes, not for use as animal feed. The chemicals on it are there to prevent molds, insects and other pests. A bright pink to reddish purple dye is added to aid in recognition and prevent accidental use on livestock.

Richard Barczewski, University of Delaware acting extension livestock specialist, urges area producers to be alert to the danger. Here are his recommendations:

- Check the feed you buy — don't buy pink, treated seed to use as animal feed. It may look like a bargain, but it won't be if you lose money later on your animals.
- If you have treated seed on hand for seed-grain purposes, don't use it as a feed substitute, even for a few feedings.
- If you buy premixed feed, examine it for signs of pink, treated seed. It's harder to detect in a mix, but you may be able to see traces of the pink color.
- Buy from feed dealers you know you can depend on.
- If you have any questions, consult your county extension agent.

Some farmers may find it feasible to have feed samples checked by a laboratory. Cooperatives, which buy large quantities at a time, may be able to do this more easily, and Barczewski encourages them to do so.

He says it's always a good idea to save a jar of feed from each premixed batch, just in case questions arise later about whether the feed was contaminated. Mark and date these samples.

There are processes for detreating corn, but Barczewski does not consider them economical, and federal regulations for feeding detreated corn are very stringent.

feet of waste. It is bottom loaded by a 20 h.p. three phase electric pump set in a 3,000 gallon reception under the paved lot next to the barn. Washwater from the dairy gravity flows into a small reception box near the milking parlor and is then pumped into the main reception box to be mixed with the manure.

Wine Swine Farm

Gravity is used much more extensively on the last farm visit the producers made. There, swine producer Roscoe Wine has a three-step gravity flow system that handles all of the waste from his 700-animal farrow-to-finish operation. The animals' waste is collected in storage pits under the house and drained once a week. The waste then flows into an above-ground 54-by-8-foot circular concrete storage structure just down the hill.

Wine removes the manure from the structure at a loading station placed still farther down the hill. The volume of flow at all three discharge points is regulated by a system of mechanical valves. Furthermore, the three valves also guarantee that no manure will escape if one malfunctions, Wine explained, commenting that the flow can become quite rapid.

During the tour, Dwight Sours, a local representative for the Virginia State Water Control Board, told producers that the nitrogen problem is coming from inadequate waste storage facilities, high concentrations of farm animals in the watershed, and over-fertilization of farmland. Adequate waste storage and proper management should remedy the problem, he predicted, but warned that farmers should start cooperating with clean-up efforts now "...or they will be enforced later."

The tour ended with lunch at the United Methodist Church in Bridgewater and a presentation on "Nutrient Management" by Rockingham County Dairy Extension agent, Harold Roller. Roller pointed out the value which stored manure has as fertilizer, and the nutrients it represents. "Nutrient management is one of the major problems facing agriculture in Rockingham County and the Shenandoah Valley," he told the group, "And the Chesapeake Bay Program is the tool we are going to use to take advantage of it."

Fire Damages N. Carolina Hog Equipment Company

NEWTON GROVE, N.C. – Hog Slat, Inc., a North Carolina-based producer and distributor of hog production equipment was recently hit by a major fire June 21, 1986. The company's concrete plant and offices suffered extensive damage although Hog Slat's steel plant close by was unaffected by the blaze.

"Any fire is a severe blow to a company," said Gary Duncan, marketing manager for Hog Slat," and Hog Slat will be no exception. The concrete production plant and our company's main offices suffered in excess of $700,000 in damages. Fortunately, personnel at the site at the time of the blaze saved a major portion of the company's records. We're just grateful that no one was seriously injured in the blaze. We also plan to be back into full production of our concrete products in 30 days or less."

Duncan also said that the blaze knocked out the company's toll-free Watts line and urged any Hog Slat customers with questions or those with products ordered from the company to call Hog Slat's regular North Carolina number which is still in service.

Hog Slat, Inc. has recently opened a manufacturing and distribution facility in Plains, Kansas for their concrete slat products. Some shipment and production from this new plant will help the firm serve their customers with minimum delay or inconvenience.

Those with questions about Hog Slat's ordering and delivery schedule for the next 30 days can write or call: Hog Slat, Inc., PO Box 308, Newton Grove, NC 28366, or call (919) 594-0219 for further information.

White Oak Mills Names Two to Management Positions

ELIZABETHTOWN – Responding to continuing growth in the sales of feeds for hog operations, White Oak Mills president John Wagner has announced two management changes.

John H. Chapman, 43, Elizabethtown R5, was named research and development director for swine programs. He continues as assistant director of sales and service.

Barry Geib, 23, Manheim R4, was appointed to sales and service representative for White Oak's farrowing operations customers.

John Chapman

Barry Geib

Chapman, a South Dakota native, is a graduate of the Navy's nuclear submarine program, and spent 10 years on active duty. Following his naval service, he spent five years as a systems engineer for a Maryland defense contractor. Then, for more than seven years, he was a partner in a 270-sow farrow-to-finish swine operation.

While he was in the Navy, Chapman attended Old Dominion University in Norfolk, Va., where he majored in business administration. He and his wife, Claudette, have two grown children, Elizabeth, 21, and Christina, 19.

Barry L. Geib is a 1981 graduate of Manheim Central High School, where he was very active in vo-ag and Future Farmers of America (FFA) programs.

During his school career, Geib showed five beef and one hog champions at the annual Manheim Community Fair. He won the Pennsylvania FFA extemporaneous speaking title in 1981, and was state FFA treasurer from 1982-83. Nationally, he won the eastern regional FFA proficiency award in sales and service in 1982, and was awarded the American Farmer Degree in 1984.

Currently he is region two vice-president of the Pennsylvania Young Farmers Association, and has served as president, secretary and public relations officer of the Manheim Young Farmers chapter.

Geib and his wife, Dawn, are members of Chiques Church of the Brethren.

Farm Credit Sponsors National 4-H Conference Participants

While the world sat and waited for news of the ordered bombing raids on Libya in May of this year, 442 teens from throughout the United States, Canada, Puerto Rico and American Samoa met in Washington, D.C. The purpose of this meeting had nothing to do with Qadhafi, however, but focused on the importance of growth: growth for themselves; growth for the new friends they met; and, ultimately, growth for their group — 4-H.

"The tone of this meeting was a very serious one," said David Antram, 18, representing Pennsylvania's Somerset County at the Washington Conference. "We had a good time while we were there, but we were also there to work." And work they did.

The conference ran from April 12 through 18, with a 33-page book the fruits of the week's labor. The book resulted from the work of more than 15 groups of the 4-H'ers and dealt with such topics as the National 4-H Ambassador Program, Lifelong 4-H, Opportunities for Leadership, Opportunities for Youth, Youth Dilemmas of the Agriculture Crisis, and others. Working on a single topic, each group consisted of approximately 30 young people and an adult consultant. The assigned topic was discussed, recommendations made and conclusions drafted. It was this work that appeared in printed form at the end of the week.

"The Washington trip was a way for the leaders to get feedback from 4-H'ers for suggestions to improve 4-H locally, statewide and nationally," Antram continued. "It is a means that the United States Department of Agriculture and other groups get to read and consider our recommendations. In this way, the leaders actually get to hear from the little people."

Seven 4-H members represented Pennsylvania in the week-long conference held at the 4-H center on Connecticut Avenue. In addition to the seven youth consultants, two adult chaperones accompanied the group.

The Washington trip was made possible by funds donated by a joint effort of Pennsylvania Farm Credit Service, the Farm Credit Banks of Baltimore, the Pennsylvania Friends of 4-H and the County Extension Service.

The Pennsylvania Farm Credit Service also is involved through their support and encouragement with the statewide 4-H in other activities. Two personal involvements in 4-H include: Carol Mercner from the West Chester office of Southeast Farm Credit serves on the board of directors of the Friends of 4-H, and Laurie Thomas from Butler Farm Credit helped with the judging of the 4-H record keeping contest that was held in April. The results of this contest in turn help in the selection of the 4-H representatives chosen for the annual National 4-H Congress scheduled for December in Chicago.

Some of the seven Pennsylvania representatives at the Washington Conference have attended the National Congress. Along with Antram, Brett Reyburn from Center County was selected in 1984. The 1985 National Congress representatives were Margee Wolfe from Westmoreland County and Ann Grumbine from Lebanon County. All four of these youths were selected for the Washington Conference this year. The other three Pennsylvania 4-H'ers attending the conference in the Nation's Capital were Pam Ross from Indiana County; Kirk Fisher from Berks County and Wendy LaMont from Bradford County Additionally, the two adult participants at the Washington Conference were Joanne Logan from the Westmoreland region and Barbara Shaffer from Somerset County.

All of the selected teens have years of experience in 4-H and possess good leadership qualities as well as a good 4-H background. Antram started in 4-H at the age of nine showing his own sheep. What started for him as a 4-H project has now grown into a flock of approximately 40 registered Suffolk Sheep. This flock is included with his parents' sheep on a 150-acre, 200-head farm in Somerset. Antram's parents, Robert and Roberta, also are employed off the farm as Mr. Antram works for the County Extension Service while Mrs. Antram is a high school English teacher. Additionally, David's grandparents, Charles and Gertrude Antram, live and work on the farm.

Even though the more than 400 4-H youths worked on their group meetings during the week, these representatives also had a chance to enjoy the Washington sights. Keeping to a busy schedule, the 4-H'ers were able to visit places such as the Washington Zoo, Arlington National Cemetery and the Smithsonian while still accomplishing the tasks required of compiling the book by the week's end.

Additionally, the Pennsylvania 4-H delegation was able to visit Capital Hill and conducted meetings with their congressional representatives. Unfortunately, due to the military action in Libya, they were unable to talk directly with their two senators. However, they did meet with the aides to the senators and were able to discuss issues concerning 4-H and pending legislation. Of particular concern were, the affects of Gramm-Rudman on possible cutbacks to the 4-H programs.

DHIA: An Exciting Future

DHIA

DHIA has been part of the dairy picture for well over 50 years. It is difficult to picture how the dairy industry would have become as viable as it is without the use of that valuable program. It started as a management tool for dairymen who were interested in developing better cattle, doing a more efficient job of feeding dairy cattle, improving butterfat test, and increasing per-cow production.

I can remember when it was first computerized in Pennsylvania in 1956. That was the year I started in Potter County as an assistant county agent. The first day I walked into the office the county agent told me there are two programs that are all yours. I do not want you to bother me with them. They are 4-H and DHIA. Of course he also gave me a few other responsibilities and jobs, but those turned out to be the two plums that helped me to progress in my job with extension.

While I was part of the Potter County staff, the county DHIA program had it's 50th birthday. It was fun to go back over the records and see what had happened to the progress of the program. I also had the privilege of interviewing two of the first testers for the county (Cleon Buck who became a premier Holstein breeder and Phil Thomas who became one of the first managers of the local Farm Credit Association). They had several stories about the early days of DHIA. When they started, cars were scarce and the prevailing method of transportation was by way of horse and buggy. Sometimes the horse and buggy was loaded onto a train car when the tester was traveling from one part of the county to another. In those days, the testers literally lived with the families for whom they worked. Even in the 50's the testers often roomed and ate with their clients.

What a change some of those oldtimers would see if they became testers for the modern program. The one thing many of them would say was missing would be the use of the tester as part of the management team. This was one of the items most of the early testers, with whom I talked, stressed. They said they, as testers, often spent time with the dairyman discussing bulls, feeding, and culling. Of course there were no computerized reports or records. However, reports were often completed and left at the farm on test day.

They would also be amazed at the way milk is tested today. No more acid eaten clothes. No more hauling around bulky centrifuges or hand cranked calculators, in themselves an improvement over the original pencil and paper. No more running samples in freezing weather with fingers so cold they could hardly hold a pencil. Today all samples are run at a central lab under controlled temperature using electronics instead of acid. In addition, the test provides fat, protein, and milk sugar readings in a matter of seconds rather than the hours it used to take to just get fat tests. Another machine reads the somatic cell count. Up until recently the technology of DHIA has moved light years ahead of the DHIA reports provided to the farmers. The result has been a program that was primarily a production reporting tool.

Now, due to some forward thinking dairymen who have become DHIA directors, the state association has begun to develop a reporting system to match its technical program. If the reports progress at the pace projected, Pennsylvania dairymen will once again have a superior management tool that should help them remain among the nations most efficient and progressive dairy business men and women.

The future of the program in Pennsylvania appears to be bright and exciting. It should be as valuable for the completely commercial operator as for the registered breeder. Future reports may feature a management page that will include such goodies as a feed program nucleus (more specific feed programs could be built from it), a projection of return above feed cost such as the present projected 305 day production level, a health report, a breeding report, and a culling guide. This could help a dairyman make some major management decisions.

There will be other features that will be valuable, such as instant results. That means reports on test day instead of several days later. For a farmer with an on-farm computer, the results could be stored in the main frame under a code and retrieved by the on-farm computer at any time for any purpose. The possibilities for the dairyman interested in management are beyond the imagination of most dairymen today. With the forward thinking of most modern dairymen, the change in DHIA technology and use in the next five years will be as great as it has been in the last 50 years. What about information via satellite?

Deadline for Five-Acre Corn Club Signup is July 1

UNIVERSITY PARK – Corn producers wishing to enter the Five-Acre Corn Club, sponsored by The Pennsylvania State University Cooperative Extension Service and the Pennsylvania Master Corn Growers Association, should file an official entry form at their county extension office no later than July 1.

Any farmer or farm operator who is 18 years of age or older by August 1, 1986 is eligible to enroll. "There is no charge for entering the Corn Club," says Dr. Joseph H. McGahen, extension agronomist at Penn State. However, farmers are encouraged to become members of the Pennsylvania Master Corn Growers Association. Only one entry is allowed per farmer or farm operator.

To qualify, a field must be five acres or more and a complete Penn State soil test must have been taken within the last two years. A current-year soil test must be dated on or before May 1. If the corn is grown in contour strips, two to three strips on the same slope may be used as long as the combined acreage is five acres or more. A cost-of-production budget will be available as an option for club members.

"The entire acreage must be planted in one variety of corn," says McGahen. Irrigated fields can be entered in the new irrigated class.

More information on the Five-Acre Corn Club is available from your county extension office.

Super airflow

the airflo long range cannon has 5 major advantages

More air
Its exceptionally powerful 39 inches fan delivers an air speed of 280 MPH and is recommended for use with a tractor of 60 or more horsepower.

More penetration.
The AIRFLO LONG RANGE CANNON ensures excellent coverage for vegetables, row crops and trellised plants The cannon sprays up to 130 feet with each pass The swivel head can be moved in any direction from the tractor seat.

Improved coverage
Two smaller air spouts to ensure coverage of the "blind spot" between motor unit and the cannon.

Greater precision
The AIRFLO LONG RANGE CANNON has a self-regulating control system. The fluid flow rate is proportional to the R.P.M.'s of the P T.O. and therefore to the speed of the tractor (for a given tractor gear speed). This is your guarantee of improved dosage and therefore of improved treatment.

Greater adaptability
With the DS 401 piston-diaphragm pump (12 gallons/minute at 284 P S I.), the double high and low pressure circuits, and the declutchable fan, it can also be used with a hand gun (for winter treatments, weeding and for washing down the tractor).

In the late 1700's and early 1800's, ice cream was advertised by confectioners and caterers who offered it when ice was available. They made it in small quantities and it was expensive. Accounting books of a New York caterer of the time show an entry of $200 for ice cream sold to President George Washington.

Middlebury Center Plant Sale Finalized

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — United Dairy Cooperative Services, a division of Northeast Dairy Cooperative Federation, Inc., met with officials of Dietrich's Milk Products, Inc., Reading, Pa., on June 9 to close on the sale of its Middlebury Center Milk Manufacturing Plant. The meeting was held in Wellsboro, Pa.

Dietrich's, the new owners, bought the facility retaining United as agent of a full milk supply to the plant. According to United's James Patsos, several milk contracts have already been signed with local dairymen, however, many more cooperative-minded producers are needed to supply the Middlebury plant.

Dietrich's Milk Products has arranged financing through Growth Resources of Wellsboro (GROW) and the Pennsylvania Industrial Development Authority to upgrade and enlarge the capacity of the whole milk powder and butter plant. It is anticipated that the volume of the plant will be nearly doubled by April 1987, providing excellent opportunities for area dairymen and growth in the community.

Here's the secret to unmatched blowing capacity

It's not a secret any longer. Farmers have discovered the reason for the higher capacity of the Gehl 1540 and 1580 forage blowers — the twin spinner delivery system and the twin sided fan.

Two 24 inch feed spinners rifle the crop into the blower fan at nearly 35 mph. The twin sided fan with 8 paddles on each side blows it up the pipe with ease.

Cost-effective design

It's also no secret that you can save time and money with our unique split rim sheet. Made of a higher carbon steel than ordinary rim sheet, it's longer lasting. And when it finally does wear out, you only replace the section in the extreme wear area right below the outlet — not the entire rim sheet.

Extra convenience too

Set up at the silo is fast and easy with an adjustable left axle. It lets you line up the blower without loosening and adjusting the rim sheet. And the swing away outlet makes it easy to check fan paddle/rim sheet clearances and rim sheet liner condition.

See these blowers now at your Gehl dealers. You can work out a good deal. And that's no secret either. Gehl Company, West Bend, WI 53095

When eating a food as delicious as ice cream, one is not likely to think of its nutritional value. Yet, 1½ cups of ice cream will contribute the same amount of calcium to the diet as one eight-ounce cup of milk.

Another tasty way to get your calcium is to use ½ cup of ice cream with ⅓ cup milk in a milkshake and you'll have the equivalent of a cup of milk.

If your favorite ice cream pie recipe calls for "softened" ice cream, remove it from the freezer and place on the refrigerator shelf for about one-half hour. This way it will soften evenly rather than melting on the outside while the inside remains firm.

Ten percent of the total milk produced in the U.S. is used in ice cream products.

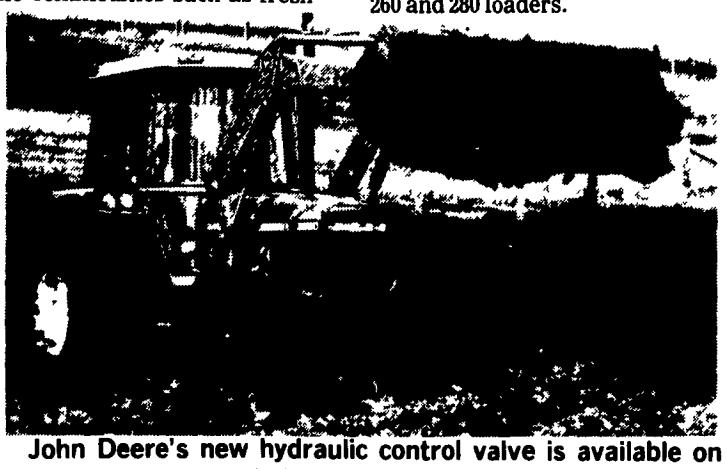
Valve Increases Loader Control

MOLINE, Ill. – John Deere has introduced a new hydraulic control valve for use with seven of the company's agricultural front loaders. Precise oil metering allows boom and bucket cylinders to be easily controlled for optimum load positioning. This is an advantage while working with heavy loads, round bales, palletized material or bulk bins filled with fragile commodities such as fresh produce.

Hydraulic lock-outs reduce internal oil leakage which virtually eliminates boom and bucket settling.

The valve also features a built-in regenerative function which allows cylinders to respond faster, thus increasing dump speed and cycle times.

The valve is available on all new John Deere 146, 148, 158, 175, 245, 260 and 280 loaders.



John Deere's new hydraulic control valve is available on seven of the company's front loaders.

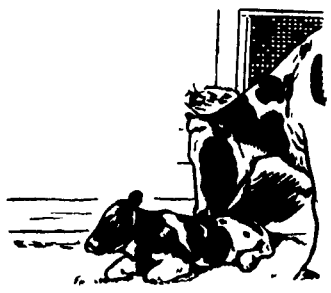
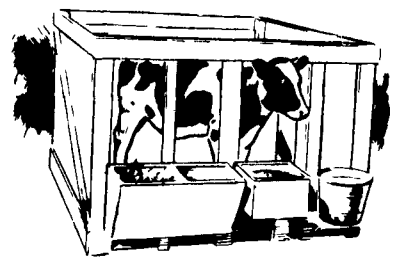
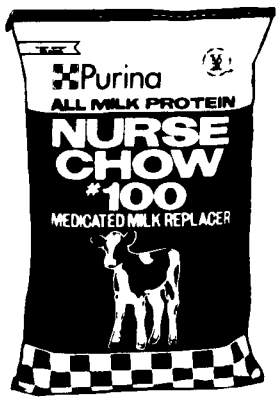
Insure Your FUTURE with a Sound Calf Growing PROGRAM





Start with Purina Milk Replacers



Nurse Chow 100®

The all-milk base in this milk replacer provides easily digested proteins for the new calf from 3 days through 4 weeks of age It mixes easily with water, stays in suspension and special additives help guard against scours

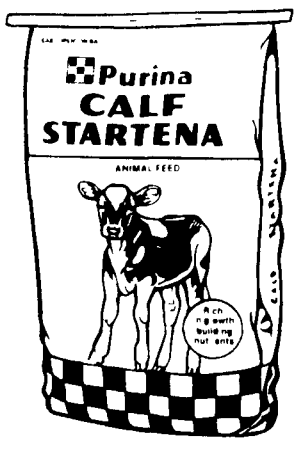
Nurse Chow 200®

An economical milk replacer that provides calves with a combination of highly digestible nutrients It provides the best value in milk replacers and gets calves off to a fast start during the all-import first month of life

Feed Calf Startena First 60 Days

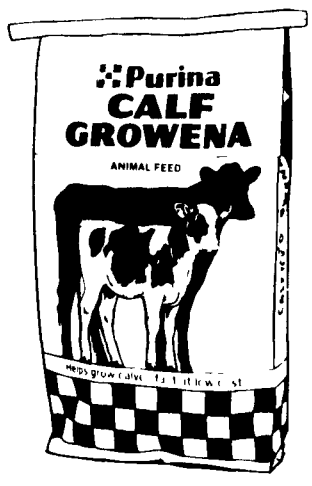
And

Calf Growena From 3 to 6 Months



Calf Startena®

Calves really go for this popular dry ration. More available nutrients deliver added growth with less fattening, while stimulating rumen development. And, dairymen report calves can be as much as 10 pounds heavier at 60 days when fed Calf Startena® compared to conventional calf starters.



Calf Growena®

This ration helps boost rumen development in calves from 3 to 6 months of age. The high energy, protein, vitamins and minerals combine with good-quality hay to help build high-quality herd replacements fast.

June is dairy month
